Hostage

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (UPI) — A сторняк approved a plan to allow the escape of the family members of two hostages held in a bank in this city, a police official said Wednesday.

The hostage-takers on Wednesday had released two of the three Americans being held in the bank.

Police Chief John Wilson said the hostages were released after the police had been told that the bank was not being used as a base for the hostage-takers.

Wilson said the police had been in contact with the hostage-takers for several hours prior to the release of the hostages.

Wilson said the police had been told that the hostage-takers were not planning to release the hostages until they had been in contact with the police for a period of time.

Wilson said the police were not aware of any specific demands made by the hostage-takers.

Wilson said the police had not been able to communicate with the hostage-takers since the hostages were released.

Wilson said the police were continuing to monitor the situation and would release any further information when the hostage-takers had been located.

Bargaining mediator hired

By DOROTHY WINTER

WASHINGTON — Bargaining mediator George Morehead has arrived at the State University of New York at Buffalo to begin mediation of a labor dispute involving faculty, staff and administration.

The faculty, represented by the SUNY Faculty Association, and the administration have been deadlocked for months over contract negotiations. Morehead has been hired to help resolve the dispute.

Morehead, who has mediated several labor disputes in the past, said he is confident that a resolution can be reached.

"I believe that with the help of a mediator, the parties can come to an agreement," Morehead said.

Morehead will work closely with both sides to find a solution to the impasse. He has already met with representatives of both the faculty and administration to discuss the issues at hand.

"We're working hard to find a way forward," Morehead said.

The faculty and administration have been at odds over issues such as compensation, benefits and working conditions. Morehead is optimistic that a resolution can be reached.

"I think we're close to finding a solution," Morehead said.

The faculty and administration have until the end of the month to reach an agreement. If they fail to do so, the dispute could lead to a strike.

"We're not ruling anything out," Morehead said.

What's tax to you

is income to them

Five years ago Democratic and Republican in-pensioners ended up on something new and exciting: the income tax checkoff. It was a method that permitted the public income tax filers to designate a portion of their taxes as a donation to a political campaign or cause. The checkoff was introduced to the public as a way to make income tax donations more convenient and efficient.

The checkoff system works in the following manner: when an individual files their income tax return, they have the option to designate a portion of their taxes as a donation to a political campaign or cause. The amount of the donation is then withheld from the individual's tax return and transferred to the designated campaign or cause.

The checkoff system was created in response to the growing public frustration with the traditional method of making political contributions. The checkoff system was designed to make political contributions more convenient and efficient, and to encourage individuals to make political contributions.

In the years since its introduction, the income tax checkoff has become increasingly popular. The system has grown in size and scope, with more and more political campaigns and causes offering checkoff options.

The checkoff system has also been the subject of much debate and controversy. Some have argued that the checkoff system is a flawed system that allows individuals to circumvent the limits on political contributions. Others have argued that the checkoff system is a valuable tool that allows individuals to make political contributions in a convenient and efficient manner.

Regardless of the debate, the income tax checkoff has become a fixture of the political landscape. As more and more individuals make use of the checkoff system, the political landscape will continue to evolve.
The reason the city is here—the UI

In recent interviews with Iowan reporters, city officials have expressed a high degree of confidence and enthusiasm about the city’s future. The officials are particularly optimistic about the economic recovery that is taking place in the city. They believe that this recovery will lead to increased business activity and a more vibrant community. The officials are also pleased with the city’s efforts to improve its public services, including transportation and public safety. They believe that these improvements will help to attract more businesses and residents to the city.

The city is located in a region that has experienced a significant economic decline in recent years. However, the officials believe that the city is poised for a strong recovery. They point to the city’s location near major highways and railroads as a key factor in its future prospects.

The officials have also expressed a commitment to improving the city’s infrastructure. They have announced plans to construct new roads and upgrade existing ones. They believe that these improvements will help to make the city more accessible and attractive to businesses and residents.

Overall, the city officials are optimistic about the city’s future. They believe that the city is well-positioned to take advantage of the economic recovery that is taking place in the region.
Bell's 'Stars' — ease but not easiness

By DAVE CULZ
Staff Writer

Martin Bell spent a lot of time during the Vietnam War doing dangerous work as a photojournalist. He left Vietnam with memories that are rare in poetry. In fact, the only poems he has written so far are one in which the ease in the language is "lost beyond." These poems are about the war and the saddening and significant That Bell considers important enough to be exciting about where the people are living simpler than it is in this time but that is not continued in the world, but what is being aphorized by it. In these lines Bell has revealed that his work very exactly suggests that there's something more.

Recruiting wars open

Although the final cuts fall on April 15, Hawkeyes basketball officially kicked off its recruiting season this past weekend. Iowa Coach LouHoffman and his assistants wanted to get their men on the phone. The black and gold uniform on the phone meant that a recruit was committing to Iowa; and it's not easy to forget the sudden developments last fall. Brown, who became Iowa's first home run hitter in the Big Ten, was named ACC player of the year. Mims, Iowa's star pitcher, was the ACC's top pitcher for the year. Iowa was the ACC's top team in the eastern division.

Big Ten sets
88 ticket base

SCORING (UPI) — The Big Ten Conference has agreed to establish a minimum of 88 tickets for all basketball games. The move was made in an effort to ensure that Iowa, North Carolina, and Ohio State, which have been averaging 85, 83, and 80 tickets per game, respectively, maintain their attendance levels.

Michigan thumps Detroit

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Senior John Barnhart scored a season-high 18 points while teammate Phil Hathaway added 16 as the host-hungry Michigan wrested the commanding lead from the Detroit University of North Carolina-Charlotte in the NCAA Regional final Thursday night.

The victory moved the Wolverines into the semi-finals of the NCAA basketball championships. University of Michigan, led by Phil Hathaway, was given a 4-point lead and closed the gap to just in the final two minutes. Although Hathaway's three-pointer was missed, the Wolverines controlled the backcourt throughout the contest.
