

Friends of Old Brick try for last-minute rescue

By DAVE HEMINGWAY
Staff Writer

The state Board of Regents has received a last-minute proposal to save the old First Presbyterian Church building (Old Brick) from demolition, and an official for the First Presbyterian congregation said that if the regents agree to the proposal, the congregation would consider it.

But, the official said, "time is running out." The proposal came from the Friends of Old Brick, a non-profit, non-sectarian group trying to save Old Brick. The group met a deadline requested by the Presbyterian spokesman, Herbert Wilson, in getting the proposal to the regents by Wednesday.

The proposal asks that the sanctuary title be transferred from the Presbyterians to a third party for the next 11 months, during which the Friends group would try to come up with financing to buy the Old Brick site, located on the corner of Clinton and Market Streets.

The regents have a contract with the First Presbyterian Church Corp. to buy the Old Brick site, with the structure razed, for $140,000. The cleared site is to provide "green space" for the UI campus.

The structure, the second oldest in Iowa City, housed the First Presbyterian congregation until it moved to a new location.

After more than one year of efforts by various groups to save Old Brick from demolition, the regents contract has been amended several times to have the transaction take place Aug. 1 instead of last fall, as originally planned. Some groups, including the Friends of Old Brick, have suggested the structure could be converted into a community facility such as a neighborhood resource center.

At a June meeting, the regents supported an 11-month extension for the Friends of Old Brick to allow the group time to raise money for purchasing the site. However, the regents wanted the sanctuary title to remain with the Presbyterians so that if the Friends group was unable to buy the building, the Presbyterians would have the same responsibility to raze the structure as called for in the contract.

The Presbyterians rejected this proposal, although saying at the time that if a suitable third party could be found to take title to the site, they might approve the extension. Wilson had told the Friends group last week that it would have to submit any new Old Brick proposals to the regents by Wednesday. He said this deadline was necessary, in light of the Aug. 1 transaction date, for the Presbyterians to know whether there was a chance the structure would not be demolished.

He said a firm has already been contacted to raze the structure, if that is the ultimate decision.

Wednesday's proposal would probably be considered at the regents' next meeting, scheduled for July 15-16, unless the board decides to call an earlier special meeting.

Wilson said the contract with the regents could be amended again to allow more time for Friends of Old Brick. He said, however, that the contract amendment would have to be approved by the entire Presbyterian congregation.

"And time is running out," he noted. Wilson said that in his opinion a third party as suggested in Wednesday's proposal should not be a historic preservation body or some other body with a "vested interest" in the structure.

The proposal suggests several agencies as possible third parties, according to Jeff Schablon, a member of the Friends group. One suggestion is that a bank trust take title to the sanctuary.

The group has offered to provide money for the dismantling of the sanctuary should it not be able to purchase the Old Brick site in 11 months.

Wilson said he would favor a bank taking title to the sanctuary, instead of a historic preservation body like the Friends of Old Brick. The Friends of Old Brick volunteered to take title to the sanctuary. However, the regents rejected this offer.

Before the transaction schedule was last changed, the regents were to have taken possession of the Old Brick site May 1. However, at their May meeting, the regents asked the Presbyterians to grant an extension of the contract to Aug. 1, giving the Friends of Old Brick until June 15 to come up with a way to buy the site.

This was to leave time before Aug. 1 for the Presbyterians to raze the structure if the Friends group was unable to purchase the structure.

The group has raised about $22,000 for purchase of the site.

Warren Commission 'impeded' Panel criticizes FBI, CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate intelligence committee said Wednesday the CIA and FBI failed to provide the Warren Commission with evidence that "might have substantially affected the course of the investigation" into whether there was a conspiracy to kill President John F. Kennedy.

The committee stressed that "it has not uncovered any evidence sufficient to justify a conclusion that there was a conspiracy to assassinate President Kennedy."

But the panel said that failure of the CIA and FBI to pursue the possibility of a conspiracy behind the assassination "impedes the process" which led the Warren Commission to conclude that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone.

The committee outlined these leads which it said were never adequately investigated.

—The possibility that Cuba's Fidel Castro ordered Kennedy's assassination in retaliation for a CIA plot against his life that was in progress at the time of the Nov. 22, 1963 slaying in Dallas; —A report that on the evening of the day Kennedy was killed a Cubana airlines flight from Mexico City to Cuba was delayed five hours awaiting the arrival of an unidentified passenger who boarded the plane without passing through customs;

—The "strange travel" of "a Cuban-American" who an FBI informant claimed was involved in the Kennedy assassination and who may have been in indirect contact with Oswald.

Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., who headed the committee's investigation, said other "interesting leads" had been left out of the 106-page report in order not to jeopardize further investigation.

Schweiker accused the CIA and FBI of "a cover-up" and said "there is no longer any reason to have faith in (the Warren Commission's) picture of the Kennedy assassination." But committee chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said that "whether there was a conscious cover-up or not has not yet been determined" and added that he is not yet prepared to call for a full-scale reopening of the assassination investigation.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., the other member of the two-man subcommittee that investigated the assassination, later disputed Schweiker's use of the word "cover-up."

"I would not use the description 'cover-up,'" Hart said. "It suggests a plan, a collusion... The phrase takes on a conspiratorial ring that didn't really exist here."

Hart said CIA officials did not want the public — or possibly even the President — to know that there had been efforts to assassinate Castro. The FBI was primarily interested in protecting its own image, Hart added.

The report said it did not know why "senior officials in the CIA and FBI permitted the Warren Commission to reach its conclusions without all relevant information" but added that "the possibility exists that senior officials in both agencies made conscious decisions not to disclose potentially important information."

Noting the controversy which has surrounded the Kennedy assassination for more than 12 years, the committee said "regrettably, this report will not put the matter to rest." The panel recommended that the investigation be continued by the new, permanent Senate intelligence committee. The assassination report was the last work of a temporary, special intelligence committee which has now gone out of existence.

The report said that senior government officials "wanted the investigation completed promptly and all conspiracy rumors dispelled." According to the report, within 14 hours of Kennedy's death, the FBI had narrowed the focus of its investigation to Oswald alone and within weeks issued a report concluding that Oswald was the sole assassin.

FBI director J. Edgar Hoover "perceived the Warren Commission as an adversary" which might criticize the bureau's monitoring of Oswald's activities before the assassination and its investigation of the killing itself, the report said.

