Iowa's Lynette Fromme, 53, was sentenced to life without parole Thursday after pleading guilty to conspiracy to commit murder in the first degree for her role in planning to assassinate President Ronald Reagan in March 1981.

The 1981 assassination attempt was one of the most publicized and tragic events of the Reagan presidency. Fromme and other members of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) planned to kill the president while he was in Washington, D.C., on March 30, 1981. The group believed the president was a symbol of the American empire and needed to be removed from power.

Fromme, a former beauty queen and aspiring actress, was arrested in 1975 for her involvement in the 1974 murder of Los Angeles police officer Stephen Ybarra. She was subsequently imprisoned for 13 years for that crime and served an additional 14 years for her role in the SLA.

In 1981, Fromme was arrested again for her involvement in the attempted assassination of President Reagan. She was charged with conspiracy to commit murder in the first degree and convicted of the crime in 1982.

At her trial, Fromme was known for her flamboyant and aggressive demeanor, often wearing a nun's habit and speaking in a husky voice. She was sentenced to life without parole and has remained in prison ever since.

The sentence was seen as a fitting conclusion to a case that has captivated the nation for decades. Fromme's conviction and sentence brought closure to the families of those who lost loved ones in the tragedy and reminded Americans of the dangers of political assassination.

The case also highlighted the importance of vigilance in protecting our leaders and institutions. It serves as a reminder that even in the modern era, threats to democracy and political stability remain a real danger.

School board blues

Veteran school Superintendent—Those who survived the changes in student attitudes in the 60's are now a far more astute and experienced backhand: the trend toward electing "conservative" school boards is continuing.

It is conceivable that the new school board in Iowa City will not be as responsive to the needs or their employees as its predecessor. The majority of the PII, the advisory council to the school board which this year will include 13 school board members, has just been appointed by Superintendent Ludwig.

The staff member of the staff board is no longer being viewed as just a series of programs or sex-education classes. It is becoming a series of programs or sex-education classes. It is becoming a means of changing the student attitudes in the classroom. Ludwig himself seems to focus on a philosophy of teaching the basic skills in the classroom. The dead hand, however, does not cross the importance of students' emotional and attitudinal growth.

Though a member of an earlier board, Ludwig's also an educator. It is the new members on the board's recognition of education that they are not to fear too much with educational philosophy. If the new members on the board can deal with the budget efficiently and effectively, then they will be most accountable to their constituents.

New revenues swell coffers

Student Senate ready for funding

BY MARY SCHNACK
Staff Writer

There's a reason why so many have sur¬rounded the Student Senate booth and why more students are trying to become senators: money. The Senate is taking in an estimated $30,000 in revenues this year, a 30 percent increase from last year.

By law, at least $25,000 of the funds garnered in Senate fees and student government fees must go to two different areas: 1) a fund that is used to support special services, such as the Student Legal Services, Tutoring Center, and the writing center, and 2) a fund for scholarships.

The Senate will use the increased revenues to help fund student groups, meet the demands of its constituency, and help the general students. In the past, the Senate has struggled to meet the demands of the student body, and this year it will have the means to do so.

The Red Rose...the greatest walking shoe ever.

It's been a long time since the last meeting of the Red Rose community relations committee. The last meeting, which was held in the fall of 1980, was attended by several members of the committee and was focused on the theme of "The Red Rose...the greatest walking shoe ever." The meeting was well attended and several members of the committee were enthusiastic about the theme. However, no plans were made for another meeting.

The Red Rose community relations committee was formed in the fall of 1980 to promote the values of the Red Rose community and to foster a sense of community among its members. The committee has held several meetings since its formation, including the meeting in the fall of 1980, and has focused on a variety of themes. These themes have included "The Red Rose...the greatest walking shoe ever," "The Red Rose...the greatest shoe ever," and "The Red Rose...the greatest shoe for women ever." The committee has been well received by the members of the Red Rose community and has been active in promoting its values and goals.

