Expect no hearing on Dooley's firing

By MARILYN LIPPS

An early indication of rumored resignation of Doreen DeBartolo, the University of Iowa student activities director, came Wednesday when Dr. John L. Dooley, president of the university, announced he had fired DeBartolo.

According to insiders, a hearing will be held to review the charges and comment on the resignation.

One of the officers to be placed in charge of student activities is Lawrence Blaske, director of the Student Activities Center.

The investigation has centered on the activities director role.

"We found that the administration has been investigating the matter," said Joe Johnson, assistant director of Student Activities.

"We will not comment further on the matter until we have had a hearing and have the opportunity to present our case," Johnson said.

The hearing is expected to be held in the next few weeks.

Plaza construction — maybe 500 jobs

By JIM WOLFE

Special to The Daily Iowan

About 200 people turned out Wednesday night to hear officials announce tentative plans for the construction of the Plaza at Iowa City, the downtown Iowa City Center.

The plaza, which will be located at the intersection of Clinton and North Iowa streets, will be built on the north side of the downtown Iowa City Center.

The groundbreaking ceremony and the first meeting of the planning committee were held Wednesday night in the Iowa City Center.

Invitations for the ceremony were extended to all interested parties, including residents, businesses, and city officials.

The ceremony was attended by hundreds of people, who gathered in the plaza to listen to speeches and participate in the festivities.

Odds better on betting on bill being anti-personal appeal gains

By ROGER THURLOW

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. - Senate Majority Leader Bill J. Janklow and his Republican-controlled Senate will probably have to settle for a compromise version of a bill that would permit pari-mutuel wagering in South Dakota.

The Senate voted 26-4 Thursday to kill the jobless fund bill authored by Senate Minority Leader Tom K. Steffensen.

The measure, SB340, would have established a state-run unemployment insurance fund by increasing the state’s tax on wages and contributions.

In voting against the measure, seven Republican senators said they opposed increasing the tax on wages and contributions.

Six Democratic senators opposed SB340 because they believe it would not adequately fund the unemployment insurance fund.

Nearly all the Democratic senators who opposed the legislation said they would change their votes to no if the measure were amended to include a one-time increase in the tax on wages and contributions.

This was the third time in the past two years that SB340 has come before the Senate.

The measure was defeated in the Senate on March 13, 1985, and March 10, 1986, when the Senate was unable to reach a compromise agreement on the measure.

The Senate failed to pass the bill by a vote of 25-5 on March 13, 1985, and by a vote of 24-6 on March 10, 1986.

Quabbles stymie law center

Personal differences, petty fighting and different priorities have stymied efforts to merge the Iowa City and Johnson County law centers for the past four years, according to a joint report released Friday by the Student Coalition for Action and the Iowa City Community College (ICC). The student group was formed in 1979 in response to the growing conflict between the two law centers, and the report is the latest attempt to resolve the issue.

Both the city and county had contracted two architectural firms to prepare designs for a new law center. But the architects found that the city and county officials had proposed a new law center with a smaller floor area and a lower cost than the one the architects were preparing to design.

The city and county have been at odds over the issue for years, and the problem is likely to continue for some time. The city has already spent $700,000 on the project, and the county has spent $400,000.

The report released Friday suggests that the city and county officials should continue to try to resolve the conflict, and that a new law center should be built as soon as possible.

Stodden: I care

Who cares about the housing shortage in Iowa City? That’s the question that University of Iowa student Rhonda Dickey asked herself when she began her Student Senate election campaign.

But she soon discovered that she was not the only one who cares about housing.

Dickey, a junior, said she was surprised to learn that there are about 1,000 Iowa City residents who are homeless or in temporary housing.

"I think people don’t realize how bad the housing shortage is," she said.

Dickey said she plans to work with city officials to try to find ways to help the homeless.

McGarry offers action

The Student Coalition for Action in a group of students that are just offering solutions, not just rhetoric. We are offering a plan of action for the city to follow," said the coalition’s president, Saul Berman.

Berman said the coalition had reached a consensus on these points, cooperation between city and county officials may be preventing residents of both levels of government from being heard.

"We believe that both need to build new police headquarters and jail facilities," Berman said.

Joe Job-Hunter gets aid

By LARRY FURL

Joe Job-Hunter is a college graduate looking for a job. He knows he must apply to several jobs at one time to get any one of them. The path ahead is difficult and a job is not easy to come by. He has decided not to wait a week before applying for the next job. He must work fast.

"I don't want to muck around," Joe Job-Hunter says. "I'll do something. I believe I'm going to try to get the job of my dreams." He goes to the local resume-writing workshop.

"You have three good reasons why your company should hire you," said the instructor.

"I'm not sure I have three good reasons," said Joe.

"No," said the instructor. "You have the most essential reason of all. You have three good reasons why your company should hire you. If you can't come up with three good reasons why your company should hire you, then you should wait a week before you apply for the next job." Joe Job-Hunter leaves the workshop.

It seems that Wal-Mart and its grocery stores are not appropriate for any other store in the list. The price did not include any additional carrier's fees or taxes.

Shoppers should also remember that this price comparison involves only a small number of the many stores outside the metro area. Also, when no brand name is given, the prices listed are for the cheapest brand and not for any specific brand.

Cairo:

The construction is being led with an eye to the monasteries of the desert and the need for a focal point for the monks. The project includes the construction of a monastery, a school, and a hospital. The monastery is being built on a site that was previously a wasteland, and the school is intended to provide education for the children of the monks. The hospital will serve both the monks and the local population.

The project is funded by the government and private donations. The monasteries in the desert are known for their strict adherence to the principles of the Christian faith and the monastic life. The monks are noted for their simplicity, devotion, and service to others.

In the Coptic monasteries, the monks are known for their hard work and dedication. They spend most of their time in prayer and study, but also engage in physical labor to support themselves.

The construction of the monastery is being carried out by local workers and artisans, who are being trained in the skills needed for the project. The materials used are locally sourced, including the mud bricks that are traditional in the construction of monasteries in the desert.

The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year, and the monastery is scheduled to open in 2024.