Hoover concealed from the commission the fact that 17 FBI agents had been disciplined for their failure to recognize Oswald as a security threat. The commission also was never told about the FBI's destruction of a threatening note which Oswald had delivered to bureau offices in Dallas several days before the Kennedy killing.

Angered by the commission's criticism of the FBI's performance, Hoover on two occasions "asked for all derogatory material on Warren Commission members and staff contained in the FBI files," according to the report.

The report strongly criticized the CIA for failing to inform the commission of the potential significance of a 1963 plot involving an undercover agent, code-named AM-LASH, in a plot to kill Castro.

According to the report, CIA agents were in direct contact with AM-LASH and one senior agency official told him in October 1963, that he was the personal representative of the President's brother, then Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The report noted that "various reports received by the CIA during the fall of 1963 contained information which should have raised questions about the operation's security."

'Butler mum about trial' says former prisonmate

By LARRY PERL
Assoc. Features Editor

CEDAR RAPIDS — A former prisonmate of codefendant Darelle Butler testified Wednesday that he never heard Butler speak to anyone about the Pine Ridge murder trial.

John Wirtz, who was incarcerated in the same cell as Butler, was the second witness called by the defense to rebut previous testimony by the prosecution by James Harper, another prisonmate of Butler and Wirtz last May in the Linn County jail.

Harper had testified last Friday that Butler had told him he (Butler) had "wasted" two FBI agents shot to death last summer.

But Wirtz said he overheard several conversations between Butler and Harper, and Butler only showed Harper some legal papers concerning the trial.

Butler and Robert Robideau are charged with taking part in the June 26, 1975 shooting deaths of FBI agents Jack Coler and Ronald Williams on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota.

If field's right, could be jobs

CHICAGO (AP) — This spring's college graduates are having an easier time finding jobs in the nation's big corporations than did 1975 graduates, Northwestern University's Endicott Report said Wednesday.

The report showed the hiring plans of corporations are up from the recession levels of last year to about what they were in 1974. However, the report cautioned that liberal arts graduates still will find the job hunting tough and that many companies feel graduates are studying the wrong fields.

Wirtz said that when Harper was first incarcerated in the cell block, he (Harper) asked other prisoners why they had been incarcerated.

Butler mistrusted Harper, Wirtz said. "He didn't like Harper coming in and prying into other people's business."

He also said, "When (Butler) first came in, he was guarded. He said he'd rather not talk about this case because his lawyers had advised him not to."

Wirtz said Butler "opened up some later," but not about the trial. "We talked a lot about our childhoods and about wildlife. We played a lot of chess together."

At one point during late May, Wirtz said, Butler had in his possession some legal papers concerning the trial. Harper appeared interested in the contents of the papers, and Butler showed Harper the papers, but didn't discuss the trial, Wirtz said.

"Darelle said he wasn't willing to talk about the trial with anyone," Wirtz said. Wirtz said the cellblock was small enough so that one could hear most conversations. He also testified he spent a great deal of time with Butler, because they were incarcerated in the same cell.

"At night the cell block was locked, so it was just the two of us together in the cell," he said. "And all the time we spent talking together and playing cards, the likelihood is slim (that there were conversations between Butler and Harper that he didn't hear)."

Under cross-examination by U.S. Atty. Evan Hultman, Wirtz said he had a conversation with Harper in the shower room at the end of the cell block, during which he and Harper discussed the possibility of escaping from the jail.

Hultman then asked, "You went to a specific place to carry on this conversation, isn't that correct?"

Wirtz replied, "Yes." Hultman said, "So if (Butler and Harper) wanted to have a conversation by themselves, they could, isn't that correct?"

Wirtz said, "I guess so." Hultman said, "So it's obvious you had conversations that others on the cell block didn't hear."

Wirtz replied others might have heard the conversation, but that he didn't know. James Yeater, another inmate incarcerated in the cell block last May, had testified Tuesday he overheard several conversations between Butler and Harper. Butler had said nothing about the trial during these conversations, but had shown Harper the legal papers, Yeater said.

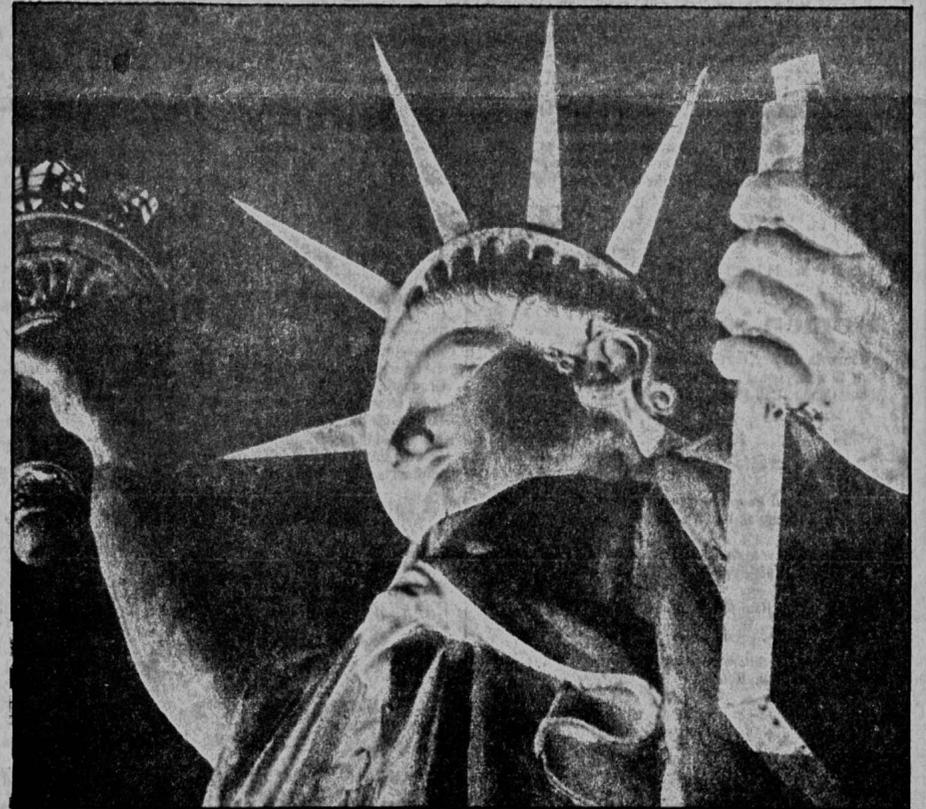

The defense also called Stan Chapman, an FBI agent from Cedar Rapids. Chapman testified he went to see Harper about matters unrelated to the Pine Ridge trial, but during his interview with Harper, Harper mentioned reading the legal papers in Butler's possession.

