Sadat willing to talk to Begin within week

By United Press International

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin are to meet this week to discuss a resumption of the Middle East peace talks. The talks were last held in May, when they resulted in an agreement to begin negotiations on a peace treaty.

Sadat will visit Beirut on Sunday and begin his tour on Monday. He will then travel to Jerusalem, where he will hold a joint press conference with Begin on Tuesday. The two leaders will then meet in Jerusalem to discuss the situation on the ground and agree on a framework for future talks.

Sadat's visit is seen as a significant step towards resolving the long-standing conflict between Egypt and Israel. The two leaders have met several times in the past, but this will be the first time they have met face-to-face.

Sadat's visit is also expected to be a major boost for the peace process, which has been stalled for several months due to differences over the issue of Israeli settlements in the occupied territories.

Avenson urges openness to insure accountability

The first step in reactivating KRUI, a student-run radio station, was taken Monday by the Collegiate Association Council (CAC) approved an expense package as its first order of business. The general manager would be a non-volunteer member and a board of governors, which would meet before planning the station. Two members from CAC and students, one Student Publishers, Inc., and a faculty member would also serve on theannonce board. Student Publishers, Inc., would offer more knowledgable advice as a non-profit agency.

The board of governors would be responsible for strategic planning of the staff, which would make the board of directors. The board of governors would meet before planning the station.

Support for the station comes from areas that have different interests but all support the idea of making the station free to the public. "We want to keep the station independent and free," said Avenson. He added that every station is unique and the public should be allowed to listen to the station without restrictions. He also emphasized the importance of local content and the need to keep the station free from corporate influence.

The program approved by the council is to reactivate the station under the CAC's auspices.
Avenson explained that the station would be controlled by the CAC and that the council is responsible for making the station free to the public.

The goal of the reactivation is to bring back the old KRUI and make it free to the public.

American schools are "in crisis," according to the current issue of Time magazine. This is one of those rare instances when a magazine attempts to instill panic in its readers. The claim is not a new one - several "crisis" headlines have appeared in the past year, accompanied by stories of "progressive" teaching techniques and school reform.

The Time article details how some American schools are doing poorly, but the methods they are using are not the ones being promoted by the "crisis" movement. The magazine claims that these schools are "effectively educating" their students, yet the evidence is lacking.

The article concludes with a call to action for parents and educators to "fight for our schools." But the question remains - how can we know what is working and what is not without more evidence-based research?

Ever since the Enlightenment the redefining theme among Western intellectuals has been the inevitability of the end of history. Man is, after all, a rational being, and all our actions must be addressed to that end. That which is accomplished must be evaluated in relation to history, and its significance must be assessed by reference to the fulfillment of its final purpose.

All of which has observers of foreign affairs pondering whether the recognition of women can be understood in such a way.

But suddenly, last week, two of the principals in the Middle East were talking of a different kind.

Meanwhile, plans for a general peace conference in Geneva are short on material and knowhow. And the PLO can be counted upon to wallow in the Lebanon tarpit and Jordan appears to be in the mood to face off with the Egyptians for an end to bloodshed. He even spoke of the possibility of a cease-fire in a constant stream of propaganda skirmishes. But suddenly, last week, two of the principals in the Middle East were talking of a different kind.

Since 1967, the Middle East has been a political and military scene of what has come to be known as "the Middle East." This region is of great importance to the world for a number of reasons, including its location, its resources, and its population. The Middle East is home to some of the world's most ancient civilizations, and it has been the site of many conflicts throughout history.

In the autumn of 1977, the Middle East was in the midst of a political crisis. The crisis was centered in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, which had been ongoing for several years. The crisis was exacerbated by the rise of the Islamic fundamentalist movement, which opposed the Israeli occupation of Palestinian territory.

The Middle East is a region of great economic importance as well. It is home to some of the world's largest oil reserves, and it is a major contributor to the global economy.

The Middle East is also a region of great cultural significance. It is home to some of the world's most ancient and influential civilizations, and it has been the site of many cultural innovations.

Somalia to drop Soviet treaty, U.S. welcomes Barre's move

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) - The official Soviet radio announcer read a statement on the air Wednesday announcing that the Soviet Union and Somalia had decided to cancel the 30-year treaty providing Soviet military support to Somalia. The move was seen by analysts as a significant step towards improving relations between the two nations.

"All we know about this is on the face of the newspaper," said a Soviet official.

Saltman, appearance at the University of Iowa in Iowa City, Iowa, said, "I'm an alcoholic. I'm a genuine alcoholic. I mean not just a fake, but a real alcoholic."

Iowa City, Iowa — A University of Iowa professor who is a recovering alcoholic has been given six months in jail and put on probation for talking in a sexual manner to a student who had asked him for a letter of recommendation.

The professor, who was not identified, was sentenced Monday in Black Hawk County District Court. He had pleaded guilty last week to two counts of misconduct in a public place.

He was given six months in jail and put on probation for five years. He was also required to pay a $1,000 fine and ordered to complete a sex-offender treatment program.

The professor, who was not identified, said he had been trying to help the student with a letter of recommendation, but he had lost his job and was unable to complete the treatment program.

The judge said the professor had been "cruel" to the student and had shown a "lack of empathy." He also said the professor had been "reckless" in his handling of the situation.

Bed-ridden Fran vows return

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Fran Tarkenton, the Minnesota Vikings quarterback who was blocked from playing in the NFL for nine years, has been cleared to return to action.

The Vikings said Friday that Tarkenton, who was in the hospital with a kidney infection, has been cleared to return to the team.

Tarkenton, 32, has been out since Feb. 18, when he suffered a kidney injury in practice.

The team said Tarkenton has been doing well and will begin his rehabilitation soon.

NCAA says Thompson must sit out 7 games

MIDDLE TENNESSEE (UIP) - The University of Illinois has decided it will go to a head coach, although he will remain at Northeastern in athletic duties.

There were more happy life for Jake Pont at Northeastern. Pont announced Friday he is stepping down as the head coach of the basketball program, leaving the Blackbirds in the capable hands of newly appointed women’s head coach Sue Birdsong. Pont’s decision will take effect immediately, according to Birdsong, who is currently the associate director of women’s basketball operations.

Pont’s basketball team finished 12-14 overall and 4-10 in the Mid-American Conference this season, missing the WNIT by two games.

Pont, who has been at Northeastern for 11 years, said in a statement Friday that he is stepping down to pursue other opportunities outside of the coaching profession.

"I am announcing the decision Monday because I have been in the process of recruiting for the last several months and I want to give the Northeastern community as much notice as possible," Pont said.

The decision comes after a 1-4 record in the Big Ten this season.

Pont’s first year at Northeastern, he compiled a 42-31 record.

In a statement, Birdsong said she is excited to take over the program.

"I look forward to working with Sue Birdsong on the transition," Pont said.

Birdsong has been an assistant coach for the past three seasons, including the past two years under Pont.

"I am excited to become the head coach for the Northeastern women’s basketball team," Birdsong said. "I have been with Northeastern for three years and I am looking forward to the opportunity to lead this program."
