In the News

Lebanon

BEGU: Lebanon has been the focus of international attention due to its political turmoil and civil war. The Baath Party, which has been ruling the country since 1964, has faced numerous challenges, including internal dissent and external pressures. The country has been divided into two main factions, the 1958-1964 Baath Party and the 1964-1969 Baath Party. The Baath Party has been accused of corruption and human rights abuses.

Spain

Madrid, Spain: Young left-wing militants. The Popular Republican Army (E.R.A.), a group of young left-wing militants, has been involved in a series of bombings and assassinations throughout Spain. The group claims to be fighting against the government and the Catholic Church. The E.R.A. is said to be supported by the French government.

Return

[The story is about a group of young people who have returned from abroad and are planning to start a new life in their country. They are determined to make a change in their community and are planning to start a new business.]

Pardons

Washington, D.C.: The House of Representatives has passed a bill that would grant pardons to all those who were prosecuted under the Espionage Act during World War I. The bill was introduced by Representative Henry Fairbanks and was supported by a majority of the House.

Weather

The weather forecast for today shows a high of 78 degrees F with a low of 50 degrees F. The forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a chance of scattered thunderstorms later in the day. The National Weather Service advises residents to stay alert for any severe weather conditions.

In the News

Moscow orchestra canceled in April

The Moscow Philharmonic Orchestra has announced that its annual spring tour to the United States has been canceled. The tour, which had been scheduled for April, has been postponed due to economic sanctions imposed by the United States. The orchestra had been scheduled to perform in several major cities, including New York and Los Angeles.

Smith wins Parliament, sets elections

BALTIMORE: John Smith (D-Md.) defeated President Jimmy Carter in the primary election for the Democratic nomination for governor of Maryland. Smith, a former state legislator, won by a margin of 54% to 46%.

Faster pace pledged for Korean probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) - South Korea pledged a faster pace for the investigation of alleged war crimes by soldiers on U.S. forces. The South Korean government has been under pressure to speed up the investigation, which has been slow due to the large number of cases involved.

Border

[The story is about the border between the United States and Mexico. The border is a major issue of concern for both countries, as illegal immigration and drug trafficking have become significant problems. The border has been the subject of many debates and policies, including the construction of a wall and the deployment of additional border patrol agents.]

The Daily Iowa

Tuesday

July 19, 1977

Vol. 110, No. 31
© 1977, Student Publications, Inc. 10 cents

Fast pace pledged for Korean probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) - South Korea pledged a faster pace for the investigation of alleged war crimes by soldiers on U.S. forces. The South Korean government has been under pressure to speed up the investigation, which has been slow due to the large number of cases involved.

Border

[The story is about the border between the United States and Mexico. The border is a major issue of concern for both countries, as illegal immigration and drug trafficking have become significant problems. The border has been the subject of many debates and policies, including the construction of a wall and the deployment of additional border patrol agents.]

Faster pace pledged for Korean probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) - South Korea pledged a faster pace for the investigation of alleged war crimes by soldiers on U.S. forces. The South Korean government has been under pressure to speed up the investigation, which has been slow due to the large number of cases involved.

Border

[The story is about the border between the United States and Mexico. The border is a major issue of concern for both countries, as illegal immigration and drug trafficking have become significant problems. The border has been the subject of many debates and policies, including the construction of a wall and the deployment of additional border patrol agents.]

Wary builders prolong housing crunch

St. LOUIS (UPI) - With a $1 billion public housing development under way in St. Louis, the city is faced with a housing crisis. The development, which is expected to cost $1.2 billion, is the largest public housing project in the country.

The Daily Iowa

Tuesday

July 19, 1977

Vol. 110, No. 31
© 1977, Student Publications, Inc. 10 cents

Faster pace pledged for Korean probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) - South Korea pledged a faster pace for the investigation of alleged war crimes by soldiers on U.S. forces. The South Korean government has been under pressure to speed up the investigation, which has been slow due to the large number of cases involved.

Border

[The story is about the border between the United States and Mexico. The border is a major issue of concern for both countries, as illegal immigration and drug trafficking have become significant problems. The border has been the subject of many debates and policies, including the construction of a wall and the deployment of additional border patrol agents.]