Harper was being held in the Linn County jail after having escaped from prison in Brownsville, Tex. Chapman went to see Harper to enlist Harper's help in prosecuting sheriff's deputies in Texas who allegedly helped Harper escape. Harper told Chapman he didn't want to go back to Texas, fearing he would be killed and asked Chapman about the possibility of fighting his (Harper's) extradition to Texas.

During the interview, according to Chapman, "Harper said something to the effect that it was a bad thing that those FBI agents were killed. Then he said he and Butler had been talking to each other, and he'd been reading some papers Butler had."

Chapman said he later called FBI agent Ronald Biner, telling Biner that Harper had told him that he (Harper) had read the papers.

Biner later testified for the defense, confirming that Chapman had called him. Biner said he later interviewed Harper concerning the papers.

The Statue of Liberty, in New York harbor, was lighted Tuesday night, during a test in anticipation of the July 4 Bicentennial celebration. As Independence Day nears, the statue has become the focal point for much of the tourist activity.

U.S. veto

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States vetoed Angola's application for U.N. membership Wednesday because of the "continuing presence and apparent influence of Cuban troops" in the West African nation.

U.S. representative Albert W. Sherer Jr., sitting in for Ambassador William W. Scranton who is on an African tour, cast America's 15th Security Council veto.

The other council members — Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Panama, Sweden, Pakistan, Benin, Guyana, Libya, Romania, the Soviet Union and Tanzania — voted for membership.

The United States and China are the only council members that have not recognized the Popular Movement government in Angola.

The U.S. veto was its third this year and 15th since 1970. The Soviet Union has used the veto 110 times in the Security Council, the last time in 1974.

Air crash

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — An Allegheny Airlines DC9 jet attempting to land in heavy winds and rain crashed and broke in half at Philadelphia International Airport Wednesday. There were injuries but no known fatalities, said airport spokesman Bill Malone.

The twin-jet airliner was Flight 121, carrying 99 passengers and four crew members from Providence, R.I., and the Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks, Conn., bound for Memphis, Tenn.

Sludge

NEW YORK (AP) — Raw sewage and other noxious debris sitting off Long Island for years may suddenly have been washed ashore by a peculiar combination of wind and tide, forcing the closing of 70 miles of beach that are the playground for New York City's millions, one environmental official said Tuesday.

The island's multimillion-dollar tourist and recreation industry faced the prospect of financial troubles, with most ocean beaches closed as the July 4 holiday neared. And the shellfish industry was endangered by the week-long invasion of the creeping sludge.

Busing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will submit to Congress on Thursday his proposed legislation to limit busing as a means of desegregating public schools.

A White House spokesman said Wednesday that at 11:30 a.m. EDT Ford will sign a message which will accompany the measure to Capitol Hill.

A half-hour before that he will outline his proposals for Democratic congressional leaders.

On Tuesday the President discussed the measure with Republican congressional leaders. House GOP leader John Rhodes said the proposal will contain some restriction on how long busing can be used in communities which try to desegregate classrooms.

No bucks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Election Commission determined Wednesday that nine presidential candidates will get no more federal matching money except to pay campaign debts incurred before they bowed out of the nomination races.

The FEC said the candidates could appeal the finding.

The group includes Rep. Morris K. Udall, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, Gov. George C. Wallace and Sen. Frank Church, four of the last five major chasers of Jimmy Carter, the apparent Democratic nominee.

The only candidates still considered active for matching funds purposes are Carter, President Ford, Ronald Reagan and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Federal law provides that a person can get no more money for new debts if he or she is no longer an active presidential candidate in more than one state.

'Tony Pro'

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Two New Jersey Teamsters bosses, both linked to organized crime and the investigation of Jimmy Hoffa's disappearance, have been indicted on charges they helped kidnap and kill another Teamsters official in 1961, the FBI announced Wednesday.

Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, 59, secretary treasurer of Local 560 in Union City, N.J., and Salvatore Briguglio, 46, the business agent for the 13,000-member local of the Teamsters Union, were charged along with two other men in the murder of Anthony "Three Fingers Brown" Castellito.

Castellito was secretary treasurer of Local 560 when he disappeared.

New bus-exchange proposed

By DAVE HEMINGWAY
Staff Writer

A proposal to eliminate the current central bus exchange at the intersection of Washington and Clinton streets was heard by the Iowa City Council Wednesday night.

Steve Morris, superintendent of Iowa City's transit system, presented the proposal which suggests that Washington Street along the UI Pentecost be closed to through traffic and developed into a new central bus exchange.

Currently the Iowa City bus exchange centers around the intersection of Clinton and Washington streets. The buses load and unload passengers at stops around the southeast corner of the Pentecost, in front of businesses directly east of the Pentecost and to the north of the Iowa State Bank and Trust Company building.

The proposed system would improve the safety and scheduling of bus exchanges, Morris said.

Under the current system, bus-users often have to cross the intersection of Washington and Clinton streets which is regulated only by stop signs, he said.

The proposal would call for the closure of Washington Street west of Clinton Street to Madison Street. Lanes for use only by buses would be constructed, as well as a special lane for emergency vehicles. Areas for bicyclists would also be incorporated into the design, Morris said.

The proposal was made at a meeting called to continue the council's review and updating of the city's urban renewal plan, after the urban renewal project was halted by a May 4 district court ruling.

Partly as a result of the bus exchange proposal, council review of the plan's objectives relating specifically to urban renewal land purchased by the UI was postponed until after the city's staff has a chance to meet with UI officials and discuss the UI's plans for its urban renewal land.

The council said that it would be important to know what the UI planned to have on the urban renewal land it owns that borders the proposed bus exchange.

Councilor Carol deProse said that the closing off of car traffic to the street segment should be studied in relation to the effect this would have on what the UI installs on this land.

