High noon for a split U.S.

By WALTER E. ROBERTS
AP Staff Writer

Amid campaign tumult, no one is likely to celebrate on Monday night the voting of the U.S. Senate. President Ford and his party in Congress are divided over the issue of the Union student clinic in the Union.

President Ford and his Senate allies have decided to support the clinic in the Union. The Senate has scheduled a vote on the issue for Monday night.

The clinic, located at 47 Union St., was established by the University of the South in 1970 to provide health care for students. It has been a controversial issue in recent months, with both sides citing religious objections.

The Senate vote is expected to be close, with senators from both parties expected to cast their votes. The outcome is uncertain, with some senators expressing uncertainty about their positions.

On the one hand, the clinic has been supported by many students and faculty members at the University of the South, who see it as an important resource for health care.

On the other hand, religious groups and some members of Congress have expressed concern about the clinic's operations and have called for its closure.

The Senate vote is likely to be closely watched by members of Congress and the public, as it will set a precedent for future legislative actions on similar issues.

The outcome of the Senate vote will have significant implications for the future of the clinic and for the broader debate over the role of religion in health care.

McCarthy affect Iowa vote

38 per cent of the eligible voters are in the polls by 5:15 p.m, and the overall prediction is that 60 to 65 per cent will vote by the time the polls close at 8 p.m. According to Alt, there will be a "real" turnout of about 75,000 for the printing and processing of the election.

"We've got momentum and we are running against the last week," said Parkin. "We are running against a low level turnout for three years. It's a significant issue."

"It is a significant issue to make sure our goals are met," said G. M. Mezvinsky, the son of the late presidential candidate. "It's a significant issue to make sure the vote is counted."
To prepare for urban renewal

City urged to begin repairs

The city's urban renewal coordinator, Harry McKeen, announced Monday that the City Council made a decision to drop all urban renewal contracts and void all agreements. The city's educational director,汞, said that the decision was made after a meeting with the city's educational director and representatives from all the city's educational districts.

"This is not a decision that was made lightly," Glave said. "It was made after careful consideration by the council and after discussions with all the educational districts in the city."

The decision was made after a meeting with the city's educational director and representatives from all the city's educational districts.

"The city's educational director has expressed concern about the future of education in the city," said Glave. "We have to look at the future of education in the city and make sure that the best possible decisions are made for the future of education in the city."

Voting: right or futile gesture?

The candidates last chance...

The philosophy king just isn't going to let that happen. The poor can't wait. Basically, McCarthy opposed both the Vietnam War and the McCarthy movement, understands. Isn't it about time we got rid of the poor and picked up the unemployed and the 26 million who works for an oil company one week and the federal agency that regulates the petroleum so it seems reasonable that we should do our part in the struggle for our future. But we ought to vote our hope for ourselves, not our fear of change. To vote that we can't afford. We can do no worse than Carter and Ford and McCarthy on the people-oriented, gut issues. In the past, McCarthy has been known as a liberal, he could cut the government in half. To vote that we can't stand. The candidates deserve our votes.

It's either Carter or 'four more years'.

Cobham, Duke — reflection of jazz perfection

By LARRY PERL

Amore, Pianist Efifor

The most noted achievement of Duke's blues-oriented, traditionally oriented band was reflected in its final performance at the Auditorium on Sunday night. The audience was heavily attracted to the rhythm and blues of the group, creating a tempo that matched the energetic music of the performers.

The audience responded well to the music, creating a vibrant atmosphere throughout the performance. The energy and enthusiasm of the audience were evident in the way they moved and responded to the music. The band's ability to engage with the audience was a testament to their skill and dedication.

The performance included a range of blues-oriented and blues-oriented music, with the audience responding well to each piece. The band's ability to adapt to different styles and genres was a significant factor in their success.

The performance was a testament to the band's musical talent and their ability to connect with the audience. The energy and enthusiasm of the audience were evident in the way they responded to the music, creating a vibrant atmosphere throughout the evening.

Tom Slockett

Democrat

On June 8 the Democrats of Johnson County indicated by a decisive margin that they want a change in the office of county auditor.

Now we are asking ALL VOTERS, Democrats, Independents, Republicans to vote for good government in the auditors office. Vote for Tom Slockett.

State overtime decision delayed

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — A study commission's recommendation that permits camera use in courtrooms in certain cases "makes no sense" and could be unconstitutional, a U.S. law professor said Wednesday.

Prof. Randall Bezanson said the commission's recommendation that permits television cameras, microphones and radio equipment, if approved by the legislature and the governor, could result in the sale of advance tickets on sale for first prize in $100.

Free agents for draft announced

The Daily Iowan needs two or three good draft picks if the 1983 football season is to be a success. The Daily Iowan needs a quarterback, three running backs and no wide receivers. P Rico Ross was a first string tailback, but he's a good athlete and a solid choice for the 1983 football team. Iowa tailback Schick off team

By JOHN TRACY

Dave Schick isn’t down and out. The senior Iowa tailback just suffered a hamstring injury in a practice on Tuesday. But he isn’t exactly feeling great.

"I really didn’t want to see this," Schick said. "I think my chances are probably not very good."

However, Schick’s injury isn’t as serious as it sounds. It occurred early in the practice, and Schick knew right away that something was wrong. He fell to the ground and immediately grabbed his hamstring.

"I made a move and fell," Schick said. "My hamstring just gave out."

Schick was taken to the locker room, where he underwent further evaluation. The trainers determined that he had suffered a mild tear of his hamstring.

"The trainers and I didn’t want to overreact," Schick said. "But we knew it was something serious."

Schick’s injury is a significant blow to the Hawkeyes, who already have a depleted backfield. Schick is the team’s leading rusher and a key player on special teams.

"We’re going to have to change our plans," coach Kirk Ferentz said. "We’re going to have to find someone else to fill Dave’s role."

Schick’s injury comes at a critical time for the Hawkeyes, who are preparing to face the Michigan Wolverines on Saturday.

"It’s a tough loss for our team," Ferentz said. "But we’ll find a way to overcome this setback."

Schick’s injury also has implications for the team’s future. If his hamstring doesn’t heal properly, Schick could miss the rest of the season.

"That’s the last thing we need," Ferentz said. "But we’ll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Schick’s absence will be felt in several ways. He is a tough runner who can break tackles and get positive yardage. He also has good vision and can find holes in the defense.

"He’s a big loss for us," Ferentz said. "But we’ll have to adapt and find a way to get the job done."
