Carter affirms support as Sorensen faces scrutiny

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- White House aides said yesterday that President Carter affirms his support for Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, who has been under attack since the Senate committee investigating the Iran-contra arms-for-hostages affair

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- White House aides said yesterday that President Carter affirms his support for Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal, who has been under attack since the Senate committee investigating the Iran-contra arms-for-hostages affair.

The tariff cuts and other policy initiatives that Carter has in mind to fulfill his campaign promises include reducing the income tax, introducing a tax on unearned income such as interest, dividends and capital gains and increasing the inheritance tax. He has also called for a cut in the corporate income tax and reform of the Social Security system to make it more self-supporting.

Gilmore pleased with fate

By BEVERLY GREE

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A legal battle has started over the fate of a man accused of attempting to kill a United States Supreme Court justice.

Leonard G. Abbott, 57, of Salt Lake City, was arrested last week after failing to appear in court for a hearing on his charges.

Abbott, who is a former police chief, is accused of attempted murder.

Abbott's attorney, John V. Brown, told the judge that his client had no intention of harming anyone and was only trying to protect himself.

The judge granted bail, setting a $10,000 bond for Abbott.

In the courts

A California couple filed a $75,000 suit against an Iowa hospital, alleging the hospital was at fault for a medical error.

The suit was filed by Donald R. Slade, 57, of Des Moines, on behalf of his wife, Brenda Slade, who was injured during a surgery at the hospital.

The suit claims the hospital was negligent in performing the surgery and that the negligence caused the injuries.

Slade is seeking $75,000 in damages.

Second lecture-note service offered by J. M. POWELL

Students who want to order lecture notes for this semester have a new service. The students' unions of Iowa City on the four universities voted this semester to request that lecture notes for their classes be printed.

The service is offered by the four unions - the University of Iowa, Grinnell College, the University of Northern Iowa, and Iowa State University. The service is available to all students, regardless of their major.

The lecture notes are produced by the university's own printing presses. The students pay a fee for the notes, which is used to defray the cost of printing and distribution.

The service is intended to help students who are unable to attend lectures, or who have missed them for other reasons. It is also a way for students to review material and prepare for exams.

The lecture notes are available for all courses, including those that are not currently offered. The service is expected to grow in popularity as more students take advantage of it.

New med school law 'concerns' regents

by B. B. WHITE

The state Board of Education on Friday will send a letter to the regents expressing their support for a recent federal legislation that affects the University of Iowa College of Medicine.

The legislation, which passed last year, allows medical schools to offer more courses in the sciences and humanities. The regents are considering whether to approve the legislation, and the university's president, R. N. Durrant, has expressed concern about the impact of the legislation on the university's academic programs.

The regents are also discussing a new law that would allow medical schools to offer courses in business, law, and accounting.

Foreign policy rests on dubious base

Probabilistically, the best-known instance was during the Cuban missile crisis. Washington played a crucial role in that situation, as it handled the crisis skillfully and quickly, and the outcome was, in the end, the resolution of the crisis with relative peace and stability. Therefore, if we assume that the probability of a similar outcome is high, we can conclude that the resolution of the crisis was, in fact, a positive outcome. However, this assumption is based on historical events and may not hold true in all circumstances. Therefore, we cannot rely solely on past events to predict future outcomes. We must also consider the current political climate, the actions of other nations, and other factors that may influence the outcome of such situations. Therefore, we must remain vigilant and prepared for any possible outcome.

Probably the most important issue is the role of diplomacy in resolving international conflicts. Diplomacy is the primary tool for resolving international disputes and preventing the outbreak of wars. It is essential to ensure that all parties involved in a conflict are represented and heard, and that their interests are taken into account. Therefore, we must continue to support and strengthen diplomatic efforts, and we must also ensure that our own diplomatic efforts are effective and efficient. In conclusion, foreign policy is a complex and challenging field, and we must remain vigilant and prepared for any possible outcome.

Iowa edges Illini; wrestlers stun OSU

Hawks escape, 84-81

By ROGER THORUP
Hawkeye Staff

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — William Mayfield had to labor—plunging for good basketball shots, and for scraps in the air. Upperclassmen were in the house for the start of the basketball season against Illinois. But something he didn’t expect was the dirty play on the end line of the court. He had to pick up a few fouls and a few technicals.

The Hawkeyes will be home for their next meet Wednesday, January 18th. The game will be at 7:30pm.

In Iowa City—The Dally Iowan—

Iowa guard Tom Norman uses his entire body in an effort to prevent Illinois’ sophomore guard Ken Lerner from scoring. The Hawkeye backcourt played a major role in Iowa’s 64-41 victory over the Fighting Illini, as six players combined for 40 points and picked up the scoring touch of injured Bruce King.

For the rest of contest Mayfield played like a demon to help win the meet.
