Council overrides mayor's veto

By MARIA LAWSH Staff Writer

Exercising a power that he has long coveted, the city council yesterday voted to override the veto of Mayor Edgar Mossman on the resolution that would approve the project.

Czarnecki said his vetoes exercised the authority vested in the position of mayor. Section 381 of the City Code of Illinois, "clearly establishes the executive powers of the mayor and his exclusive authority in the administration of the city government . . ."

The resolutions call for Washington Street to be renovated and a special session to be held.

The resolutions call for the construction of sewerage and drainage systems in the city. The resolutions also call for the construction of a new sewerage and drainage system in the city.

The Iowa City Press-Citizen is accepting a proposal for a public opinion research survey. The survey will be conducted by the University of Iowa's Survey Research Center.

The survey will be conducted through a random sample of registered voters in the state of Iowa. The survey will consist of 500 telephone interviews, with 100 interviews each in the four major political divisions of the state: metropolitan, suburban, rural, and small towns.

The survey will cover a variety of topics, including public opinion on issues such as education, healthcare, and the economy. The survey will also ask about attitudes toward specific candidates running for office, including the presidential candidates.

The survey will be conducted by live interviewers, who will use a computerized telephone dialing system to make calls. The survey will be conducted over a period of two weeks, from April 1st to April 14th.

The cost of conducting the survey is estimated to be $50,000. The survey will be funded by a grant from the National Science Foundation.

The survey results will be made available to the public via the Iowa City Press-Citizen's website, and will also be made available to the general public upon request.

Confinement of alcoholics law may violate due process rights

By WINDSOR BARCLAY

Like many of us, Fred got a little too involved in one of my little projects, and Fred ended up at the Oakdale Center, but he didn't commit a crime, and he didn't even come close to it. Fred had no knowledge of real crime, and I think he would have been a better lawyer than I am, if he had his drinking under control.

Section 12.7 of the Iowa Code states that if a person is confined for a period of 30 days or more, the court may determine the suitability of the individual for further confinement. The court may grant a period of 30 days or more, if the court finds that the confinement is in the interest of the individual's health and safety.

Fred was one of the six alcoholics who signed the petition asking the court to consider the rights of alcoholics who are committed to an institution for treatment. Fred, an alcoholic, had been in treatment for alcoholism for a year and a half. He was released from the Oakdale Center, but he was told he must complete a program of treatment and he would not be considered for release until he had completed the program.

The petitioners claim that the confinement of alcoholics violates their constitutional rights, and they are asking the court to grant them the right to be released from confinement. The court has not ruled on the petition yet.

Law malpractice rates soar

CRACKED OAP — Malpractice insurance rates for lawyers are climbing to the point where officials say further increases could create the same crisis now felt in medical practice. James D. P. Follans, president of the American Bar Association, said that malpractice insurance costs for lawyers have increased by more than 30% per year in the last few years, and that within five years there may be an even greater increase in malpractice insurance rates.

The nationwide rate for lawyers who are not members of state bar associations is $900 to $1,200 for 30 days or more of confinement. The rates for lawyers who are members of state bar associations are $1,200 to $1,500 for 30 days or more of confinement.

The ABA's insurance committee, which studies insurance coverage for lawyers, has recommended that the average rate for lawyers who are not members of state bar associations be increased to $1,500 for 30 days or more of confinement.

The ABA's insurance committee also recommended that the average rate for lawyers who are members of state bar associations be increased to $1,800 for 30 days or more of confinement.

The insurance committee's recommendations are expected to be adopted by the ABA's board of governors at its meeting this month.

The ABA's insurance committee is made up of lawyers who are members of the ABA's insurance committee, and it is responsible for setting insurance rates for lawyers.

...It's Everything

A convoluted Puritan work ethic is alive and well at an Ivy League university, judging by recent reports of cheating in the College of Medicine. One first-year medical student has admitted to four years of systematic cheating, and six were placed on a year's disciplinary probation as a result of the incident. Though it was reported that the cheating was not widespread, its very existence is a larger, more serious problem.

