Ford takes fifth

Carter swamps opponents in Illinois

By K. PATRICK JENNER

"I think we have a better organization," said Carter at the Democratic National Convention last week. "By every measure, our campaign has the most impressive organization of any presidential campaign.""

Viewed in this light, the Carter victory is no surprise. It is a victory that Ford, with all the advantages of a popular incumbent, failed to achieve.

Ford's campaign was a conventional one, relying on the power of media and the television cameras to convey the image of the president. However, Carter's campaign was a different kind of creature. It was a grassroots campaign, built on a network of volunteers and supporters across the country.

Carter's victory is a triumph of hard work over money. It is a victory of ideals over pragmatism. It is a victory of the people over the élite.

The fact that Carter won Illinois, a state that has traditionally been seen as a bastion of the Republican Party, is a testament to the strength of his campaign. It is a sign that the people of Illinois, and of the whole country, have spoken clearly for the future.

The Carter victory is a victory for democracy. It is a victory for the American people. And it is a victory for all of us who believe in a better future for America.
Next year you could be on scholarship.

An Air Force ROTC 2-year scholarship. Which means you’ll get $3,000 a year for tuition and books, a $3,000 allowance, and a $1,000 book allowance a month allowance. And picks up the tab for your College ROTC training...

And after college, you’ll receive a commission in the Air Force... go on to further, specialized training... and get started as a leader of leaders! The Air Force... a place where you won’t be telling others what to do... but leading them! Lead the way for fellow leaders... and be a role model for the future!

But it all starts right here. Get in Air Force ROTC. Things will look up... up... up. No obligation, of course.

The Iowa City police said Wednesday that the search for the body of a missing 13-year-old girl will continue at least through this fall, and possibly into next year.

Iowa City police said Wednesday that the search for the body of a missing 13-year-old girl will continue at least through this fall, and possibly into next year.

Police have found human remains but not the missing girl, and the search will continue until human remains are found.

Lt. Bill Kowal said the search for the body of the missing girl, who was last seen leaving a school in the city, will continue until human remains are found.

"We have found human remains, but we have not found the missing girl," Kowal said. "We will continue to search until we find human remains."

White collar crime; America's hidden paradise

Last week the Iowa Senate passed a state antitrust law, providing fines of up to $500 a year for four years for the misconception of prices. This bill has been criticized by many civil defense workers as too severe, and it has been suggested that the bill should be limited to $50,000 a year.

An antitrust revision is necessary in Iowa's existing 1898 law, which does not cover price fixing. It is not clear whether this bill will pass the House of Representatives.

ARH poll to determine vending shops' feasibility

BY THELMA CLEVELAND

The Associated Renchmen Halls (ARH) decided Monday to conduct a poll to determine the popularity of vending machines in the halls.

According to ARH president John S. Johnson, the poll will be conducted during the next few weeks. The results will be used to decide whether vending machines should be installed in the halls.

Johnson said that ARH was contacted by several vendors interested in installing vending machines in the halls. ARH is considering various options, including a survey of students and faculty.

The poll will be conducted in the form of a survey, which will be distributed to ARH students and faculty. The survey will ask questions about the students' preferences for vending machines, as well as their willingness to pay for them.

Johnson said that the results of the poll will be used to make a decision about whether vending machines should be installed in the halls. He added that ARH will take into account the opinions of students and faculty before making a final decision.

Johnson emphasized the importance of student input in the decision-making process.

The survey will be conducted in the coming weeks, and the results will be announced shortly after its completion.

U.S. stops talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A move to punish the Soviet Union for its support of Angola, a major U.S. ally, may be in jeopardy as the United States considers the possibility of ending the current round of talks.

The talks were initiated by the U.S. administration in an effort to resolve the conflict between Angola and the Soviet Union.

The talks have been characterized by recurrent disagreements, with both sides accusing each other of making demands.

The U.S. administration has indicated that it is considering ending the talks and shifting resources to other areas.

Henry K. Kissinger, the U.S. secretary of state, has expressed concern about the U.S. position in the talks.

Kissinger was quoted as saying that the U.S. position was becoming more difficult as the Soviet Union was increasing its support for Angola.

Feel like a fool while the laughter rang
And hung my head while the devil smiled
Looked down on the mountain
While the angels sang
Wondered
Through the eyes of an only child
If ye been here before
Trembled as the winter wind
Would blow against my door
Been so far at sea, I could not find the shore
Cot down on my knees and prayed
I would see more
With these eyes of an only child.

Women: true struggle ahead'

By MARY SCHOENACK
Red Sonchak
Philadelphia — Women — and in particular women's movements — now have a new struggle to face, according to a recent article by Mary Schoenack.

"Now is the time for women to organize and fight for their rights," Schoenack said. "We need to stand together and demand our place in society." She said that women must also work to change the patriarchal structure that has kept them down for so long.

"It's time for women to take a stand," she continued. "We need to fight for our equality and our freedom." She said that women must also work to change the way men view them.

"Men need to learn to respect women," she said. "We need to teach them that women are just as capable as men, and that they should be treated with the same respect." She said that women must also work to change the way society treats them.

Wooden: none like old UCLA

By the Associated Press
John Wooden is a skeptic when he hears about athletic challenges UCLA for college basketball's championship.

"That's not the case," he said. "You're just repeating what the latest iteration has done." Wooden, who coached UCLA to its 13th national basketball championship in 1967, said his alma mater could match this year's team, but not top it.

"If you repeat the old stories about UCLA beating the top-ranked Indiana, Wooden: none like old Hathi and had a 3.19 by the 4059. ................ 7 . ...... .... . . . . . ... . ..... . .

Players snub owners’ proposal

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — A negotiator for Marvin Miller, the head of the major league baseball players' union, accused the owners of presenting a "frivolous" proposal to negotiate a labor contract Tuesday and jeopardized the opening of spring training in Florida and Arizona.

"I am surprised that after the owners rejected the union’s efforts to make a negotiated settlement on a labor contract, the owners now insist on negotiating over a frivolous proposal," Miller said. "I have indicated that the owners have not presented a contract that meets the essential criteria for a new labor agreement."

The owners' offer, Miller said, included a 5 percent raise for players over the next three years, but it also reduced the players’ share of revenue from 52 to 50 percent.

The players' executive board would have to vote to accept the proposal, and a special meeting is expected Wednesday to discuss the owners' proposal.

"We will not accept a proposal that does not meet the essential criteria for a new labor agreement," Miller said. "I have indicated that the owners have not presented a contract that meets the essential criteria for a new labor agreement."

Miller added that the players are now prepared to go to court to force a new labor agreement.

The owners' proposal also included a 24-hour strike rule, which is currently in effect.

Miller said the players were not ready to accept the owners' proposal without changes to the strike rule.
