City may consider rent-fixing probe

BY MARK MISTELMEYER

The Iowa City Council may have the authority to consider rent-fixing proposals among other issues, though many potential municipalities in the state lack the legal authority to do so, according to a legal adviser.

"There are no known examples of municipalities in Iowa that would be able to do this," said John Halley, a legal adviser to the Iowa City council. "It would be an interesting topic for further study in this area and whether you want to do a rent-fixing program." Halley said that rent-fixing proposals are popular among some local governments, but the legal authority to implement such programs varies by state. In Iowa, most municipalities do not have the authority to implement rent-fixing programs, Halley said.

The Iowa City Council received a proposal from the Iowa City Housing Authority to consider a rent-fixing program, but Halley said that the authority is not empowered to make decisions on such matters.

Halley's report went for an engaged and comprehensive discussion with Halley's representatives, and the Iowa City Council is a leader in the state for the scale necessary to provide assistance. Based on this, Halley said, this kind of municipal legislation is "absolutely necessary" and Iowa City would be a logical place to implement it.

"The City Council consideration of Halley's report may be a long way off," City Manager Max Dugas was quoted as saying. "The council has a mandate to get good legislation to the Des Moines Register, to bring them up to date. It's the only way to do it."

The city continues to struggle with the problem of meeting the demands of various interest groups and various stakeholders, Dugas said. He said that the current system of rent-fixing has been "absolutely necessary" and that Iowa City would be a logical place to implement it.

The TV's physical education coordinator, Romie Bailey, who helped set the stage for the insurance reform movement, was looking for ways to improve the physical education program in the Iowa City, Iowa, school district.

"I'm just glad we're working with the federal government," Bailey said. "The government has provided us with some resources to help us improve the program." Bailey said the government has provided resources to help improve the program, including grants for equipment and training.

The district is one of many schools in the United States that have been working on improving their physical education programs. Bailey said the district has worked on improving the program for several years and has made some significant changes.

"We've made some changes to the curriculum," Bailey said. "We've added more activities that are more engaging and that provide opportunities for students to be active." Bailey said the district has also worked on improving the physical education facilities and equipment.

Bailey said the district is looking to continue improving the physical education program in the future.

"We're always looking for ways to improve the program," Bailey said. "We're always looking for new ideas and ways to make the program better for students." Bailey said the district is committed to providing students with a quality physical education experience and is always looking for ways to improve the program.
"Crucial" budget proposal sent to City Council

By MARK MILLSTEAT

The Student Senate proposed a budget that included cutbacks in funding for various programs and services, as well as a budget of $97,700 for the courts, which would include the construction of a central complex to be built on the campus. The budget was presented to the City Council on March 15, 1976.

Major cutbacks would be made in the city's street maintenance budget, including the maintenance of streets, sidewalks, and street lights. The budget would also include a 6-7 per cent ceiling on the total expenditures of the city for the fiscal 1977 year ending June 30.

He added that similar cutbacks in funding from both the federal and state governments would have to be made in the future, if efforts initiated by the City Council to reduce energy consumption were to be successful.

The City Manager stated that a budget proposal for the courts and the seven courts across from Union Library is expected to be submitted to the City Council at the next meeting.

More UI library hours sought

By MALCOLM MILL

The University of Iowa library hours are not rising as quickly as the number of users. The library staff is working to increase the number of hours available for fiscal 1977, but is facing financial constraints.

After the May 1976, a $11.7 million cutbacks in funding from both the federal and state governments will have to be considered to reduce energy consumption.

Public hearing to pick which tennis courts lit

By MALCOLM MILL

A public hearing will be held on March 15, 1976, to determine which tennis courts will be lit at the University of Iowa. The hearing will be held in the City Council chambers.

The hearing will be held in the City Council chambers on March 15, 1976. The tennis courts will be lit if they are popular and well-used, and if there is enough demand for them.

Mincing words on abortion

It's true that President Ford and his numerous colleagues are working with the Senate to a conditional amendment on abortion: whether abortion should be outlawed. Ford, and others in the Senate, believe that the bill should be passed. If the amendment fails, the Senate would be forced to consider an amendment to outlaw abortion. This amendment would be introduced by Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) and former Sen. Fred Harris (D-Colo.) to support the Senate's position on abortion and oppose amending the Constitution to place legislation in the hands of the states, or to regulate abortion on the federal level.

On the opposite side, California former Governor Ronald Reagan, a Republican, has been identified as the man behind the move to place abortion on the federal level. He has supported casting a vote in favor of abortion, which would allow the Senate to pass legislation that would clear up the confusion about abortion by making it legal.

Joan Titone remarked about Lily Tomlin.

"I hope the day comes when we can allow people to live their lives as they wish, without interference. I really don't know if there is such a day."

At the same time, Lily Tomlin is becoming a more vocal supporter of abortion rights. She has been called upon to voice her opinion on abortion issues, and has spoken at women's rights rallies.

Tomlin's voice is a familiar one, and her words are carefully chosen. Her soliloquy.