The court ruling stopped the sale of about 11 acres of urban renewal land to Old Capitol Associates, the firm contracted to re-develop the land.

The question arose Wednesday as to what changes could be made in the overall urban renewal program without the approval of the UI, whose property obtained under urban renewal was not affected by the court ruling.

Paul Glaves, a member of the city's urban renewal staff, said that he would look into the question and report back to the council.

Police beat

A 22-year-old Perry man was electrocuted early Wednesday while working at the scene of a train derailment near Homestead.

Authorities said William Burkert, an employee of Hulcher Emergency Service, Inc., was hooking up floodlights to a gas generator when a 125-volt cable came into contact with his chest.

The Hulcher firm was cleaning up the wreckage of a seven-car train derailment on the Rock Island Line.

No other leads have been uncovered in the case, authorities said.

Two Iowa City men were hospitalized Wednesday following a morning collision between a mowing tractor and a pickup truck on a county gravel road northeast of Solon.

According to the Iowa Highway Patrol the accident occurred when the truck, driven by 25-year-old Kevin Shay, D.I., crested a hill going west and struck the tractor, driven by Kirk Wilcox, 22, of 840 S. Summit St. from the rear.

The get-away car believed to have been used in Monday's stick-up of the Crawfordville People's Savings Bank has been located by the Washington County Sheriff's office.

The 1968 blue Camaro was found in a gully in the Fern Cliff resort area about 12 miles northwest of Crawfordville.

The only description of the two thieves, who authorities said netted about $12,000 in the hold-up, was that they appeared to be 20-25 years old and that one had shoulder-length hair while the other had a beard. The bandits reportedly wore ski

Wilcox was mowing the north siding of the road at the time. Both vehicles rolled into a ditch on the north side of the road upon impact, authorities said.

Wilcox was taken to UI Hospitals, where he was treated and released for multiple bruises and abrasions. A passenger in the Shay vehicle, Joel Emde, 19, of 2803 Wayne St. was taken to Mercy Hospital where he was listed in good condition Wednesday night.

Shay was charged with failure to stop within a clear distance in connection with the accident.

9,000 enrolled at UI

Enrollment in the current UI summer session totals 9,066, according to the official headcount reported by Registrar W.A. Cox. The session opened June 2 and closes July 23.

Enrollment is made of 4,883 men and 4,173 women. By college, the figures are: Business Administration, 345; Engineering, 130; Graduate, 3,884; Liberal Arts, 3,445; Medicine, 806; Nursing, 215; Pharmacy, 29. Included in the totals are 449 students in the College of Education teacher education program.

Cox said this year's total includes 379 students in Saturday and evening classes, which are being offered for the first time in a summer session.

Medical field receptive to PAs

By MARY SCHNACK
Staff Writer

The job market today is tough for many people, but for the 47 UI students enrolled in the Physician's Assistant (PA) program at the UI, there is little worry about what comes after graduation.

PA is a new profession that few people know about but which is becoming much more common. A PA can find work in a hospital or a clinic, or more commonly in a private physician's office.

The PA position was created to fill a need in this country for primary medical care, according to Libby Coyte, a second year student in the program. "We don't replace physicians, we augment them," she said. "The program is so new a PA has a lot of room and is pretty unlimited."

The UI has sponsored the program for five years. It is a two-year program that begins June 1, and the first seven months are primarily spent in basic science courses with no patient work.

In January the students begin an introduction to clinical medicine and are introduced to the different departments of the hospital. During the period the main emphasis is put on how to write a good history of a patient and how to conduct a physical examination. The future PAs also learn during this period how to interview different types of patients.

Second year students begin June 1 with clinical rotations that are divided into six-week periods throughout the last year. Each period is spent in a different department in a hospital, clinic or physician's office, and it is recommended that at least 80 per cent of the clinical rotation is spent in facilities outside the Iowa City area. Eight 6-week periods are assigned to the students, and students also have eight weeks of electives.

The first year class presently consists of 22 students and the second year class has 25. Coyte said the mean age of her class is 26 and that most of them have bachelor's degrees, although only 60 hours of college study is required.

Coyte said Iowa residents and people with medical experience are the preferred applicants of the approximately 120-170 that apply each year. One-third of the second-year class is women, and the first year class is half and half.

"Technically we (PAs) can't diagnose," Coyte said, "but we can give a 'clinical impression,' which is basically the same thing." PAs also can't prescribe drugs.

"Physicians can see more patients and spend more time with medical problems," Coyte added. "PAs can spend more time with patients, which is important, and may help cut down on malpractice suits because PAs can keep the patients happier."

Coyte said there are no plans for expanding the Iowa program because it is geared for "the need for (PAs) in the state," Coyte said. The program is a division of the College of Medicine, and the clinical rotation is a sequel to the third year medical student rotation, Coyte said.

PAs can take a national board exam which, according to law, does not have to be passed, Coyte said. However, most physicians prefer board-certified PAs, she added. The UI was ranked fourth in the country on board scores in 1974 and did "quite well" in 1975, Coyte said.

PAs are sometimes poorly accepted by the nursing profession, Coyte said, because they "consider us an encroachment on their profession." Coyte said it was helpful to be in clinical rotation with medical students because, "Now they're (medical students) more aware of what I can do, they're more willing to hire PAs when they get out. They can do some things in rotation that I can't, but at least I'm aware of what they're doing and I'm not."

There are close to 3,000 PA graduates nationwide, Coyte said, and 50 are presently working in Iowa.

Campaign in Lebanon

This week we have once again witnessed the capacity of Republican infighting for the presidential nomination to affect the foreign policy decisions of the current administration.

The United States launched a massive evacuation of American citizens from Lebanon, not at a time when the fighting posed a threat to their safety, but on the date of the vital Republican convention in Iowa. Gerald Ford, who lacks the style, wit and charisma necessary to make personal appearances effective opted instead to project an image of decisiveness in the face of an emergency, conducting an all-night vigil to oversee the evacuation operation.

The supposed emergency was the slaying of U.S. Ambassador Francis Meloy Jr. and economic counselor Robert Waring as they attempted to attend a meeting with Lebanese leaders.

