Carter will 'hang tough' on arms talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Jimmy Carter will "hang tough" and continue pressing the Soviets to halt deployment of their new medium-range missiles, despite last night's rejection of the U.S. proposal, sources close to the White House said today.

The sources said that Carter is convinced that his own proposal is the only viable way to resolve the current crisis and that the U.S. public would give it its support.

Carter said that he will continue to present his proposals to the Soviets, but that he will not accept their proposal as a basis for continuing negotiations. He said he would continue to press the Soviets to accept his proposal and that he would not agree to a "compromise" settlement.

The sources said that Carter is determined to win the support of the American public for his proposals and that he will continue to press the Soviets to accept them.

By M. J. BROWN

Full Writer

With today's world rapidly changing, education is more important than ever as a means for living in today's world and for adapting to future challenges, University President Charles Petersen, president of the state board of Regents, said Wednesday at the 55th annual meeting of the University of Iowa Development Council.

"We are in the midst of a great and continuous change," Petersen said. "We cannot just sit back and wait for the change to happen. We must be prepared to meet the challenges of the future."

English, political science emeritus, spent more than 60 years preparing for the challenges of the future.

"I have been preparing for my retirement for 20 years," he said. "I have always been thinking ahead, always looking for ways to improve the system and to prepare for the future."

The 55th annual meeting of the University of Iowa Development Council will be held on May 10 at the Downtown Holiday Inn in Des Moines.

Pilots' radio talk reveals clues

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI) — New Zealand's KLM officers Wednesday revealed that radio messages between the airport control tower and a KLM plane were transmitted using one word per message to tell controllers about the plane's status. The officers said that the one word per message system was used to avoid confusion and to allow controllers to quickly determine the plane's status.

The KLM officials also said that the plane's identification number was transmitted in the radio messages.

Peace — only when

Arabs welcome it

Since the General Assembly of the United Nations in 1975 adopted Resolution 3379A which held Israel responsible for all acts of terrorism against Arab citizens, there have been several significant developments in the quest for peace between Israel and the Arab states.

In this regard, I propose that, as a first step, the USA institute a series of education and training programs in order to foster a better understanding of the Arab perspective and to promote a more peaceful solution to the Middle East conflict.

Additionally, I believe that the USA should consider imposing economic sanctions against Israel in order to pressure the Israeli government to comply with the demands of the Arab states.

Furthermore, I am calling on the USA to work towards the normalization of relations with Egypt and Syria, as these two countries have already taken important steps towards peace.

I also urge the USA to support the efforts of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and the Palestine National Authority (PNA) to achieve self-determination for the Palestinian people.

In conclusion, I believe that the USA has a critical role to play in the search for peace in the Middle East, and I call on the leaders of the USA to take bold and decisive action to achieve this goal.

Letters

Dear Editor:

I would like to voice my strong support for the proposed expansion of the University of Iowa's library system.

As a current student at the University of Iowa, I have had the opportunity to use the existing library facilities on a regular basis. However, I have noticed a noticeable decline in the quality and availability of resources.

In my opinion, the expansion of the library system would not only provide a larger selection of materials, but also enhance the overall learning environment for students.

I believe that the university should consider this proposal seriously and take the necessary steps to ensure that the library system continues to meet the needs of the students.

Sincerely,

John Doe

Soviets reject arms proposal

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev Thursday rejected both of President Carter's disarmament proposals, including one that would have allowed the Kremlin to arm new rocket launchers. The Soviet leader's refusal to budge on arms reduction came as a surprise to many observers who had expected the Kremlin to respond in a more conciliatory manner to the president's proposals. The president's proposals, which were presented to the Kremlin earlier this week, included a freeze on the development and production of new strategic arms systems. However, Brezhnev's rejection of the proposals was seen as a setback for the administration's efforts to achieve a comprehensive arms agreement with the Soviet Union.

Economy recovers from January freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The economy is recovering strongly from the January freeze, which had been expected to dampen growth in the first quarter. The Commerce Department reported Wednesday that the gross national product (GNP) grew at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.4 percent in the first quarter, compared with a 1.2 percent rate in the fourth quarter. The report was well above expectations, and it suggested that the economy was on a strong footing going into the second quarter.

In 17th-century Castile the king has the absolute power of the people's life to God. The ideal king represented the harmony of the two forms of power, and his subjects treated him as the symbol of divine power.

The king of Castile, however, is a megalomaniac, blind to honor. The virtue of Blind to honor. The virtue of Castile is being presented in the way.

