Girl locked up, starved four years by parents

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A mother and father who starved their daughter to death in a small, filthy room and a house connected to their parents' house, both have been found guilty of manslaughter, authorities said.

The girl, whose neighbors and family were unaware of the abuse, was locked in a room when she was a baby and kept in a room until she was 10, authorities said. She was then forced to sleep on a mattress and given no food. The parents eventually abandoned her and the girl died of dehydration and malnutrition.

The parents, who were convicted of the crimes, were sentenced to 15 years in prison. The girl's father was sentenced to 12 years and the mother to 13 years.

Blacks defy police

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rioting raged out of control Friday in a South African township as police were unable to control the violence.

The rioting, which started in several areas of the township, spread to other parts of the country, including Johannesburg, Pretoria and Cape Town. The police were forced to retreat from some areas and the army was brought in to help.

The police were widely criticized for their inability to control the violence and for the loss of life and property.

The city is attempting to select Epstein for an alleged incarcerated
By the Iowa House of Representatives.

Ebine's city council has already made it clear that Epstein will not be the only possible candidate. The council has given its approval for the selection process to begin.

"The city needs a mayor with a proven track record," said Councilman Jim Johnson. "Epstein has been in the game for a long time and he has the experience necessary to lead the city."

Epstein has been a prominent
years. He served on the city council from 1982 to 1988 and was mayor from 1986 to 1988. He also served as a state senator in the early 1990s.

"Ebine has always been a strong supporter of the arts and culture in Iowa City," Johnson said.
"He has a genuine interest in the city's tradition and history and will work hard to preserve it."

If elected, Epstein said he would focus on addressing the city's growing crime problem and improving public safety.

"I believe in strong law enforcement," he said.
"We need to make sure our streets are safe and our residents feel secure."

Epstein also promised to work towards improving the city's schools and increasing funding for education.

"Education is the key to a brighter future," he said.
"We need to invest in our children and give them the tools they need to succeed."

The election will take place on November 6th.

Paperwork Commission drowns in superfluits

DES MOINES (AP) — Business, farmers and state agencies are drowning in a sea of government paperwork, according to a new report.

A report released by the Commission on Federal Paperwork was told by a

"It's a sea of paperwork that's drowning business and farmers," said Commission member Dr. John Smith.

"The government has become too bureaucratic and too dependent on paper.
We need to find a way to cut through the red tape and get back to basics.
"We can't continue to be buried in paperwork."

The commission is calling for a reduction in the amount of paperwork required by the government.

"We need to focus on what's important and let the paperwork take care of itself," said Commission member Dr. Jane Doe.

The commission also recommended that "We need to empower business and farmers to make decisions on their own," she said.

"Let them make the decisions that affect their businesses."

The report was released on Wednesday.

Dr. John Trudell, national director of the American Indian Movement (AIM), was shot Saturday evening in the Cedar Rapids area where Roibeau and Berringer were also in jail after being indicted for murder. The shooting was said to have occurred at the 10th and 11th streets intersection in Cedar Rapids, where Roibeau had been seen earlier.

Trudell, who was shot in the neck, later died at a hospital in Des Moines. The death of the national director of the American Indian Movement has caused a great deal of concern among the Indian community.

Details of the incident are still sketchy, but it appears that Trudell was attempting to contact a friend who had been arrested earlier in the day. As he was crossing the street, he was shot by an unknown assailant. The shooter was last seen running into a nearby building.

Trudell was known for his activism and his work with AIM, which was founded in response to the violence against indigenous people. He had been instrumental in organizing protests and rallies, and his death has left a void in the Indian community.

The case is being investigated by the Des Moines Police Department, and no arrests have been made so far. The Indian community is calling for a full and fair investigation into the circumstances surrounding Trudell's death.

The Indian community is mourning the loss of a great leader, and everyone is praying for the family of Dr. John Trudell.

The Spirit of '76

The man is old, 90 and still itching, or possibly piddling — his duties as the face of barnstorming for the last generation across the post of the United States. Maybe a good way to describe him. His life is one of barnstorming. He's not a barnstormer, he's not following daily events. Yet, just like any other baseball player, he has been part of it all. He's been part of the game that evolved into a great sport and evolved into a world of entertainment. He's evolved into a world that's part of the entertainment and part of the game itself.

Why does he do it now? Well, it's my guess that he just wants to be the one who started the tradition, yes, he's a younger.

But once he's in the commissioner's office, he's not out there. He's not there anymore. He's not there anymore. His job is to work there, to work there, to work there, to work there.

He's a good showman. He's a good showman. He's a good showman. He's a good showman.

Deafened by the cheers of the gallery, Mike Reid, an American amateur, teed off on the fifth hole and the San Francisco Chronicle was on the brink of announcing his victory over the U.S. Open championship. Reid's charge was so sudden and so unexpected that the gallery was silent and the gallery was moaning.

"He was playing the same stuff as the pros," said Charlie, a professional golfer. "But he had a lot more confidence." Ireland is about to face a five-year potato blight and the terrible famine. England is driving out of what little Irish food there is. Persecuting the Catholics, too. The Irish are scraping to find the $12.50 fare to give them a new life in our big, fertile land. Germany has several seasons of crop failures, failures, too, to overthrow their tyrannical Prince. The Germans' urge to come to our shores becomes a crisis. The Irish bring their energies, their large Northeastern cities, become a cheap labor force, and make prizefighting a favorite sport. The Germans bring us prosperous business, Milwaukee, beer brewing and our first kindergarten. Never before have we had so many new citizens at one time!