But the entire scene was pathetic. The United States attempting belatedly to influence a situation long out of control; offering no prospect of an early or easy solution; arranging safe passage for the diplomats with war commanders whose most notable characteristic has been an inability to control the actions of their "soldiers" in the field; calling the killings in the middle of the battleground a serious provocation and a threat to all American officials in Lebanon — the American actions more closely resembled the stumblings of Elmer Fudd dealing with Bugs Bunny than the considered diplomatic actions of an international power.

Some of the evacuees had no doubts about the motivations for the operation. "I think we have Ronald Reagan more to thank than President Ford," one said. Many other Americans who had an opportunity to flee simply chose to remain.

Certainly the Lebanese civil war is a dangerous and explosive situation. In fact, it is only one of several trouble spots where U.S. interests may be at stake. But this fact, coupled with a realization of the poor logic and political motivation of the American performance in this situation, is perhaps the best argument for the development of an electoral system that insulates the national government from the irrational energy and short-range expedience of election campaigns. A national preference primary and a strict limitation of the length of campaigns are just two proposals which are worthy of consideration.

USSR: making progress on its own

By ERWIN MARQUIT

Reprinted from the University of Minnesota Daily.

In an article (Daily, May 10) John Bridgman asserted that the USSR is facing economic disaster.

It is strange that such projections come at a time when the economies of socialist countries are moving steadily forward and living standards of their populations are rising in systems free from unemployment, poverty, business cycles and runaway inflation.

Imperialism and the ideologists that serve it still direct their main attack against socialism and Soviet Union, because of the central role that the Soviet Union's economic and military strength plays in frustrating attempts to keep the peoples of the Third World in neo-colonial and colonial bondage.

It is therefore all the more important to be informed on what the true situation is regarding the so-called "floundering" Soviet economy.

According to Bridgman, "The new Soviet five-year plan commits it to large-scale imports of 'capital' from the West. But in face of a worsening agricultural situation and an already over-extended debt, the future is grim for the Soviet Union."

Bridgman asserts further that Soviet military spending, which he pegs at 20 per cent of its Gross National Product (GNP), bears much of the blame. Bridgman's assertion that the USSR spends 20 per cent of its GNP on the military exceeds even the CIA estimate of 10 to 15 per cent or $90 billion to $135 billion. In an article in the magazine Foreign Policy (Spring 1976), Congressman Les Aspin, D-Wis., criticized sharply the method used to calculate Soviet military spending.

Aspin wrote: "Starting from observed Soviet defense activity ... analysts calculate the cost of buying ... the Soviet defense establishment in the United States at U.S. prices."

"By computing Soviet manpower costs at U.S. rates, one discovered a huge Soviet defense manpower budget of over $50 billion that exists only in American documents. Using this methodology the largest single reason that Soviet defense spending exceeds our own has been the American decision to switch to an all-volunteer Army and to pay its servicemen civilian-level wages."

The Soviet government states that in 1974 its defense spending was 17.7 billion rubles ($23 billion). That amounts to 3 per cent of its GNP or 5 per cent of its national income. How reliable is this figure?

It is interesting to note that Aspin reported: "According to the best estimate available, real Soviet defense spending has increased at an average of 2.7 per cent a year over the decade 1964-1974." (The New York Times disclosed on March 11 that this figure was supplied to Aspin by the Ford administration.)

The Soviet Union reports its defense budget as 12.8 billion rubles for 1965 and 17.7 billion rubles for 1974, which represents an annual increase of 3.3 per cent, close to the administration figure. One should bear in mind that Soviet servicemen are draftees (except for officers) and do not receive anything like civilian pay, nor does its defense establishment operate on a profit basis.

If one takes into account the lower wage rates, calculated in dollars, compared to the United States and the generally lower level of military production, the figure of $23 billion is not at all unreasonable.

It is also interesting to note that according to the Soviet budget, annual defense appropriations have remained essentially unchanged during the last five-year plan and consequently constitute a decreasing percentage of the Soviet GNP in view of the steadily expanding economy.

Let us now look at Bridgman's assertion that the Soviet economy is threatened with disaster because foreign credit sources are drying up.

The Soviet Union sets aside 25 per cent of its national income for the expansion of its productive assets and about 4.5 per cent for productive assets and about 4.5 per cent for housing construction. This totaled 106 billion rubles in 1975. In the five-year plan for the years 1976-80 the planned increase in national income is 27 per cent, or 330 billion rubles, when summed over the five years.

If, as has been the case during previous five-year plans, 25 per cent of this increase is to be used to expand productive assets and if the share devoted to housing continues at the same level (as has already been planned), then 97 billion rubles will be available for investment just from the increase in national income.

When added to the 1975 level of fixed assets accumulation (106 billion rubles, as indicated above), the total increase in capital assets for the coming five years should be 627 billion rubles — close to Soviet party leader Leonid Brezhnev's recent projection of 630 billion rubles as the amount needed to attain the planned level of national income by 1980.

Thus it is clear that Soviet economic expansion is based on resources available within the Soviet economy and not on foreign credits, which it treats as so much gravy. In dollar terms Soviet investment will amount to $630 billion during the next five years. The $10 billion the USSR is reported to be seeking in credits from the United States amounts to only 1.3 per cent of the total planned investments and in no case can it be asserted that the failure to attain such credits threatens the Soviet economy with — in Bridgman's words — "a possible massive disaster with frightening implications."

...Bridgman states that the average Russian who lived in a hovel after World War II "is now 30 years later living only marginally better." The truth of the matter is not only that real wages are three times those of 1950 (statistics which are borne out by the volume of consumer goods purchased), but during the last 20 years 200 million people moved into new housing (current population of the USSR is 255 million).

Is there a capitalist country in the world where all farmers, as well as workers, receive paid vacations, sickness payments and old age and disability payments?

Projections for the future follow a similar pattern. In his speech to the recent Soviet Communist Party Congress, Brezhnev indicated that the forthcoming 15-year perspective plan will envisage a doubling of the material and financial resources of the country.

The current five-year plan provides for a 24-26 per cent growth in national assets, which is to lead to a 20-22 per cent rise in the real per capita income. With essentially the same assets growth rate foreseen for the following 10 years (1981-90), the standard of living will double over the present level, just as it doubled during the past 15 years....

Apartheid repression

To the Editor:

The outrageous crimes perpetrated upon the black people in Johannesburg, Pretoria and other South African cities in recent days should be the cause of unanimous protest by all progressive-thinking Americans. This slaughter of hundreds of persons is a new chapter in the history of repression dealt by the apartheid regime fascist South Africa.