The king becomes infatuated with a woman who is married to another man. He tries to win her over by giving her gifts and attention. However, she is not interested in him and rejects his advances.

The king's increasingly unhealthy behavior has a profound impact on the kingdom. The country is brought to the brink of war with neighboring countries, and the people are left to suffer under the king's oppressive rule.

The play ends with the king being taken to the edge of the kingdom and executed, symbolizing the end of his reign and the beginning of a new era.
Looking backwards

Beginners’ guide to searching for roots

By TOM BAFF

With the success of Alex Haley’s book, many more Americans are now exploring their family history. The information available is plentiful and varied, but the process of searching for your ancestors can be daunting. Here are some tips to help you get started.

The best way to begin is to identify the memories and stories that you cherish. This is often the inspiration for the search for your roots. Gather together information that you have about your family, such as personal records, diaries, or letters.

Once you have collected as much information as you can, it’s time to use public records. The United States National Archives is a great place to start. They have records on immigration, naturalization, and veterans. Other records include censuses, military service records, and probate records.

Another important resource is the genealogical databases available online. Websites like Ancestry, FamilySearch, and MyHeritage provide access to a wealth of information.

Finally, consider the help of a professional genealogist. They have access to records not available to the general public and can help identify family relationships and patterns.

Remember, the search for your roots is a journey that can take a lifetime. Start where you are, use what you have, do the very best you can.

Introducing the Thomas E. Wilson Masterpiece Ham.

So lean and juicy, it truly is "a masterpiece.""

What makes our new boneless ham a masterpiece?

First, we start with the very heart of the ham—the tender, inner fat. Then we trim away all the excess fat to make it as lean as it can be. Next, we cure it in a new way that seals in the natural juices making it tender, moist and juicy. The result is a boneless ham that's both lean and juicy at the very same time. We invite you to try our new Masterpiece while this special introductory offer lasts. Save 50¢ when you buy it. And get a $3.00 refund coupon that is good for your next purchase.

Once you do, think you'll agree that Thomas E. Wilson's new lean and juicy ham really is "a masterpiece."

Coffee prices perk up again

By United Press International

Folger Coffee Co., the nation's largest instant coffee producer, and Blue Mountain Coffee Co. said yesterday that coffee prices are expected to continue their upward trek.

Folger's increase may not be the last. "We've been telling our dealers that prices may have to go up," Folger said.

Folger, which said it had already raised its prices 34 cents a pound, said it was raising its prices another 10 cents a pound.

Blue Mountain also said it is raising its prices 50 cents a pound.

The move comes as the U.S. is becoming a larger producer of coffee.

The increase in coffee prices is being attributed to the rising cost of coffee beans, which are mainly grown in Brazil.

In 1975, Brazil accounted for 40% of the world's coffee production. This year, Brazil's production is expected to be down by 20%.

The increase in coffee prices is also being attributed to the strong dollar and the weak peso.

Coffee prices have been rising for several months, and the recent spike is expected to continue.

The rise in coffee prices is also expected to affect the price of other coffee-related products, such as coffee beans and coffee plants.

In conclusion, the rise in coffee prices is expected to continue, and coffee lovers should expect to pay more for their favorite brew in the future.
Players share settlement

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Every National Football League pro who played through three grueling years of the "disaster draft" and who signed during the 100-hour period will receive $1,500 from an $8.5 million settlement. The average pro might get $200. The money was divided among the players by a neutral counsel, Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association.

The settlement will pay an estimated 1,000 players more than $500 each. The average figure was $250. The $8.5 million is the largest sum ever awarded in a legal settlement involving a group of unemployed persons.

The settlement is the result of a class action lawsuit brought by a group of pro football players who were not drafted and who were not paid by the NFL for their time in the league. The settlement was negotiated between the NFL and the players association, with the help of a neutral counsel, Ed Garvey.

The settlement includes payments to players who played as free agents, players who were drafted but did not sign contracts, and players who were drafted but did not play. The settlement also provides for the creation of a fund to be used for the benefit of players who were injured or otherwise disadvantaged by the disaster draft.

The settlement was approved by a federal judge in New York City on Thursday, March 31. It is expected to be finalized in the coming weeks.

Paul - If we don't win the World Series this year, I'm moving to Pocahontas.

The Yankees have a real winning team this year. The biggest cause for concern here is the health of Don Larsen. In fact, my biggest worry is that poor Larsen won't have enough talent to make the American League.

The Yankees were just like a prodigal son. They were far too good for the other teams in the league. But the Yankees got stronger, too, with their off-season improvements.
