To replace Iowa City services

U-Heights turns to alternatives

By MAURA NEESTE

A new, four-year, $170,000 study by a group of Holy Cross University economics professors will be released to the public Thursday by the U-Heights Council. The study, which was commissioned by the city of Iowa City, will examine the financial impacts of annexing U-Heights into Iowa City. The study will be presented at a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Iowa City Council chamber.

The university professors will present their findings on the economic impact of annexing U-Heights into Iowa City. The study will include a detailed analysis of the financial implications of annexing the area, as well as an evaluation of the potential benefits and drawbacks of annexation.

The study will also include a review of the current services provided by Iowa City, as well as a comparison of the costs and benefits of providing those services to U-Heights residents. The study will be used to inform future discussions about annexation and to help the city and U-Heights residents make informed decisions about the future of the area.

The study will be made available to the public on the city of Iowa City’s website, and a summary of the findings will be presented at the public meeting. The meeting will be held at the Iowa City Council chamber, located at 200 1st Ave. NE.

The meeting will feature presentations by the university professors, as well as a question-and-answer session with the public. The meeting will be open to the public, and all are welcome to attend.

For more information, contact the Iowa City Council at (319) 356-8100.
The State of Iowa received some welcome news Wednesday: record liquor sales to state-owned stores in December. Holiday shoppers spent $344 million in December—which is 34% more than the prior year.

Which brings to mind the state's desire to be the liquor business—and is strictly regulated—those portions from which it abstains. Thus, the growth made on the state liquor sales is distributed in cities and counties throughout the state. And that, the state has a $200 million profit, and that's better than being in the red. And you could be getting millions, too—even though that was just a few years ago.

But also true that Iowa has a Bicentennial complex. No doubt about it; the state has been closed on Sunday. But restaurateurs may not sell alcohol during the day, unless the host of his or her restaurant closes his or her sign.

The story isn't out of the liquor business and leave it to private business. Competition would be a boon, not a hardship. The manufacturer would be available for longer hours, thus increasing convenience. (It is not always easy to get to a liquor store before 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday afternoon, or before 8 p.m. Friday.) And it would remove the state from being the sole distributor of the "evil spirit." The Sunday restrictions on beer and the big alcohol sales also should be lifted. Most of those who wish to drink on "The Sabbath" will do so—either by stockpiling ahead of time or by begging from friends—regardless of this state's attempt to enforce a prohibition mentality. The only ones affected are those who are both forgetful themselves and have forgetful friends.

But those gymnasiums can be restricted by a Bicentennial complex. The state's desire to be in the liquor business may not ever be realized, for it would be an exercise in futility to attempt to regulate a market place.

By adjusting the Sunday restrictions—there may be a possibility of constitutional restrictions being lifted. The state's desire to be in the position of enforcing a religious belief in the state. It is a position the legislature should quickly get the state out of.

Cash rebates demanded 1/20--200 Yesteread

Just a few weeks ago, university officials were informed by students of a new policy for the student activity fund, the Associated Students of the University of Iowa (ASUI). ASUI's goal is worth $800 worth of an temporary housing, which may or may not ever be realized, until the end of the Board of Regents' policy.

Halls (ARH) at University-City, residence halls, were not told until Friday. Those who lived in temporary housing, they were told, should make their own arrangements for temporary housing until the end of the semester. And, when ARH representatives asked for a greater possibility of an university out of the temporary housing, they were told, the University of Iowa received some welcome news from the food.

Beer may be sold on Sunday. And true, the state has a position the legislature should quickly get the state out of. But also true: Iowa has a Bicentennial complex. No doubt about it; the state has been closed on Sunday. But restaurateurs may not sell alcohol during the day, unless the host of his or her restaurant closes his or her sign.

old bugabo-grades debated

By DIANA JURIS

Staff Writer

Graduate students and faculty gathered Wednesday night in the Union to discuss the issue of dissertation-grade evaluation. The meeting was an extension of a previous panel discussion held last week, during which students expressed their concerns about the grading system, and the pressure and time consumed by the process. The students were not the only ones in attendance; faculty members and administrators also attended the meeting.

A few new issues were brought up, including the concern about the consistency of grading practices among different professors. The students also expressed their frustration about the lack of feedback and communication between instructors and students.

One important issue that was discussed was the need for a more transparent and fair grading system. The students argued that the current system is biased and unfair, and that it does not accurately reflect the students' knowledge and skills.

The students also suggested that the grading system should be more aligned with the objectives of the program. Currently, the grading system is focused on the completion of the dissertation, rather than on the quality of the work. The students argued that this approach is not fair and does not encourage creativity and innovation.

The faculty members and administrators acknowledged the students' concerns and agreed to work on developing a more transparent and fair grading system. They also promised to look into the concerns about the consistency of grading practices and to improve communication between instructors and students.

Overall, the meeting was a positive step towards addressing the grading issues at the university. The students were encouraged by the faculty's willingness to listen and work on solutions, and they look forward to seeing changes in the grading system in the future.
Nuclear talk in Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said there now is a genuine relaxation of United States-Soviet tensions that would make a significant modification of their position on a new nuclear weapons treaty.

Kissinger said there now is a genuine relaxation of United States-Soviet tensions that would make a significant modification of their position on a new nuclear weapons treaty.

He emphasized, however, that the Soviets have insisted that the two superpowers have a significant modification of their position on a new nuclear weapons treaty.

The United States and the Soviet Union, he said, have given a clear indication that they are more recently over the Russian position.