The U.S. news media have used such terms as "race riots" to distort the reality of the current crisis in the struggle for black liberation against the Vorster regime. Such terms, used by the Associated Press and published in The Daily Iowan, conjure up images of unprincipled, mindless masses lashing out in hatred at persons of another color. But what people should be aware of is that the recent demonstrations so viciously repressed by the racists are highly principled. The Vorster regime has seen the handwriting on the wall; the days of white supremacy in Africa are numbered. But just like a rattlesnake that has been backed into a corner, Vorster is beginning to coil and, rattling his threats of war, is imposing increasingly repressive measures upon the black majority in his own country that he may strike at the advances of black liberation elsewhere.

In the face of rising determination of the black majority, the Vorster regime is imposing more stringent internal passport measures, attempting to crush the rapidly organizing labor movement, and now requires the mandatory instruction of the Afrikaans language in all schools. Progressive-thinking citizens of this country have an obligation to express our solidarity with struggling masses of South Africa in their just struggle for equality in all areas of life. We must not be confused by the somewhat misleading coverage of recent events on that continent. The demonstrations heroically organized throughout South Africa are the just response of rising millions to the intolerable genocide being waged against them. The blood is on the hands of the Vorster regime. The "race riot" element, if there is one, is to be found in the action of the police who fired point blank into crowds of demonstrators. One must ask, if

The Jews at Auschwitz had resisted the actions of the Nazi butchers would this, too, be termed by the AP a "race riot?"

The very least we can do is to mount a campaign immediately to demand that President Gerald Ford cancel his planned meeting with Prime Minister (sic) Vorster due to take place in Washington this week. I hope that the DI will take such a position editorially. We cannot allow any actions by the U.S. government which would give an American stamp of approval to the recent murders of our brothers and sisters in South Africa.

Furthermore, the questions of U.S. support of the Vorster regime must become an issue in this election year. Every candidate should be pressed for his/her stand on this question and the facts of U.S. collaboration must be brought out into the open.

Ex-cons' problems

To the Editor:

...I am trying to tell people about the problems in the life of an ex-con.

People in general don't want to help these guys (and girls). They don't want to trust these people with jobs because they consider us as lazy people who cannot be put in a position of trust.

I received a paper from Gov. Robert Ray last July 10, 1975, guaranteeing that my full rights and citizenship would be restored under the Iowa and U.S. Constitutions.

People ask why so many of us go back to prison after our sentence is completed. It is because we cannot get jobs to support our families. People in these United States should try to lose some of their prejudice. We (the ex-cons) are trying to forget a bad time in our lives. But people in general won't let us. So what should we do?

Are we supposed to go on and break the laws of Iowa and of the United States? No, we are supposed to become productive citizens once more. But how can we, if no one will give us the chance?

Gay commemoration

To the Editor:

This week is National Gay Pride Week, commemorating the Stonewall Riots which happened June 27, 1969, sparking the recent Gay Liberation Movement. It was at the Stonewall Inn, then a gay bar on Christopher Street in New York, that police invaded the premises one evening attempting to make their usual number of arrests on trumped-up "lewd and lascivious conduct" charges. Instead of submissively complying, as did other gays in New York at the time, the patrons resisted, locked the police in the bar and were about to set it afire when squad cars arrived. A week of rioting ensued, with the formation of gay organizations. Gay organizations, businesses, clubs and publications have since proliferated across the country.

The year following the riot the Christopher Street Liberation Day Committee was formed. It planned a week of activities leading up to a parade through the heart of New York on June 27.

"We didn't know if anyone would join us the first year," said one organizer. "Would the shop people, tellers, secretaries and construction workers join us? Would they dare to step out in the sunlight for all of New York to see?"

The parade began with a mere 300 people. By the time they reached Central Park and turned to look — 40,000 people had joined. Last year's New York parade attracted 80,000 participants. Similar activities are happening in all the major cities this week.

So wishing a very "Happy Birthday Gay America," we sail for Chicago this week to celebrate with our brothers and sisters from across the midwest.

Another black-white showdown looms for Boston schools

By SHELLY COHEN
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston School Committee, stripped of much of its power by a federal court desegregation order, now is fighting for its life before another judge of that court.

Black voters in Boston claim they have been excluded from "meaningful participation" in the election of school committee members because the city's white majority has more votes.

They are challenging the at-large election of the school committee, contending that the bitter black vs. white atmosphere in the city makes it impossible for a black to be elected in a citywide contest.

No black candidate has ever been elected to the committee since it went to at-large elections in 1906. Blacks make up nearly 20 per cent of the city's population of some 641,000 but black students make up about 42 per cent of the public school system.

The nine black voters who brought the class action suit against the committee — which took 10 weeks of hearings in U.S. District Court — want the court to declare the at-large election system unconstitutional.

The action would not be unprecedented. Federal courts already have struck down at-large elections in a number of southern cities and most recently in Cairo, Ill.

The legal question hinges not on whether at-large elections are inherently discriminatory, but on whether in Boston, a city torn by racial tensions over forced busing, a black could ever be elected.

"Heightened racial tension in general has so infected Boston politics that black candidates or their supporters lived in fear of physical attacks in white areas as they faced the task of running citywide," lawyers for the black voters said in their brief.

Robert Dinsmore, a lawyer representing two Boston City Council members who entered the case, countered that there's more to winning an election than race.

"Politics is like poetry; it's difficult to come up with a winning combination," said Dinsmore, who recently announced his own bid for the U.S. Senate on an anti-busing platform.

At-large elections became popular at the turn of the century as a "reform" measure. Ironically they also were used to dilute the voting power of the growing number of Irish immigrants in those days when "no Irish need apply" still appeared in employment ads.

Now four of the committee's five members are of Irish descent.

Roger Rice of Harvard's Center for Law and Education, whose attorneys represent the black voters as they do the black parents in the better known school desegregation case, said it makes little difference that some current committee members are perceived as "moderates."

For the plaintiffs, Harvard University government Prof. Gary R. Orren testified that racial polarization in the city "swelled" between 1961 and 1963 and continued to grow during each election that followed.

Orren also disputed the popular notion that blacks lose because they do not register or vote in sufficient numbers to elect candidates.