UI graduate to head Special Support Services

BY MARSHALL T. ROY
Editor-Writer
It's homecoming for a UI graduate. It's also meant to be a homecoming to the Special Support Services department. W. Collins Jones, a 1968 graduate of the College of Business, says he is returning to serve as Director of Special Support Services in UI administration.

Jones, who was assistant vice-president for student services, Special Support Services (SSS), in the University of Tennessee's College of Business, was named dean for graduate programs in 1969 and as an instructor for the 1969-70 school year. As a UI undergraduate, he served as administrative assistant to the dean of the College of Business and was a member of the university's Student Senate.

In addition to his bachelor's degree in business administration, Jones has a master's degree in business administration from the University of California. As a graduate student, he was a recipient of the Bancroft fellowship, for Graduate Study in Management.

Jones says SSS expects to help more than 100 students get a fair deal because we run our department that way. The most pressing problem is the need to supplement our staff of professionals in the department.

Previously, Jones served as director of student financial assistance, free tutors, and an administrative assistant to the dean of student services. In 1968, he was the recipient of the Educational Opportunity Scholar Fellowship for the University of Tennessee.

In what appears to be an infrequent occurrence, hearing at night and spending a great deal of time not hearing the students' response has been characteristic of the administrations in the university.

But, Jones says right readings are more convenient for students and allows SSS to go where the students are. In the past, Jones said, there are still people around in the community as there was in the community because the people with the most problems are different from other people.

Although they'll be trying to keep hold of that running back in the middle of the field, the Illini will be well armed in defense. If the Bears can't run, they'll have to pass. And that's when the Illini will be prepared.

Joe Butkus, the Illini's star linebacker, is expected to win his third straight Naismith Award. He's also been named the block of the year by the Bursting Bravos.

Butkus is remembered for his ability to move the ball upfield with his amazing leaping ability. He also has a knack for knocking down passes and intercepting them as well.

Illini head coach Jerry Killill is hoping for another strong season. He has a talented team with many returning starters.

Senior quarterback Pat Sullivan is expected to lead the team to another Big Ten title. The Illini finished last year with a 10-2 record, including a win over Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

SNUBBED. Illinois Coaches Bill Blackman is a little worried about his trip to Iowa City this weekend. It was not until last week that Blackman filed his papers and the Hawkeyes headed toward the Big Ten's for row. For some of the players, it may be the only season that will actually have a definite barrier between the losing East and the Big Ten West.

For many big people had a feeling that our country's problem until now. But Blackman decided against positioning any footballers, through the Illinois Athletic Department, and continued on in Iowa City.

If that welcome to Iowa's now, footballers to speed up the play, the Hawks were prepared to put up a fight. But for the next few weeks, they'll be ready for any attempt. But the Hawkeyes, as Blackman pointed out, now have an unfortunate weakness that will certainly be a definite barrier between the winning East and the Big Ten West.

We got lights – let’s see action

While many changes in the quality of Iowa games have been noted, one change in the appearance of Kinnick Stadium can be readily observed.

The temperamental old clock reported 1:30 remaining. "Let’s dream at the end of spring practice. It just fades out," said Iowa athletic director Henry Ellefson.

The most notable was the new scoreboard installed behind the south stands, designed to be "a giant wall.

The old one was no more than 210 feet. It was displaced recently by World War II. The new one was prominently a good one by fiber.

It is basically not much different than the old. It has lost the feature of a homecoming special. "It’s not a big screen," said Ellefson. "It’s a smaller version. That should make it easier to see.

The old equipment of the old board’s scoreboard was acquired from the city. The new board is based on a larger, broader one, designed for the game.

The new one was placed at the center of Kinnick Stadium. The old one was at the south. The new one is 50 feet longer than the old one.

Bucks-Spartans

The Big Ten game of the week could turn out to be the game of the year. Iowa faces Michigan State. Last season, 42,307 fans were on hand.

Everyone, including Woody Hayes, remembers the 1954 Sugar Bowl. Woody says the Buckeyes were "a bunch of kids who were playing in the Sugar Bowl."

MU Coach Chuck Black said his team had "a lot of kids who have been on the Bobcats, and we're just trying to get them prepared for this game."
