Sahara marchers spew into contested country

KILOMETER EIGHT, Inside Spanish Sahara (AP) - Tens of thousands of much struck-bound women shouted and chanted Monday as Madrid's five-year-old sponsored train passed through the disputed region. They yelled for three miles into the desert, waving orange and red, and shouting for the international recognition of the territory by Morocco. They chanted "no to the peaceful occupation." The protest continued for three miles into the Spanish Sahara, which is officially known as the Western Sahara. The Kingdom of Morocco claims the territory as its own, while the United Nations has decided to consider it a disputed area. The Spanish Sahara has been occupied by Morocco since 1975. The protest was organized by the Sahrawi Women's League, which represents the Sahrawi women living in the territory. The women were demanding the recognition of the territory by Morocco, which has a significant presence in the area. They were also calling for the withdrawal of Moroccan forces from the territory.

Irked by parking policy, union to picket at game

By KIRK JENSEN

Charging that the USF has ignored its requests for parking negotiations, the University of Iowa Employees’ Union (UIEU) will picket before the start of the Women’s basketball game at 7 p.m. tonight. The union’s local has reached the conclusion that the university’s parking policies, which have been in effect for over 30 years, are causing problems.

The UIEU’s case centers on the issue of reserved areas which have been created over the years. The union claims that these areas are being used by the university to avoid paying for parking.

The union has been trying to negotiate with the university for several years, but has not been successful. The union is now planning a picket line in front of the stadium to draw attention to the issue.

A career in law — without law school.

What can you do with only a bachelor’s degree? How can you help the legal profession without a law degree? What is the best way to make a career in law?

The answers to these questions are many and varied. However, one thing is clear: you do not need a law degree to make a successful career in law.

Many people work in the legal field without a law degree. They may work in areas such as paralegal, legal secretary, or legal assistant. These positions do not require a law degree, but they do require a knowledge of the law.

You can also make a successful career in law without a law degree by working in areas such as legal aid or community legal services. These positions do not require a law degree, but they do require a knowledge of the law.

In conclusion, you do not need a law degree to make a successful career in law. There are many ways to make a career in law without a law degree.

LOYALTY OR ISSUES?

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing to express some thoughts about the loyalty or issues that are currently being discussed in the Iowa City community. It seems to me that there is a lot of confusion and uncertainty about what is going on. People are saying different things, and it is not clear what the actual situation is.

I believe that there is a lack of communication and understanding between the different groups and individuals who are involved. This is leading to misunderstandings and disagreements. It is important to have open and honest dialogue to resolve these issues.

I hope that the leaders of the city can work together to find a solution that is fair and just for everyone. It is crucial that we all work together to build a strong and united community.

Sincerely,

Lindaman trial delayed until Jan. 5

By LINDA SCHUPPNER

Bill Wither

The Nov. 17 trial of a former UI student, Lynn M. Lindaman, who was charged with larceny after an attempted rape of a 17-year-old girl, was postponed until Jan. 5.

Lindaman was arrested Aug. 13 in connection with the July 10 incident. He is a 23-year-old senior in horticulture.

The girl was attacked during a night class in the School of the Environment, where Lindaman was employed as a maintenance and/residence worker.

A hearing scheduled for Nov. 15 on the aggravation of a confession or any other evidence was postponed until Jan. 5.

The request for both post-trial motions came from Lindaman's attorney, Joseph John "Chairman" Staff, who argued that the trial judge had committed prejudicial error by refusing to allow Lindaman to testify in his own defense.

Lindaman entered a plea of not guilty, Aug. 15, and this was released on a $10,000 recognizance bond.

Rockefeller withdraws to prevent rocky road

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and his aides are taking a few days off to spend more time with their families and friends away from the nation's capital. Rockefeller has been a key member of President Ford's campaign since the summer, when he announced that he would run for re-election as a Democrat.

The White House Press Secretary, who has been in close contact with the Vice President's campaign manager, said that the President's message to the country was clear and decisive: "We are going to win this election," Rockefeller said.

Meanwhile, the President's aides have been busy with their own preparations for the campaign. They have been meeting with potential donors and Supporters, and working on strategy for the months ahead.

The Vice President's aides have been working on their own plans for the campaign. They have been meeting with potential donors and Supporters, and working on strategy for the months ahead.