Had blacks participated at the same rate as whites in a 1974 referendum to abolish at-large committee elections, and had that entire black vote been cast for abolition, the proposal still would have lost, Orren told the court.

In similar cases the U.S. Supreme Court has zeroed in on the issue of vote dilution, whether a minority is underrepresented because its votes are scattered by at-large elections.

In a case cited by the plaintiffs, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago upheld black plaintiffs who challenged the at-large election of the Cairo, Ill., City Council. Although Cairo had a 1970 population of only 6,227, the appeals court found that its elections were subject to unconstitutional vote dilution.

A finding against the Boston School Committee could lead to a similar challenge of the City Council, also elected at large. In this century only one black candidate has been elected to the council, in 1949 when election was by districts.

He was illegally prevented from taking his seat, and in the two years it took him to win vindication in the courts, the council switched to at-large elections.

And despite the overwhelming rejection in the 1974 referendum of the proposal to abolish the Boston School Committee in favor of elected community districts, efforts are still under way to do away with the committee or change its election system.

Meanwhile, the court took the case brought by the blacks under advisement June 14 and asked both sides to present legal briefs by July 5.

Connors continues mastery over Wimbledon opponents

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors reached the fourth round of the Wimbledon tennis tournament Wednesday—still without dropping a set—and was a round ahead of all his rivals.

The volatile left-hander from Belleville, Ill., hit his way past Ismael el Shafel of Egypt 6-4 6-0 6-3.

More than 36,000 people thronged the grounds of the All-England Club in sweltering heat. It was a day of no major upsets but a lot of close calls.

Three seeded players—John Newcombe of Australia, Brian Gottfried of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Jaime Fillol of Chile—all wriggled out of difficult

Feaver, a big-hitting young man of 23, raised the hopes of the fans who sat boiling around No. 2 court by hitting a stream of aces. In the third set he aceed Newcombe five times in two service games, and then unleashed two more aces in a tiebreaker to lead by two sets to one.

Newcombe, a shade slower in his movements than when he last won Wimbledon in 1971, had to use all his professional guile to get out of a tight situation. He angled his shots cleverly, and Feaver failed with vital volleys and saw his dream slip away.

Gottfried, seeded No. 14, also trailed by two sets to one but came back to beat John An-drills of Santa Monica, Calif., 8-6 8-9 2-6 6-4 6-2.

Both men went for winners and there were frequent service breaks. In the fourth set, Andrews trailed 0-2, came back to 2-2, but then faded against Gottfried's serve-and-volley game.

Fillol, the No. 13 seed, took four hours—Tuesday night and Wednesday—to defeat Ross Case of Australia 8-9 6-4 6-8 9-8 6-2. The fourth set was even at 8-8 when the match was halted by darkness Tuesday night, with Fillol protesting he could not see the balls.

situations before going through to the third round.

The fans jammed the center court for the Connors-el Shafel match. It was easy for Connors in the end, but the muscular Egyptian left-hander gave him a lot to worry about at first—three aces in his first service game and two more in his next.

El Shafel's challenge died at 4-4 in the first set, and from that point Connors won nine games in a row.

Newcombe, 32, three times Wimbledon champion, trailed by two sets to one before coming back to defeat John Feaver of Britain 6-3 3-6 8-6 6-4.

San Diego riding high on Jones' slow sinker

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Randy Jones suffered the price of his success Wednesday. He looked bleary-eyed.

"I always have trouble sleeping after a win," said Jones, who won his 13th game of the season for San Diego Tuesday night and pitched the Padres into second place in the National League West. The Padres also are having trouble getting adjusted to success. Fans who never regarded the team as a contender for anything are coming out by the thousands.

And, don't laugh, one national sports magazine has reserved 100 double rooms here for the World Series weekend of Oct. 15-17. In his 4-2 triumph over the San Francisco Giants, the curly-haired Jones managed to tie the Christy Mathewson's 63-year-old National League record for 68 consecutive innings without a walk.

The streak ended when Jones gave a free pass to Giants catcher Marc Hill leading off the eighth. The count was 3-2 and Jones delivered two more strikes which were fouled off before he missed.

"It's kind of disappointing to go that long and then walk a guy," he said, "but what bothered me was getting behind by missing low with a sinker."

"I guess I just got too excited." Jones, who has lost three games, was four victories ahead of any other major league pitcher in the win column Wednesday.

And his Padres were a club record-high seven games over the .500 mark with 36 wins, 29 losses.

How did the turnaround in San Diego's once-laughable venture into big-time baseball occur?

Manager John McNamara, who was hired in 1974, said that "for the past two years, we've stressed execution and concentration. Now we want to add intensity. We're going to attack."

The weapons include excellent fielding and some sturdy young hitters. And McNamara likes to think his outfield combination of Johnny Grubb, Willie Davis and Dave Winfield is about the best around.

But a potent threat is Jones' deceptively slow sinker ball which falls four to eight inches.

Explains pitching coach Roger Craig: "It isn't so much how it sinks as when it sinks. It sinks late. It looks good on top of the plate and then sinks under the bat after the batter's committed himself."

Ali-Inoki ink new pact; now it's winner-take-all

TOKYO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali and wrestler Antonio Inoki signed an agreement Wednesday declaring their "world martial arts championship" a winner-take-all affair. Sponsors have said the combined purse of the fighters was supposed to be about $10 million.

The latest development in the unusual contest—scheduled for Saturday here and seen live on closed circuit television in the United States Friday night—came at the regular contract signing, staged at a $175-a-plate dinner at the hotel where Ali is staying.

In the midst of the ceremony, and over the shouts of a belligerent Ali, the interpreter for Inoki said the Japanese wrestler proposed making the match winner-take-all.

"Do you agree?" he asked Ali.

"Yes, I agree, yes, yes," Ali shot back.

After that an agreement was signed by Ali and Inoki saying that "notwithstanding the contract and agreements concluded...it is hereby understood and agreed mutually that the winner of the fight shall receive all the prize winnings...and any other revenues accruing from the fight that under the fore-mentioned contract and agreements were to have been distributed to both fighters."

The agreement was witnessed by Daisuke Akita, vice speaker of Japan's House of Representatives.

Sponsors previously had said Ali would get $6.1 million for the fight and that Inoki might get up to $4 million.