"I have always believed that a woman should be able to make the decision for herself, and I will do everything in my power to see that abortion is legal and safe."

Her words are backed up by action. Tomlin has been known to donate money to pro-choice organizations, and has even gone on record as saying that she would vote for Sen. Jackson's amendment if it meant keeping abortion legal.

The personal matter of terminating a pregnancy has turned into a situation in which women must be able to choose what is best for them. The personal decision to have an abortion must be made by the woman, not by the government. This is a matter of choice, not law.

On another note, the editorial board of the Iowa Daily Lowan has stated that the amendment would be a mistake. They believe that the amendment would be a step backward in the fight for women's rights.

"We cannot allow the Senate to pass legislation that would take away a woman's right to choose. This amendment is a setback for women's rights and a step in the wrong direction."

The amendment is a threat to women's rights, and it must be voted down. The amendment would be a violation of a woman's right to privacy, and it would be a step backward in the fight for women's rights. The amendment would be a violation of a woman's right to choose, and it must be voted down.

The week's plan to buy the 50 items on which you can save a dollar in each is: 12 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00; 10 for $1.00.

Shoppers should also remember that this price comparison involves only a small number of the many items sold at the store. While some might say that the comparison is not valid because no brand name is given in the prices listed, there is little to be gained from the shopped trend and shoppers may make equal quality differences among the brands in addition to the differences in prices.

The chart has been compiled by Lori Newton, market writer, and prepared by the Daily Herald for the five stores.

Past, not future told by palm reader

By JUDY CLIBURN

Good Carter comes from Burlington every Thursday. She sits in a jeweler's shadow shop to listen to the natural sounds of the Hall Mall. She comes to read palms for her first customer of the day and read her first line.

"Before we were very young," the customer, a young woman, said, "I had a horoscope. Very old one is it ever. But I tell you I had a lot of life from it. The mill woman was a natural woman in my life, and she told me things that have made me feel very fine, I tell you, all of that life is very fine, very true.

"On charge is not a reading. She takes her time, she is in it, she knows you from your eyes before she ever sees you. She is a palm reader. What she says about you, you have no idea before her.

"You are a palm reader. What she says about you, you have no idea before her. She talks about your life in the future, and she knows if she is right or wrong; if she is right, she knows what she says."

"She has a lot of horoscopes in her hand and she is doing one for me. She has a lot of horoscopes in her hand and she is doing one for me.

"It is something like this, something like a hog and a dog and a hog and a dog. She has got and she has a lot of people, coming during ABC period, we separated stories. That's a story about a husband and wife.

"I have been doing this for the past few years and I don't think I'm going to have a dog and a dog. She has got a lot of people, coming during ABC period, we separated stories. There's a connection between her and me.

Deerries lack of early counseling

Perry opens health conference

By LARRY FEILD

In the usual, two-hour counseling conference, Deere & Company's employees heard a variety of speakers, including representatives from the company's health and safety programs, a local university, and a national association.

In the business world, the concept of health education is becoming increasingly important. As companies look to reduce healthcare costs and improve employee well-being, they are turning to counseling services as a way to provide valuable information.

The conference was held on Wednesday, Feb. 5, at 8 a.m. Perry, who is a renowned speaker in the field of health education, shared insights on the importance of preventive care and the role of counseling in promoting health.

"We need to start thinking of health as a way of life," Perry said. "It's not just about treating illness, but about preventing it in the first place. Counseling can play a huge role in helping people make healthy choices and maintain a healthy lifestyle."

Property tax plan meets Senate defeat

By GREG VULRICH

The House Senate yesterday passed the property tax bill that would have changed the way property taxes are assessed and collected in the state. The bill, sponsored by Sen. Robert Ray, would have allowed property owners to protest their property taxes in court and would have provided a way for property owners to appeal their property taxes.

"The governor's proposal accepts only half of what it asks," said Sen. Ray. "We have to act now to protect the rights of property owners." The bill passed the Senate 38-11, with 62 votes needed for passage.

"We need to act on this bill now," said Sen. Ray. "We cannot afford to delay any longer." The bill was expected to be heard in the House committee on Thursday, and if passed, would then go to the House floor for a vote.

"This is an opportunity to make a real difference in the lives of property owners," said Sen. Ray. "We need to act now to protect the rights of property owners."

Guatemalan quake toll tops 2,000

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) - Rescuers searching for survivors in the capital's five-story bedroom building early Wednesday found 338 bodies, bringing the earthquake death toll to 3,384. Residents described the earthquake by saying it "looked like the city was burning."

The epicenter of the quake was in the ocean 15 miles southwest of Managua, where 1,839 people were killed Wednesday in Nicaragua by a 7.2-magnitude earthquake, according to the U.S. Geological Survey. In Guatemala, 1,545 people died in the capital, where 338 bodies were recovered by 6 a.m. Thursday, officials said.

No casualties were reported in the other countries hit, the United Nations said.

The United States Geological Survey said the quake was one of the most powerful in the region. It was felt throughout Central America, sending residents running into the streets in panic. The shaking lasted for about 20 seconds, according to the survey.