This cheating strategy differed because of what those adhere to the principle of success at all costs. The College of Medicine has maintained its academically and legislatively based non-compliance, and is finally to the degree that it is especially rare in academic circles, where competition for grades is the basic fact of life for so many students.

But if the belief is common, it is no less destructive.

The members of the school's administrative faculty can right exam rates or frequently as severely as they wish, but they are powerless to change the environment, and react to the basic principles of the characters of the students who take those exams. It is in itself to the individuals to decide what values will guide them.

The Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty: The Weakening Dike

by Thomas A. Halsted

California farmers are now acceding the same rights, privileges and protection given others by large corporations. These rights were given to them in 1861, when the United States was founded, but are now being acceded by farmers as well as the non-farm citizen. The passage of this bill new gives the farmers the right to appeal to a federal election to decide which union. If any, they may choose.

It would appear that the debate between the United Farmers and the Union would be that of the small farmer versus the large corporation. The United Farmers, however, after the bill was signed into law, because of the facts that the larger farm lost power over the smaller, and that the small farmers were not represented in the passage of the bill. now gives the farm workers the right to appeal to a federal election to decide which union, if any, they may choose.

Gallo Wines on Secret Farm Labor Elections

The company has several new programs designed to improve working conditions for farm workers and to increase the number of workers who choose to work for the company.

The United Farm Workers (UFW) is an organization committed to improving working conditions for farm workers and to increasing the number of workers who choose to work for the company. The UFW represents farm workers in various areas, including California, Arizona, and Colorado.

The UFW has been involved in negotiations with Gallo Wines and, over the years, the labor issue has been a contentious one. Gallo Wines is a major producer of California wine, and the UFW has been working to improve conditions for its farm workers.

In the past, Gallo Wines has been accused of using predatory tactics in its negotiations with the UFW. However, in recent years, the company has taken steps to improve working conditions for its farm workers and to increase the number of workers who choose to work for the company.

The UFW has several programs designed to improve working conditions for farm workers, including the Farm Worker Health and Safety Program, the Farm Worker Education Program, and the Farm Worker Advocacy Program. These programs are designed to provide workers with the skills and knowledge they need to advocate for better working conditions and to negotiate with employers on their behalf.

In addition, the UFW has been working to increase the number of workers who choose to work for the company. The UFW believes that workers should have the right to choose where they work and should be able to negotiate for better working conditions with their employers.

The UFW has been successful in negotiating agreements with Gallo Wines and other companies, and the company has been working to improve conditions for its farm workers. However, the UFW continues to work for better conditions for its members and remains committed to improving working conditions for all farm workers.
At the Bijou:

Sylvia Scarlett

By TOM SCHATZ

Sylvia Scarlett (Hepburn) is one of the most fascinating and tragic screen personalities of the 1930s. She is a woman of contradictory forces, a character that is simultaneously endearing and frustrating. Her story sets in the Depression at a time when America was struggling to find its way back to prosperity.

The film's protagonist, Sylvia Scarlett, is a young woman who has lost everything in the economic downturn. She is forced to make a living by posing as a boy in London's Pall Mall. Despite her gender identity, she is a natural in the role, using her wit and intelligence to gain the trust of those around her.

Her relationship with the shipping magnate, Charles Kavanagh, is one of the most complex aspects of the film. Kavanagh is a wealthy and influential man, but he is also a man who is struggling with his own identity. Sylvia's presence in his life challenges his assumptions about gender and sexuality, leading to a series of events that will change both their lives.

The film's climax comes when Sylvia confronts her father, a wealthy and powerful man who has abandoned her. She is forced to make a choice between two men who love her, one of whom is her father. The film ends with Sylvia's decision and the consequences of her actions.

Overall, Sylvia Scarlett is a film that explores the themes of identity and family, and the ways in which they can shape a person's life. The performances of Hepburn and Sullivan are exceptional, and the film remains a classic of its time.