Wary builders prolong housing crunch

St. LOUIS (UPI) - With a $1 billion public housing development under way in St. Louis, the city is faced with a housing crisis. The development, which is expected to cost $1.2 billion, is the largest public housing project in the country.
Senate supports Carter's decision on B1 bomber

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate Monday backed President Carter's decision to go forward with development of the B1 bomber,but with ample funding for plans of a much lower-cost alternative. The vote was 66 to 30 to go ahead with the B1 bomber for a fiscal expenditure of $2.2 billion for fiscal 1978.

...when River City took control of the campus

...Better childcare Vietnam priority

...CANCAS para ticulate air pollution

Temp. housing only dorm space

Police Beat

Special prosecutor 'inappropriate'

High Occupancy

...Police Beat

CANCAS para ticulate air pollution

"Better childcare Vietnam priority"
V4, Calif. — A former Bloc China defector who walked out of a Tokyo prison and flew to this nation yesterday has revealed that a Maoist theory is "lifeline of the people." He also believes that a "seed of evil" blights the Chinese system.

PACIFIC (UPI) - Beijing is plotting to scrap Maoist theory for a "better system," a former Bloc China defector who flew to Tokyo on Monday has revealed.

Resolution of the Non-Socialist Forces, the party which the defector heads, was "a direct threat to the revolution," he said.

The defector said that under Maoist theory, the "stalleries," or pro-government party members, were given preferential treatment over the "public," or non-party members.

He also said that under the current system, the "public" was not allowed to participate in government decisions.

The defector, who asked that his name not be published, said he had come to Japan to seek political asylum.

He said he had been a member of the Chinese Communist Party for 20 years and had been involved in political activities in China.

The defector is believed to be one of several Chinese defectors who have fled to Japan in recent months.

He said that under the current system, the "public" was not allowed to participate in government decisions.

The defector is believed to be one of several Chinese defectors who have fled to Japan in recent months.
Injustice

When 13,000 protesters were arrested at East Carolina University in March, the state's laws governing the EDU administration's plans to build a student center with a lawn on which many blacks and whites were sitting turned national. Demonstrations between national greenshirts and Muslims that left four dead and hundreds more injured were not only up against a construction crew, but an entire university.

The key to the state's ed. laws was precisely how to prove that the activity was a hate crime. The state's hate crime law had been passed 10 years earlier in 1979, but the demonstration had no chance of winning the state's hate crime laws.

The lawsuit, which concerned only the occasion of the situation, was brought to the state's Supreme Court.

Declarations of violence and the causes of the December 1988 demonstrations that led to the killing of 13,000 protesters at East Carolina University in March, the state's laws governing the EDU administration's plans to build a student center with a lawn on which many blacks and whites were sitting turned national. Demonstrations between national greenshirts and Muslims that left four dead and hundreds more injured were not only up against a construction crew, but an entire university.

The key to the state's ed. laws was precisely how to prove that the activity was a hate crime. The state's hate crime law had been passed 10 years earlier in 1979, but the demonstration had no chance of winning the state's hate crime laws.

The lawsuit, which concerned only the occasion of the situation, was brought to the state's Supreme Court.

The case of Blackout

As the light went out in New York City last Wednesday, the darkness of the human spirit that had consumed the city for the past three years turned less menacing.

The last vestiges of the arrests and being hit with the new city's residents were facing harsher penalties. A police officer had left the downtown area during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

What the country's media outlets had missed in their coverage of the arrests and being hit with the city's residents was the fact that the very next day, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

They were not talking to any indication that hope of the rise that had been so heartening.

Therefore, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

What the country's media outlets had missed in their coverage of the arrests and being hit with the city's residents was the fact that the very next day, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

The next day, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

Blackout

As the light went out in New York City last Wednesday, the darkness of the human spirit that had consumed the city for the past three years turned less menacing.

The last vestiges of the arrests and being hit with the new city's residents were facing harsher penalties. A police officer had left the downtown area during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

What the country's media outlets had missed in their coverage of the arrests and being hit with the city's residents was the fact that the very next day, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

The next day, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

The lawsuit, which concerned only the occasion of the situation, was brought to the state's Supreme Court.

The case of Blackout

As the light went out in New York City last Wednesday, the darkness of the human spirit that had consumed the city for the past three years turned less menacing.

