Medicaid funds rescinded; states' programs inadequate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge yesterday ordered the states to cease cutting elderly medical benefits after he ruled that the Ford administration's cost-cutting program was unconstitutional.

Judge Stephen J. Roeder ordered the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to keep up current levels of medical aid payments to states as they seek new ways of providing care for the elderly poor, who have federal Medicaid funds by July 1.

The judge said the state governors, who had said they would cut medical aid payments, were “not entitled to return to the federal government any payments made last year.”

“While the states are entitled to seek new and better ways of providing medical care to the elderly, full and proper payments must be made while the states are seeking new ways of providing the care,” the judge said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Castro government has all but abandoned its policy of selectively giving preferential treatment to the United States and the United Kingdom.

In an interview with ABC's Barbara Walters on Monday, Castro indicated support of all forms of discussion and exchange with the United States, including the possibility of a future summit meeting.

The interview was held in Havana and was broadcast on ABC Thursday night.

Gays vs. Anita: Round 2 nears

Bryant to go on tour to D.C.

MIAMI (UPI) — Anita Bryant's victory in her Florida gay rights battle was largely based on the issue of safety, her campaign sources said.

The gay rights movement in Florida will be taking their fight to the nation's capital next month with a series of events and demonstrations, sources said.

The first event will be a rally in Washington, D.C., on April 17, where Bryant will speak. She is expected to be joined by other gay rights activists and leaders from around the country.

The rally is being organized by the National Gay & Lesbian Task Force (NGLTF) and the Human Rights Campaign (HRC), two of the largest organizations working to advance the cause of gay rights.

According to a source familiar with the plans, the rally will be held at the U.S. Capitol and will feature speeches by Bryant and other speakers, as well as an array of entertainment and musical performances.

The event is expected to draw thousands of participants from across the country, and organizers are planning for a day of activism and advocacy.

In addition to the rally, there will be a series of workshops and discussion panels on a variety of issues related to gay rights, including legal, political, and social topics.

The organizers are also planning for a demonstration outside the White House, where they will call for the passage of the Equality Act, which would provide nationwide protections against discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity.

The rally is being held in response to the defeat of the Florida Amendment 2, which sought to ban gay and lesbian adoption and marriage. The amendment was overwhelmingly rejected by voters in the state.

The rally is also part of a larger national effort to advance the cause of gay rights, which has gained momentum in recent years with the victories of same-sex marriage and the repeal of the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA).

The organizers are hoping the rally will help to build on the momentum of these victories and to send a clear message to Congress and state lawmakers that the gay rights movement is a powerful and growing force.

The rally is being organized by a coalition of national and local organizations, including the NGLTF, HRC, the National Council of Churches, the Human Rights Campaign, and others.

The event is being held on April 17, the same day that the amendment was defeated in Florida. Bryant, who was a key figure in the Amendment 2 campaign, is expected to speak at the rally.

The organizers are hoping the rally will attract a diverse crowd, including activists, celebrities, and other supporters of the gay rights movement.

The event is expected to last from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and the organizers are planning for a full day of activities.

The organizers have also planned for a street concert in the nation's capital, featuring a variety of musicians and performers.

Moyers loses directorship

By TOM MAPP

Dr. Jack Moyers, UI professor of anesthesiology and director of the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, was fired Tuesday after it was alleged that he was not qualified for the position of department head in the College of Medicine.

The dismissal apparently came after disagreements between Moyers and University Hospital management over his role as head of the anesthesiology department, which have been voiced in the past by several department members.

Moyers refused to discuss the issue when contacted Wednesday afternoon. It was subsequently learned that he met Wednesday for a meeting of the College of Medicine and Clinics.

Moyers' decision was not unexpected by members of the department, who had been waiting for a decision from the college committee.
Militancy mentality

Proclaiming that "the laws of God and the cultural values of the people have been vandalized," Anita Bryant Tuesday night urged the readers of the Daily Iowan to support the United States' military build-up against the Soviets, who are alleged to be Franciscan Catholics.' Bryant characterized Monday and Tuesday's demonstration by United Catholic Action of Iowa as "an apocalyptic performance is weapons."

Bryant's followers in favor of our "Children, inc. organized out of the ranks of the kind of people who are driving Americans to the edge of an apocalyptic campaign with characterizations of homosexuals as routine perverts and ruthless predators who should have the child who has been declared legally, would go..."

We need our. resort to such fanaticism to determine the character of Anita Bryant and her soldiers of militant normality. Their recent emergence of the tyranny of majority is insufficient.

But in the future we will need much more than an apocalyptic character of their behavior, because Bryant has proclaimed her intention to lead this battle against anyone opposed to their character. We must determine what the majority thinks and does define normality.

Their recent emergence of the tyranny of majority is insufficient.

The dollar gap was started in the United States in 1929. It was a result of a general economic depression, but it was also a result of the government's failure to take effective action to prevent the depression. The government's failure was partly due to the fact that it was not willing to spend money to stimulate the economy, and partly due to the fact that it was not willing to enact legislation that would provide for the orderly bankruptcy of large companies.

We need our resort to such fanaticism to determine the character of Anita Bryant and her soldiers of militant normality. Their recent emergence of the tyranny of majority is insufficient.
Cannsb's familiar 'faces' replaced by new fleet

Behind the Canxbus garage on Madison Street, the old Canxbus fleet also abandoned this Friday evening. The colorful faces on the black, white and yellow vehicles -- once able to bring a smile to the most depressed student -- stare fortunately across some railroad tracks instead of the setting sun and the Iowa River. In their place, the new fleet, a set of 12 white, red and yellow vehicles, was moving out of the garage for the final time.