In his first public appearance since the announcement of his candidacy, Rockefeller said that he would continue to work hard for the President's re-election, even though he had decided to withdraw from the race.

"I have no plans beyond this press appearance," Rockefeller said. "I am not going to work on the campaign in any capacity, nor will I be involved in any way in the nomination process."

Rockefeller's decision to withdraw from the race is a blow to the President's re-election hopes. It is also a setback for the Vice President's campaign, which had been counting on his presence in the race to help energize Democrats.

Minorities find resources in East Hall aids office

Lincoln said the body of a nova was needed to study, and that the one had not been observed, that not all the complaints find students dealt with by.

Many tedious and unrelated complaints, grade complaints, consumer complaints, employment complaints, these complaints were also involved in business, such as the telephone company. His chief advisor in which a student came to him with a laminated paper, and wanted to discuss filing a suit. "We have no problem," according to Lincoln, the problem was resolved, without any further action.

According to Lincoln, there were no problems to contact minority cultural organizations about space and community, and improve the relationship to facilities. "We are trying to reach minorities cultural affairs for minority organizations culturally oriented," Lincoln said.

The star was expanded to its temporary group from the moment of discovery to the present. As the temperature becomes so high that the whole area of space, the nova begins a series of events that stays hot. But he said, "The outer star repels inward and the nova temperature is the core of the core.

The core overruns and begins to leave heavy elements like carbon and iron. Tremendous energy is released and the star expands," he added.

This nova, according to Lincoln, is the most powerful one discovered in 19 years. "We are performing it," he said, "and the number of years we want to be able to go is very small, not that our people can get us, but likely our sun will not dangerous for 20 years."

"We have just come to the end of our sun," he said, "but there is a possibility that the sun could give us high priority at the end of the universe."

"We have the first full report on it in the United States," said Lincoln. "We have been able to see the nova in the distance to the west of the sun. It is only about a third of the sun, but it is a bright nova in that area."

"We have been able to see the nova in the distance and the sun could give us high priority at the end of the universe."

"But the nova that goes off is the nova in the distance, and that makes it," said Harris. "We have been able to see the nova in the distance and we have time to do research in it. We have the nova that goes off is the nova in the distance, and that makes it," said Harris. Truffaut pays homage to films

By JOSE ELMANN
Special to The Daily Times

There was a time when color television was more than just a novelty; it was a revolution in the way we watched movies. The first color films, produced in the 1940s, brought a new dimension to cinematic expression, allowing directors to explore themes and patterns that had previously been limited to the black-and-white spectrum.

In "Day for Night," the Academy Award for Best Picture went to François Truffaut for his film "The Day After Tomorrow." This was no small achievement, as the film represented a departure from the director's usual style, and demonstrated his ability to adapt and grow as an artist.

The film's innovative use of color was not just a technical feat; it was also a tribute to the power of color as a storytelling tool. Truffaut believed that color could be used to convey emotions and ideas in ways that black-and-white films simply could not.

For example, in one scene, the director uses a sepia tone to create a sense of nostalgia and melancholy. In another, he employs bright, primary colors to emphasize the purity and innocence of the children at the school. The use of color in "Day for Night" is a masterclass in how visual elements can be used to enhance the emotional impact of a film.

However, the film's success was not without its challenges. Truffaut had to fight against the prevalent view that color was a distraction, or even a threat, to the integrity of the film. He had to argue for the importance of color as a tool for expression, and for the right of filmmakers to use it as they see fit.

In the end, "Day for Night" was a triumph for Truffaut, and for the power of color in cinema. It remains a testament to the enduring influence of color in film, and a reminder of Truffaut's commitment to pushing the boundaries of what a film can be.
In the August issue of this year, "Sports" published a growing number of articles about modern women of "Sports," including a picture that indicates that many women writers and athletes are being recognized for their role and that the image of the "dumb jocks" is changing. In this context, "Sports" reports an interview with Daniel Holm, the...
Harriers at Big Ten meet

Iowa's cross country team traveled to Madison, Wis., for the Big Ten Championship with a number of its stars going to last year's event. Iowa finished fifth in the Big Ten last year and the Hawkeyes could "absolutely continue to be in the top ranks this year," Ted Wheeler said the Hawkeyes may hold a "hard-hat" meeting soon. The Hawkeyes will probably not be in the NCAA final, but they do stand as a respectable entry for the NCAA meet. Iowa had missed out on the NCAA races. Either way, it was still tough to beat.

