State may phase out halfway houses project

By D I. FOWLER

Staff Writer

WASHINGTON - The state Department of Corrections, which has been involved in an ongoing legal battle with the federal government over halfway house programs, said Friday it will probably phase out the halfway houses.

The Department of Corrections has been seeking a compromise to the lawsuit filed by the federal government.

The federal court ruled in 1979 that the halfway houses were unconstitutional because they were not part of the legal system and were not supervised by the courts.

Senate tables blind federation decision

NEIL BROWN

A decision on whether to accept the National Federation of the Blind as an official organization at the UI is being delayed by a dispute over the role of the organization.

By NELLI BROWN

The administration, in a letter to the president of the organization, said that the organization had "economic and political values.

According to Vincent, the letter was in response to a letter from UI president Richard W. Moore, in which Moore expressed concern that the organization's policies were inconsistent with the policies of the administration.

"We are not concerned about the role of the National Federation of the Blind," Moore said. "We are concerned about the role of the organization as a whole."
Liddy commutation testifies to injustice

A recent Des Moines Register poll revealed that a wide majority of adult Iowans believe that the federal government should not provide any financial assistance for rail passenger service in Iowa. Only 4 out of 10 Iowans, according to the poll, showed a strong interest in revitalizing passenger rail service.

It's not very surprising that many Iowans aren't all that enthusiastic about riding trains. This is because of the lack of federal support and the poor service that has been provided in the past. Most Americans, however, are not eager to return to the days of the glorious railroad age. Many Iowans have found satisfaction in the convenience and speed of modern transportation systems.

The advocates for reducing the cost of passenger service claim that the lack of funding is the result of the federal government's unwillingness to provide the necessary support. However, the problem is not just with the federal government, but with the transportation industry itself. Many Iowans have complained about the poor service and the high cost of riding the trains.

If the federal government is unwilling to provide the necessary support, then it is up to the states to find a way to finance the passenger rail service. The states have an obligation to provide their citizens with a safe and convenient means of transportation. The states must take the initiative and work with the transportation industry to find a solution.

In conclusion, Iowans should not lose hope for the future of passenger rail service. With the states' support and the transportation industry's cooperation, it is possible to revitalize the passenger rail service in Iowa and provide its citizens with a safe and convenient means of transportation.

Ford's better idea—avoid Edsel

DeARMOND, Mich.—(UPI)—Henry Ford II, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Ford Motor Co., Ford, Mich., who suffers from a heart disease, announced the formation of a Department of the Arts. "Chief Executive of the Arts," in which he, as chairman, will share power with President Lee A. Iacocca and Vice Chairman Philip Caldwell.

And the office was created at his suggestion to "provide the world a natural and smooth way for a natural and smooth transition for his 74-year-old son when he is way younger than Edsel. The only comment was, "There have been changes since then."

Ford appeared trim, smiling and joking with reporter in his usual manner as he outlined a new executive order for a top executive in a later date . But he described the new executive order as little more than a natural, smooth management transition for his 74-year-old son when he is way younger than Edsel. The only comment was, "There have been changes since then."

Athletes audition for scholarships

Women in recruiting

By MARY TULLY

The coaches in the Women's Athletic Department are still working to fill the last few slots on their teams. A few years ago, scholarships were available to most, but the coaches are still on the lookout for new talent.

"We're trying to fill some of the remaining spots," said Coach Zwiener. "We have some open positions, but we're still looking for more athletes." Coach Moore added that "the scholarships are still available for teams that need them."

The coaches are looking for athletes with "the right attitude," said Coach Moore. "We want athletes who are committed and who will work hard." Coach Zwiener agreed, "We're looking for athletes who are dedicated and who want to compete.""
Finley's leftover A's win again

By Reid Gross

It's possible that Charlie Finley will have the last laugh on the American League.

He sold the Oakland A's to continue performing beyond his control.

Now that Finley's regulars decided to play out their options, it's a good bet that Thursday when they pushed across a run in the ninth inning to defeat the California Angels, 5-4, for their sixth win in seven games.

The mark of a good team is the ability to take advantage of its opponent's mistakes, and the A's did exactly that Thursday when they added to their season's highest with a 15-9 victory.

Larry Milwain caught the ball and threw it to shortstop Bobby Grich as Finley's regulars decided to play out their options. "It was assumed that the Cardinals defeat the Mets .
