Citizen feels ticket unfair, notes un-ticketed violations

A woman who was attending a political rally for women's rights in the city was ticketed for parking a car in an egg-shaped zone where no parking is permitted.

"I put the car there because I thought it was safe," said Jane Smith, who was attending the rally with several other women.

"I don't understand why I was ticketed," said Smith. "I didn't see any signs prohibiting parking in that area."

The parking officer, who did not wish to be identified, said that the zone is marked by a white line and a black dot.

"That's the way it's supposed to be," said the officer. "If you park there, you're going to get a ticket."

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Ford on Monday charged his economic message, with few surprises expected following his Sunday night television news installment, Ford will tell Congress in the near future.

Ford said the new plan, which has been in the works for months, will focus on a single goal: to reduce the nation's growing deficit. The plan, which the president has been urging for some time, is expected to include a mix of tax increases and spending cuts.

However, occasional rifle fire was heard in the distance, a spokesman said. It's a reminder that for all the international attention the war has received, Lebanese lives continue to be disrupted by the conflict.

State investigates nuke plant

By LYNDON NEWMAN

The Colorado Public Interest Research Group (CPPIRG) has found that a proposed nuclear power plant in western Colorado is not being built fast enough to meet deadlines.

The CPPIRG report, released today, says the plant is not likely to be operational by the scheduled completion date of 1984.

The plant, owned by the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad, is one of four proposed in the state. The others are owned by the Rocky Mountain Power Company.

The report cites a number of reasons for the delay, including construction problems, labor disputes, and regulatory issues.

The CPPIRG report calls for a more rigorous oversight of the plant's progress.

Lebanon

NEW YORK (AP) -- Thousands of Lebanese poured into this country's largest Catholic church Sunday night, as its bells tolled out of sorrow for the dozens of children killed in last week's explosion.

The bells of St. Mary's Cathedral in Beirut were rung in memory of the children who died in the blast at a playground near the gates of the American University of Beirut, which killed more than 200 people.

The bells echoed across the city, carrying the message of a nation mourning its loss.

The blast, which occurred during a celebration of the Christian holiday of Feast of the Epiphany, set off a wave of mourning across Lebanon.

The blast was the latest in a series of terrorist attacks that have rocked the country in recent months, including a suicide bombing that killed 20 people at a Beirut restaurant.

The attacks have fueled sectarian tensions in Lebanon, where a long civil war has left the country divided along religious lines.

The blast was also a reminder of the ongoing conflict in Syria, where Lebanese soldiers are fighting alongside Syrian troops to drive out rebel groups.

The United Nations has called for an immediate end to the fighting and for a resolution of the underlying political and sectarian issues in Lebanon.

The blast highlighted the challenges facing the country as it tries to rebuild from the war and move forward.

The country remains deeply divided, with many fear of new violence and instability.

The Lebanese government has vowed to seek justice for those killed and to hold those responsible accountable for the attack.

The blast also underscored the continued threat posed by the rebel groups in Syria, which have proven to be a persistent challenge for the international community.

Sex for sale

Few issues better highlight a libertarian's dilemma than the current dispute in Los Angeles over passing a law that would clamp down on sex workers. It is possible to identify a number of very different moral and political points on the issue.

For instance, the police, the public and a high percentage of the voters favor a clampdown. They have always said these people whip up on the community the way hoodlums do, and they have been putting up with the pocket-doo-doo raids by the same community for years. To be sure, some such people definitely do not, but we surely can't all be in the same lantern...nor can we be left in the same one. The point is that something must be done about the whole problem.

I do not think the police should be in the business of running the brothels. But I do think the notion of morality, or, definition of morality and morality in government is the libertarian liberal could feel that the laws should not restrict prostitution at all­

"Sex for sale" is not a very popular subject among political philosophers. But let us say this. The sex for sale business is here to stay. From the point of view, one way or the other, of every single person on earth, it is a fact of life. There are no exceptions to the rule, and there are no reasons why we should be in the business of trying to change the fact of life.

As Senator Paget, the writer of the basic sex for sale law, put it, one has absolutely no right to shortchange or to impose upon the society, a system of private commerce. A system of private commerce is a system of private liberty. And if you impose upon it, you are creating is in the same way a system of private autocracy. And if you impose upon it, you are creating is in the same way a system of private autocracy.

The only way to make a living is to be useful. And the only way to be useful is to make a living. And if you impose upon a system of private commerce, if you impose upon it, you are creating a system of private autocracy. And if you impose upon it, you are creating a system of private autocracy.

The first time I saw a pornographic movie, I was 12, a senior in high school who thought it would be a good idea to go to a movie theater. I was very disappointed. The movie was 'Deep Throat,' three-dimensioned porn flick. "The film was not about sex. It was about the relationship between a woman and a man," I thought. I was wrong. The film was not about sex. It was about the relationship between a woman and a man. And that's what I learned from it. I learned that the relationship between a woman and a man is not just about sex. It's about love, respect, and understanding.

I was also 12, but let's face it, the relationship between a woman and a man is not just about sex. It's about love, respect, and understanding. The film was not about sex. New appeal option for meter dodgers

By DON FISHER

Small-time offenders — persons who have run up small fines and who are running up to find and thus avoid the parking meters — may be offered a new appeal option for their meter ticket offenses.

This option was implemented in San Francisco last week for the first time.

Under a new agreement established last February by City Attorney Patricia Bernal, defendants who receive parking tickets totaling $20 or less can appear in court within two weeks of receiving the ticket.

The release behind the 40th floor, Bernal said, "is that the small-time offender is allowed to appear in court within two weeks of receiving the ticket, generally, but not if there is a good deal of waiting there.

Therefore, a court will order most of these offenders to first pay their fines and to get under way Tuesday."

Defense claims Hearst 'prisoner of war'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In the eyes of the opening day defendant, Robert B. Goshorn, vice president of the Western Magazine Publishers Association, and the defense attorneys for the magazine publishers, the city of San Francisco is the "prisoner of war."

But under a new agreement established last February by City Attorney Patricia Bernal, defendants who receive parking tickets totaling $20 or less can appear in court within two weeks of receiving the ticket. The defense behind the 40th floor, Bernal said, is that the small-time offender is allowed to appear in court within two weeks of receiving the ticket.

"We are not in a position of vigorous defense," said Robert Goshorn, vice president for circulation of the Western Magazine Publishers Association. Lack of working annual membership among the membership category of the New Pioneer Cooperative Society has resulted in a new membership policy that would make it easier for new members to join. Presently, the Cooperative Society has a cooperative membership category which includes both members and non-members. Under this membership category, workers help the cooperative by bringing in goods for consumption at a lower price than the cooperative's cost. Non-working members pay an annual membership fee and devote their work at home to the cooperative. The new membership policy will be discussed and voted on at the next monthly meeting and will be held at a local high school. Lasocki said that everyone is welcome to participate in the meeting and very few of those non-working members are magnified.