The UI's first diesel-powered bus fleet has been retired. In place of the circa-1950 buses is a sharp fleet of new school bus vehicles, purchased with federal matching grant aid that was used school bus life, the Canxbus faces were a work of art. Now, the faces on the old buses were a work of art, the replaced, prophesied by a graduate student who said "not a single vestige of a bus driver. The Morel Bros. drivers, a man and a woman, a green bus, a brown one, and a yellow one, and others who were developed to transport the passengers. Today, the old faces all along the street near the garage are gone. They will be sold for their scrap value. Perhaps to be of service again.

UI's in good hands with Max

By MARY SCHMUCK
Staff Writer

There are few people who can say they personally know all 15 Iowa state senators and all 30 Iowa state representatives, but Max Hawkins, a lobbyist for the state Board of Regents, knows each one personally. It's his job.

Hawkins has been in the business for the regents and UI since 1980. He lives in Des Moines five days a week while the legislature is in session, but he is on call for any need from the UI at any time.

"The UI director of state relations," Hawkins said. "Legislative committees will need between sessions and I keep in contact with the constituents. Different legislative deadlines are met each year. The process is going on all the time." Hawkins

The University of Northern Iowa and the University of Southern Iowa also have a lot of interested senators who actually work for the regents. The Senate usually meets in January and March, and he learned a long time ago that "the best key to the legislative session is to place them on a united front to the legislature and carry out the regents' policy." DOONESBURY

BY GARRY TRUDEAU

However, when asked if he has a special friendship to the UI, Hawkins said, "It's my school, y'know but." If something particularly pertinent to the UI, Hawkins will be the lobbyist to handle the matter because of his special knowledge of the university.

A native of Minnesota, Hawkins came to the UI to play football and was graduated with a B.A. in politics in 1981. After serving in the Navy during World War II, he then returned to the UI to work for the Alumni Association in 1963. He was the association's field secretary and braved the state's legislative support from the alumni.

In 1967, Hawkins said, the administration was "having problems with the legislature." The administration wanted the alumni to help in Hawkins contacted the alumni to in­tercede with their legislators on behalf of the UI.

"During the last weeks of the legislative session, Hawkins went to Des Moines to con­duct the alumni's efforts." The next legislative session, Hawkins and Hawkins began lobbying full time. That session was an even more effective lobbyist, according to Democratic and Republican legislators, according to Iowa Sen. Robert Ray.

"They're very enjoyable to work with, very personable, very honest," Nagel said. "He brings a wealth of experience and knowledge to the job, and he's one of the most senior lobbyists in the legislature. Our institute has a feeling of security when you dealt with Max. It's his knowledge about anybody's day."

"If they have an effective spokesman down here (in Des Moines) it's the University of Iowa and the Board of Regents."

Roy Ayers, Des Moines City, said Hawkins is "extremely knowledgeable about almost all details about the university and the regents' institutions, and they think a lot of him," Nagel said. "They feel they can get things done with Max."

Besides the appropriations, Hawkins has been known to "close the mail" to certain numbers of the alumni. Hawkins said he has not been able to attend a meeting over the legislative session because of his job.

"The best way for the regents to stay informed is through Max. Hawkins said there is always a regent's meeting going on."

"If substantial legislation is involved, Hawkins added that, "we use a lot of Max's help in familiarizing new regents with their duties. Hawkins said there is always a regent's meeting going on."

"I'm going to do what I can to stay informed about the university, the regents and the regents' institutions," Nagel said. Hawkins said, "I'm out to represent the most prestigious institution in the state."

"I've got a good product to sell. The second thing is never to be afraid to show your ignorance. If you don't know something, you can at least say it. You jot it down and you're right there with the correct information."

"But I'm dry there to play tricks or gimmicks on them (the legislators). They're used to being honest. Hawkins admitted it's not good to know everyone's name and remember the faces. "The way I do it," he said. "It's not that I'm in the front. "The way I do it, I think it's at least a 25 per cent turnover every two years."

Hawkins is a retired U.S. Army major who has been in the service for 31 years. He said that the United States is "in danger of being uprooted" and that "there's no place for the regents and U of I there." Hawkins is kept in the state for the regents and U of I responsibilities.

Kuhn predicts drop in salaries

By ROGER THURLOW

Sports Editor

KANSAS CITY - Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said at a news conference here Wednesday that salaries paid to major league baseball players have risen too high, and predicted a leveling off of baseball wages in the near future.

"The increase in the number of free agents and the quick rise in salaries is due to last year's free agent draft and has created difficulties in the economics of most of the major league teams," Kuhn said. He said the owners will take the initiative to lower the salaries back into line.

Asked if a different philosophical attitude exists in the clubs now, Kuhn said, "I think they realize that they went too far in the first free agent draft, I know they think they did, and I believe they will correct this. They’re not foolish businessmen." Kuhn, describing himself as a baseball fan, expressed his own concern to the possibility of a players’ strike for a salary cap. Kuhn warned that a strike could be the end of major league baseball.

Kuhn predicted drop in salaries

The University of Iowa Board of Athletic Directors voted unanimously Wednesday to reject Iowa State University's bid to host the 1979 Tropicana Field football game, according to Hy-Vee President and CEO Jack Weidner.

"I believe they will correct this. They're not foolish businessmen," Kuhn said. "They're not going to be foolish businessmen."

The original set of contracts called for all six games to be played in Iowa City. A clause in the second contract called for the University of Iowa to consider moving one of the games to another city if the conditions under which the games were negotiated were changed.
