Teachers accused of a klk. strike

By United Press International

Police arrested 11 striking teachers at four Denver City, Colo., high schools Thursday for breaking school enrollment laws, school officials said. The teachers charged were fired for their actions in the teachers' strike. The teachers are appealing the dismissal.

The Denver teachers struck the 185,000-student public school system Monday. The teachers wanted higher salaries and more teaching aids. The 11 who were reported to be arrested are:...

Subliminal advertising sells the basics

To The Editor:

I see no reason in particular for the continuing attacks on television and subliminal advertising. In my own experience these devices sell the basics of our society. Without them modern man would be driving a dog cart and spending the winter in a log cabin.

Sincerely yours,

XX

To The Editor:

I recently heard an advertisement that said "No more turbulent fire, no more smoke or ashes." I thought it was interesting how this message was conveyed without directly stating it. It was a good example of the use of subliminal advertising to sell a product.

Sincerely yours,

YY

Happy News TV: Hit the News Hits

In the last few years, local news shows have become increasingly popular, with many news anchors who laughably claim they aren't trying to make a point with their clothing choices. But local news shows also have the potential to be more than just a place for local news. They can be a forum for discussion and debate, and a way to connect with the community.

News programs abound that are painfully embarrassing for all parties involved. Imagine watching the local news about how the mayor of your city was arrested for assault on a police officer. The news anchor, try as he might, can't help but make a joke about the situation. The mayor, realizing he's the center of attention, can't help but make a joke about the situation. The entire city, realizing they're the center of attention, can't help but make a joke about the situation. It's a vicious cycle that never seems to end.

TV News has often been described as a public service, and for the most part, it has been. But in recent years, there has been a trend towards sensationalism in news programming. The anchors have become more like performers, with their own personal style and flair. This has led to a decline in the quality of news programming, as the news is often presented in a way that is more entertaining than informative.

ABC News has recently hired Barbara Walters and Al Michaels to anchor the nightly news. Walters, who has been with ABC for over 40 years, will bring a wealth of experience and a unique perspective to the anchor desk. Michaels, known for his work in sports broadcasting, will bring a new energy and style to the newsroom. Together, they will make a dynamic team, and their chemistry is sure to be a hit with viewers.

ABC's decision to hire Walters and Michaels is a welcome change from the recent trend of hiring younger anchors. Walters has been a fixture on ABC News for decades, and her experience and knowledge are invaluable. She has covered some of the most significant events in recent history, and her insights and perspective are a valuable addition to the newsroom.

ABC's move to hire Walters and Michaels is also a signal of its commitment to quality news programming. The network has struggled with ratings in recent years, and the hiring of these two veterans is a step towards reversing that trend. The addition of Walters and Michaels is a move that will resonate with viewers, and it is a sign that ABC News is taking its role as a public service seriously.

ABC News has also made some changes to its programming in recent years. The network has introduced new programs, such as "Nightline" and "20/20," to provide in-depth analysis and investigative journalism. These programs have been well-received by viewers, and they have helped ABC News remain competitive in a crowded news landscape.

In conclusion, ABC News' decision to hire Barbara Walters and Al Michaels is a positive move that will benefit viewers. With their combined experience and talent, they will bring a new level of quality and innovation to the network's news programming. ABC News has a long tradition of excellence, and this move is a step towards restoring that tradition. Viewers can look forward to informative, thoughtful news programming from ABC News in the years to come.
Winning Carter's plan would create energy policy in the future. Plutonium is one of the most destructive and deadly materials. It is produced as a by-product of the breeder reactor. United States President Carter is now advocating a breeder reactor as the way to meet our future energy needs.

"WE ARE A NEW PEOPLE" is a story of the future as it can be easily turned into energy resources. It also concerns other advanced concepts in the future. It is a call for nuclear power. In the future, the breeder reactor will be held responsible for the destruction of nuclear power. Carter's plan, which is based on the role of the breeder reactor, will try to have its power supplies, including nuclear power, be made available to the nuclear power industry.

The word below: No challenge! A lighter vein also concerns the role of the breeder reactor. The word "challenge" is a symbol of the nuclear power industry as it is used in science fiction. It is the word that stands for the word "challenge".
UI student files suit against residency code

By DEBBIE MEHREN
Staff Writer

A UI student has filed a suit in federal district court claiming that one of the provisions of the residency status for students is unconstitutional. The suit, filed by UI student George W. Clarke, was based on the claim that the UI residency regulations are discriminatory.

The problem is on two levels, Clarke said. The first level is that the UI requires students to prove residency, which is defined as a permanent home address, to be eligible for certain benefits, such as lower tuition rates. The second level is that the UI includes a provision that allows students to lose their residency status if they move out of state for a period of time, even if they return to their home state.

Clarke, who is a resident of Iowa City, said that he has been living in Iowa City for the past three years and that he has paid tuition at the UI at the in-state rate. However, the UI has denied him residency status because he moved out of state for a period of time.

Clarke's suit is one of several filed recently against the UI's residency regulations. Other suits have been filed by students who have been denied residency status because they have moved out of state for a period of time.

The suit is scheduled for trial in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Iowa in the spring of 1977. The UI has filed a motion to dismiss the suit, arguing that the residency regulations are constitutional.

Of their latest album “Sleepwalker, ”Ray Davies proudly says, “When we started we didn’t think about image, we just took it on the run as an extension of the music...this is a new thing.” Being much more than what they once were, Davies has reached toward theatricals and overall themes supplementing the Kinks with female singers and a horn section. The songs are full-bodied and emotional, the rock harder, and the ballads more sensitive.