The last vestiges of the arrests and being hit with the new city's residents were facing harsher penalties. A police officer had left the downtown area during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

What the country's media outlets had missed in their coverage of the arrests and being hit with the city's residents was the fact that the very next day, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

The next day, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

The lawsuit, which concerned only the occasion of the situation, was brought to the state's Supreme Court.

The case of Blackout

As the light went out in New York City last Wednesday, the darkness of the human spirit that had consumed the city for the past three years turned less menacing.

The last vestiges of the arrests and being hit with the new city's residents were facing harsher penalties. A police officer had left the downtown area during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

What the country's media outlets had missed in their coverage of the arrests and being hit with the city's residents was the fact that the very next day, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.

The next day, the women's march, which had come to the city during the last power outage and less than 10 minutes later, no one was seen in the area, against the orders of thousands of people were arrested last week, the city had become a ghost town. To all intents and purposes the injured and the hospital were overweighted with the injuries.
Japanese student finds the South conservative

by CATHY MOELLER

 узнать, a Japanese graduate student from the University of Iowa, had just moved to the United States. During her first month in Iowa, she found the South to be conservative and segregation common. The experience of living in the South was very different from what she had expected.

In Chapel Hill, N.C., she was moved by the intensity of the debate on the pro-choice issue. The South, she said, was "very strong in its conservative values," and the debate on abortion was a stark contrast to the more liberal attitudes she had encountered in Japan.

She also found the local culture to be very different. "I was surprised by the way people were treated," she said. "In Japan, everyone is polite and respectful, but in the South, people are more straightforward and direct." She noted that the South's history of slavery and segregation had left a lasting impact on its culture.

The South's approach to business was also different from what she had expected. "I was impressed by the strong work ethic and the emphasis on family," she said. "The people here are very proud of their families and their communities." She noted that the South's history of poverty and segregation had led to a strong sense of community and unity.

Overall, Ms. Nakagawa found the South to be a challenging but rewarding place to live. "I am learning a lot about American culture and history," she said. "I hope to come back and live in the South someday."
Pennant races pause for All-Star showdown

Palmer, Sutton set to_down

NEW YORK (UPI) - Dave
Palmer of the Cubs and Dave Sutton of the Atlantabegan the National League's year's All-Star Game this year when they were named starting pitchers for the National League in Tuesday's game at Yankee Stadium.

Palmer, who was named the National League's top pitcher during the first half of the season, is expected to start for the National League in the first inning.

Sutton, who is the National League's top pitcher during the second half of the season, is expected to start for the National League in the second inning.

The All-Star Game is expected to be a close match between the National League and the American League.

The National League is behind the American League by four games in the National League's year's pennant race.

Anderson accepts blame

NEW YORK (UPI) - Stu
Anderson, the manager of the Baltimore Orioles, accepted all the blame for the team's loss to the New York Yankees in the team's 8-2 defeat on Tuesday night.

Anderson said the team was outplayed and that he was responsible for the loss.

The Orioles have now lost five of their last six games and are currently in fourth place in the American League East.

Trackstars brave rain
at UI all-comers meet

Over 189 participants participated in the first of courr all-comers meet at the University of Iowa on Wednesday.

The meet was directed by the University of Iowa track team and was open to all participants.

The following are the first place winners in the men's and women's events:

Men's:
1. Michael Upchurch (5000m run)
2. Robert Korkowski (1500m run)
3. John Blunk (400m hurdles)
4. John Mathews (110m hurdles)
5. Bill Huber (long jump)
6. Mike O'Hara (shot put)
7. Charlie Taylor (pole vault)
8. Tom Matthews (high jump)
9. Gordon McManus (100m)
10. Richard Rollin (400m)

Women's:
1. Mary McManus (5000m run)
2. Diane Van Tassel (1500m run)
3. Julia McManus (1000m run)
4. Susan McManus (400m)
5. mosaic McManus (880m)
6. Jane McManus (200m)
7. Ann McManus (100m)
8. Linda McManus (high jump)
9. Marla McManus (long jump)
10. Susan McManus (shot put)

Scoreboard

All American League

Chicago Cubs: 8-2
New York Yankees: 2-8

All National League

Pittsburgh Pirates: 7-3
Philadelphia Phillies: 3-7