Hawk wrestlers Yagla, Mysnyk qualify as Olympic alternates

By STEVE TRACY
Staff Writer

UI wrestling Olympic hopefuls had to settle for bridesmaids instead of the bride, but at least they'll get a look at the honeymoon suite in Montreal this July. Church Yagla and Mark Mysnyk, both members of the Hawkeyes' NCAA national championship team, will be travelling to Montreal as alternates in their respective weight divisions.

Yagla, who entered the Brockport N.Y. qualifying tournament seeded fifth, beat Joe Tice of the San Francisco Olympic Club 8-1 and 10-2 in the 149.5 pound division Sunday, but then fell to Marine Lt. Lloyd Keaser 7-5 and 5-3. Yagla will travel to Montreal as an alternate and hopes to gain some experience for the 1980 version of the Olympics. Yagla told the DI before the qualifying meet that, "The experience will be good even if I don't make it and then I'd really like to be ready by 1980."

Mysnyk, wrestling in the 144.5 pound category, fell to eventual champion Jim Haines of Wisconsin 11-1. Mysnyk will also be going to Montreal as an alternate.

Iowa City's Hawkeye Wrestling Club did produce one champion, however. Joe Corso, a former Purdue wrestler and now a member of the Hawkeye Club, upset 1972 Olympian Jimmie Carr, coming from behind twice to represent the U.S. in the 125.5 pound division. Corso pinned Carr in the first match and then won the berth with a 13-8 decision.

Larry Morgan, also a member of the Hawkeye Wrestling Club, will be going as an alternate in the 149.5 pound class. Morgan lost to Lt. Keaser in the finals, disqualified for passivity in the first match and then falling 5-1.

Ben Peterson, an Olympic gold medalist in 1972 and a former National Collegiate champion at Iowa, will represent the U.S. in the 198.5 pound weight class. Peterson won the berth with a 8-3 decision over Laurent Soucie of Milwaukee, Wis.

Nielsen embarks on golf career

By JOHN CLARK
Sports Editor

Lon Nielsen's father Paul was thumbing through his son's scrapbook the other night, reviewing the young career of one of the more outstanding golfers in UI history as well as in the annals of amateur golf in the state of Iowa, and noticed that at the halfway point of the 1975 NCAA golf tournament the UI junior was only three strokes behind another rising star in the golf world named Jerry Pate, who Sunday won perhaps the most prestigious golf tournament on the Professional Golfer's Association tour, the U.S. Open.

"It doesn't mean much," said the elder Nielsen, but it was obvious that there was a very proud father in Belle Plaine, Iowa, who was lending nothing but support to his son's latest decision to attempt to make the PGA tour.

"He's gonna find out," said Paul Nielsen, bluntly admitting that attempting to make the pro tour is a tenuous venture at best. "He's so close, he's playing so well, if he doesn't take a chance, he'll always wonder if he couldn't have made it."

Nielsen had a spectacular senior year at the UI, capping it off with a tie for tenth in the NCAA tournament in Albuquerque, four strokes ahead of any other golfer in the Big Ten, including members of the conference champion Ohio State Buckeyes.

"With nine holes to go he was only three strokes off the pace," said Paul Nielsen, who made the trip to New Mexico to see his son's final round of collegiate golf. "He really proved what he is capable of down there."

Until he heads to Texas next December to enter the PGA qualifying school, Nielsen will be working on improving his game and defending several of the amateur titles he won in Iowa last summer, including the Northwest Amateur, Tournament of Champions, Lake Creek Amateur and the State Amateur. In September Nielsen will be joining the Space Coast mini-tour in Florida for six weeks of tournaments, familiarizing himself with what it's like to play for money. Attempting to break into the PGA can be expensive, in most cases requiring financial support from an outside source for at least two years. However, according to Nielsen's father, Lon is close to finalizing an agreement, and putting your money on Lon Nielsen looks like a safe bet, especially from the vantage point of a certain father's scrapbook.

Mike Marshall to Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves obtained 1974 Cy Young Award winner Mike Marshall from the Los Angeles Dodgers Wednesday night and sold relief pitcher Elias Sosa and infielder Lee Lacy to the Dodgers.

Marshall, a veteran of nine big league seasons, pitched in 106 games for when the Dodgers won the National League pennant two years ago. He posted a 15-12 record that year with a 2.42 earned run average. Last season he pitched in 57 games with an ERA of 3.04. He has 117 saves during his big league career.

It was a straight waiver deal, not a trade, on Marshall for the $20,000 waiver price. In return, the Braves sold the contracts of Lacy and Sosa to the Dodgers.

BIJOU

Where's Poppa?

Segal is a New York lawyer whose main problem is his mother Ruth Gordon. Attempting to discourage her he tries scaring her in a gorilla suit. In between are other wild moments; his defense for a pacifist accused of shooting a general's toe, Gordon fondling his tush and policeman in a drag.

Wed 7:00, Thurs 9:00

The police investigation, headed by Inspector Grazzi (Yves Montand), concentrates on locating the compartment occupants. But as the suspects are found and questioned, the killer eliminates them. In an exciting ending, in which both the police and the murderer are after the two survivors, the suspense builds to a final, surprising plot twist.

PLAYING TONIGHT AT THE MILL RESTAURANT
ART ROSENBAUM

Art Rosenbaum is one of America's leading exponents of old-time instrumental music and singing. His performances range widely through Southern Mountain banjo breakdowns and songs, unaccompanied ballads from America and the British Isles, fiddle tunes from Appalachia, the Midwest, and Ireland, and guitar blues. His work is based on over twenty years of listening to, collecting, studying, writing on, and playing & singing traditional folk music.

Art has performed in the Cambridge (England) Festival, the Philadelphia Folk Festival, the Newport Folk Festival, and the Grinnell Green Grass Folk Festival, among others. In the summer of 1974 he was featured in the "American Banjo" concert at the Olympia Theater in Paris. Among his 1975 appearances were the Friends of Sing Out! Benefit at the Quiet Knight in Chicago, the Willamette Valley Folk Festival at the University of Oregon, and the Mariposa Folk Festival in Toronto.

He did some incidental work for Lalo Schiffrin's sound track for Cool Hand Luke, and has recorded for Folkways, Elektra, Meadowlands, and Kicking Mule labels.
