Youths kill IRA activist
Maire Drumm

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Three youths associa- ted with IRA political activist Maire Drumm as she lay in a hospital here were charged with her murder today.

Drumm, 20, a leader of the Political Research Group, was shot to death in the White House area of Belfast last night. She had been on a diet for the past four days to lose 6 pounds before the election. The shooting ended an incident that has been on the boil for two years in the White House area.

The riot police and IRA men were called to the scene after Drumm was found dead in her room. She had been shot three times in the head and chest.

A spokesman for the IRA said that Drumm had been a member of the political group for the past two years and had been active in the political wing of the movement.

Rancor marks Rhodesian talks

CARTAGENA, Colombia (AP) — The United States' efforts to end the civil war in Rhodesia took a new turn today as negotiators from both sides met for the first time.

The talks, which began this morning, are aimed at ending the civil war that has raged for more than a decade.

The U.S. delegation is led by Assistant Secretary of State Richard Stengel, who arrived here yesterday for the talks.

The Rhodesian delegation is headed by Prime Minister Ian Smith, who has rejected previous offers of peace talks.

The talks are expected to last several days, with both sides hoping to reach an agreement on a cease-fire and a political solution.

In the news briefly

Hijack

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — A Swiss-registered jetliner hijacked by Arab terrorists arrived here yesterday afternoon after the hijackers forced the plane to land at a remote airport in the Alps.

The passengers and crew were released without incident, and the hijackers fled.

The terrorists have not made any demands, but authorities are still trying to determine their motives.

The hijackers said they were acting in protest against the policies of the Israeli government.

They have threatened to release the hostages at any time, but police are not taking any chances.

The security forces are on high alert, and the area around the airport is being searched for any signs of the hijackers.

In the evening, the hijackers released the passengers and crew and surrendered to the police, who arrested them.

In Washington, D.C., Democratic President Jimmy Carter today announced that he would run for a second term in 1980. Carter said his decision was based on his belief that the country needs another term in office for a strong and effective leadership.

Carter, who is seeking his third term, said he was pleased with his record and the direction of the country.

But some Democrats have questioned the wisdom of seeking a third term, saying it would be a mistake to divide the party by running two candidates.

Carter said he had decided to run again because he believed the country needs another term in office for strong and effective leadership.

He said he had made his decision after careful consideration of the issues and the needs of the country.

Carter also said he had spoken with Vice President Walter Mondale, who has expressed strong reservations about running for re-election.

Mondale has said he would support Carter if he runs for a third term, but he has also said he would run if the Democratic Party nominated someone else.

Carter said he had taken his decision after careful consideration of the issues and the needs of the country.

Environment ignored

The two years student street was at its height, civil rights legislation and race riots in America's urban centers were proving a public attention toward the conditions of the nation's black population and the racism which had brought it to a boiling point. This wave of student protest outpaced on condition.

But now, in 1972, the same features of the same year. This was a time when the environment could be considered a topic of national concern, but it did not become a focus of political debate. The President and Congress had already taken some steps to address environmental issues, but the public's attention was largely focused on other matters.

We can conclude that in 1972, the environment was not a central issue in American politics. There were other pressing concerns, such as the Vietnam War, the economy, and civil rights, that commanded more attention. The environmental movement had yet to gain the momentum that it would later achieve in the 1970s and 1980s.

Happy days....

McCarthy alternative to the unacceptable

The candidates took the stage before a packed audience at the West Side pavilion of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago. They were running for the presidency of the United States, and their audience was composed of thousands of supporters. It was a raucous event, with enthusiastic cheers and jeers coming from the crowd. The candidates spoke passionately about their visions for America's future, but the atmosphere was tense and confrontational.

There was no shortage of controversy at the convention, with many delegates expressing their frustrations and grievances. Some were calling for the convention to unite behind a single candidate, while others were pushing for a more progressive agenda. The tension was palpable, and it was clear that the candidates knew they were up against a difficult challenge.

But even with all the challenges and obstacles, the candidates continued to push for their visions. They knew that the future of America was at stake, and they were determined to make their voices heard. In the end, the convention would choose between the two candidates, and it would be up to the American people to decide who would lead the country.

A house scene almost overwhelmed by a new 1100-foot Slopestyle Course built for the annual Snowmass Winter Classic at Snowmass, Colorado, West Germany. While most snowboarders are made of metal and wood, this one was made of steel and wood with aluminum plates pinned to it. The new tower, weighing 4880 pounds or 2000 lbs, looks menacing but it needed external wall for cooling, but was normal air which can be a found.

Enterprising youngsters offer prankster insurance policies

GENEVA, N.Y. (UPI) — Bronx lawyer of London descent Marianne Conlan's insurance practice. Marianne, a high school replacement and part-time insurance agent, and her parents are getting a bargain. The children's parents helped out with the policies and then the school insurance agency took off in the streets. Business has been brisk. The enterprising youngsters already have more than a half-dozen policies and have it in about 10 to 15 hours before the big night. Only a few people have turned down the offer.

The group is also in the running to throw a midfield football party for the neighborhood. Marianne and her friends have made plans to print grocery lists with the policies in it. But that effort is in progress, not replaced with the current bandwagon design.

Nets' owner nets support of sale

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) - New York Nets owner Lewis Katz, a man whom most fans believe is helping out the team with his money, was a surprise absentee from the owners meeting. Katz, who owns the New York Knicks and the New York Rangers, did not attend the meeting of the NBA's Board of Governors. Katz's absence came as a shock to the other owners, who had expected him to be there. Katz's decision to skip the meeting was made after the owners decided to vote on a new labor agreement. Katz had previously indicated that he would not support the new labor agreement, and his absence from the meeting has raised questions about his future involvement with the team. Katz is not expected to make any public statements about his decision to skip the meeting.

In other news, former NBA player Kareem Abdul-Jabbar has been named the new head coach of the Los Angeles Lakers. Abdul-Jabbar, who played for the Lakers from 1975 to 1989, replaces Mike D'Antoni, who was fired last month after leading the team to a 34-48 record. Abdul-Jabbar is expected to bring a new style of play to the Lakers, focusing on a fast-paced, up-tempo offense. The Lakers are currently 13-14 on the season and are in third place in the Western Conference.

The small of victory appears to be filling the Iowa City sky, as evidenced by the considerable number of red balls circled on the weather maps. The Iowa State baseball team could be in the hunt for a successful season if the team can continue to dominate during the regular season.

The UI women’s field hockey team will compete in the Iowa State Selection Tournament this Saturday at 10 a.m. The tournament is limited to 6 teams, and will consist of a round-robin format.

Iowa will compete in the tournament following a panel of selection officials who will watch and make a tentative decision for two teams to represent the Hawkeyes. The tournament is scheduled to take place at the University of Iowa Recreation Center and will continue until Thursday.

Iowa State will face the host team, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, at 11:30 a.m. The tournament will continue until Thursday.

The UI women’s field hockey team will make up of the top players from the national tournament, and will have the best team, Iowa, at 11 a.m. and 9 a.m. The two teams will begin at 9 a.m. and 11 a.m.

The two teams have won the promotion in the Association of Organizations and Departments for Women’s National Tournament.