Iowa's facing the Hawks and everyone has a dual-season record, but Iowa goes down at 3-2, a dual against Northwestern.

When a football player steps out onto the field, ready to go, he walks up to the game. It's up to him and only him to accomplish his task.

But a player, no one knows that coach, friends, always there when he needs them. Always there when he needs them.

When Tom Higginbotham was an American center at Washington, every time he stepped onto the field, one thing was certain: there was a chance he might not come out of the game. Always there, the coaches, friends, always there when he needed them.

Tom began to play football in high school, but he never dreamed he would be a center in the NFL. Always there, the coaches, friends, always there when he needed them.

GODFATHER" Caldwell finds his chances just beginning

By BOB GALE

Staff Writer

Ordinarily, if someone suggested that Iowa could get a good luck charm out of this season, people would offer varying degrees of sarcasm. Caldwell is a very solid backup quarterback, but he's not in the team too long, or among the stars.

When Dave Caldwell says it is the first time that he has seen a player like Caldwell since he's been at Iowa, you get the feeling that he's not exaggerating. Caldwell is still the same solid backup quarterback, but he's not a stranger to the program. Caldwell was listed as the third-string quarterback when he entered Iowa this year, but he's been around for quite some time.

"When I was not last year, I was dealing with a hernia and had to go inside the games. When a game started, I had to go to the sideline. I tried to figure out how I could sneak back in, but it's not easy, and Caldwell was the one who saw that." The players and coaches alike were impressed with Caldwell's performance last year.

The atmosphere just makes you feel like you're helping someone, and Caldwell was no exception. Caldwell is a workhorse, and he's been around long enough to know the system. Caldwell is a solid backup quarterback, and he's been around long enough to know the system.

BUTCH-CALDWELL gives his career a quarterback he's 'been somebody else,' he explained. "You can feel a lot by just looking at the people around you." Caldwell is a solid backup quarterback, and he's been around long enough to know the system.

"I don't think it's been easy. I don't think it's been easy. I don't think it's been easy. I don't think it's been easy. I don't think it's been easy." Caldwell is a solid backup quarterback, and he's been around long enough to know the system.

"I like to think of Caldwell as a backup quarterback at Iowa," Caldwell said. "He's not a star, but he's a very solid backup quarterback. Caldwell is a solid backup quarterback, and he's been around long enough to know the system.

Michigan, Ohio State still on top

Ohio State can clinch the Big Ten title and a berth in the Rose Bowl with a win over arch-rival Michigan Saturday. The Buckeyes have won the last five meetings in the series, including a 10-3 victory last season.

The Buckeyes have won three straight games and are playing with confidence, while Michigan has dropped two straight and is reeling from last week's 20-17 loss to Northwestern. The Wolverines have lost five of their last six games.

Ohio State quarterback Craig Coahran is expected to start after missing the last two games with a broken hand. Coahran's return is a boost for the Buckeyes, who have relied on backups Matangi and Stan Bostick in the past.

The Buckeyes' defense is another key to their success. They have held four of their last five opponents to 14 points or less, and their pass defense is ranked second in the nation.

Michigan's offense has struggled in recent weeks. The Wolverines are averaging only 17 points per game in their last five contests.

But Ohio State's offense has also had its issues, averaging only 14 points per game in its last three games.

The game is expected to be a close one, with Ohio State favored by a field goal. A win for the Buckeyes would give them the Big Ten title and a spot in the Rose Bowl.

"This Saturday, we're going to outplay our opponent. They're not going to outplay us, and we're going to outmaneuver them. We're going to outplay them in every phase of the game. They're not going to outplay us."

But Dungy understands that his team must be prepared for any challenge. "They're going to have their game plan, and that's what we're going to have to do as well."

Ohio State is led by quarterback Craig Coahran, who has completed 62 percent of his passes for 1,000 yards and 10 touchdowns.

The Buckeyes' defense has also been solid, allowing only 18.5 points per game.

Ohio State's offense will be led by tailback Terry Stieve, who has rushed for 946 yards and 11 touchdowns.

The Buckeyes' defense has been strong against the run, allowing only 108.2 yards per game.

The Buckeyes' defense has held five opponents to less than 100 yards rushing, including Michigan last season.

The Buckeyes' defense has also been strong against the pass, allowing only 173.8 yards per game.
