UI denies $2.1 million fund mismanagement

UI officials deny any wrongdoing, but the university is being investigated by the federal government for the way it handled a pool four years ago, which was declared too dangerous.

UI president Dr. John W. Hargreaves, who took over the administration of the university last fall, said the university is "busy doing what it was supposed to do," and that the audit findings were "not accurate.

"We've been working very hard to get this situation resolved," Hargreaves said. "We're trying to make sure that people understand what's happening here."

Homosexual ministers ayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A task force of the United Presbyterian Church has recommended adopting a policy allowing homosexuals to be ordained to ministry in the denomination, which has 1 million members in the United States.

The task force urged the presbyteries to consider a policy that would allow homosexuals to be ordained without restrictions.

The recommendation comes as a smaller group of ministers, including some who are gay, have been ordaining homosexuals in the church.

The proposal will be presented to the action later this year to the church's General Assembly, which meets annually.

The Daily Iowan

The Decatur Daily is the student newspaper of the University of Iowa. We rely on conferences with teachers to discuss and maintain cultural identity and still be a student. In eastern Iowa most students are a totally new experience. They reach junior high school in the fall and they want change. They are frustrated by the lack of diversity in the curriculum and are in a hurry to get into college. They want change.

The Daily Viewpoints

Senate procedural mockery

The action of the US Senate the other day, was seen by many as a further demonstration of the political ineptitude of the Senate and the lack of progress on the crucial issue of American workers' rights.

The Senate had failed to pass a bill that would have granted workers the right to organize and negotiate their working conditions. This failure has been attributed to the Senate's inability to reach a consensus on the issue.

The Move to Abolish the Senate

A group of senators have proposed a constitutional amendment to abolish the Senate, citing its ineffectiveness and the lack of representation for the interests of American workers.

The Senate has been criticized for its procedural delays, and the move to abolish it has gained support from various groups advocating for workers' rights.

The Senate has been seen as an obstacle to progress on critical issues, and the proposed amendment aims to address this by eliminating the need for a separate chamber in the legislative process.

The Move Faces Opposition

The proposal to abolish the Senate has faced opposition from some senators, who argue that it would undermine the checks and balances system in place to prevent government excesses.

The Senate's defenders argue that the proposed amendment would erode the separation of powers and limit the ability of minority groups to influence legislation.

The Senate's Role in American Politics

The Senate has been an important institution in American politics, providing a platform for minority voices and ensuring the stability of the government.

However, the current Senate's inability to address workers' rights and other critical issues has sparked calls for reform, with the proposal to abolish it part of a larger effort to strengthen the legislative process.

The Move Towards Change

The proposed amendment to abolish the Senate is one of many efforts to address the political divides and increase the effectiveness of the legislative process.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and the Democratic Party were upset by recent events, and administration officials were struggling to mount a new campaign to contest President Carter in two states, Arizona and Indiana.

The federal government has been working to ensure that the presidential campaign is run fairly and that all candidates have an equal chance, but the current rules are causing problems.

Farmers’ plight illustrated

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Cambodians forced to abandon their cities. A high ranking public works official who was among the approximately 1 million refugees who have fled Phnom Penh and other urban areas in Cambodia under the Khmer Rouge regime.

"We are left with nothing," the official said. "Everything unimaginable things took place, and we are left with nothing." He said he had to sell his home and all his possessions to pay the soldiers for rice rations.

Despite severe penalties against those who had died of disease or hunger, only a small percentage of the camp inmates had the courage to admit to the population that the Khmer Rouge soldiers or to corrupt cadres for rations in a commercial trade for growing all imports and other international goods.

We have learned that we cannot expect to do all of the things that are necessary for the continuation of rice production, but we also realize that the Khmer Rouge regime is not sustainable," the official said. "We need to maintain our agricultural production to survive."

The official said that as farmers, we are working hard to continue our work. We cannot survive without rice, but we know that we cannot survive without rice forever. We need to find a way to continue our work and to the stability of the American market. We do not want a guaranteed price policy. We want fair prices that cover our costs, and we need to do this for the benefit of our country."

Career planning

A number of students in the nursing profession are enrolled in courses for heads of schools and colleges of nursing. Several students are scheduled to graduate from the B.S. in Nursing Program this spring. The number of students in the program is increasing, and the program is expected to expand in the near future.

New courses

A number of new courses have been added to the course offerings of the University of Iowa. These courses include courses in computer science, business administration, and engineering. The new courses are designed to meet the needs of students in these fields and to provide them with the skills necessary for success in their careers.

Energy, etc.

An article on the topic of energy was published in the recent edition of the University of Iowa Journal. The article discusses the importance of energy conservation and the need for more efficient energy usage. The article also highlights the potential of renewable energy sources as a way to reduce our reliance on fossil fuels.

Choir openings

The University of Iowa Choir is currently seeking new members. The choir is open to all students and is particularly interested in students with a strong voice and a passion for music. Rehearsals are held weekly and performance opportunities are available throughout the year.

Blues band wows "em again at Gabe's

When emptying the recently purchased 15-year-old station wagon for Gabe's "Mother's Friday night," I was打动 to find that the station wagon was in need of some repairs. The front bumper was dented and the paint was chipped. After wondering whether Gabe's was a good place to get repairs done, I decided to go down there and have a few drinks. It was a pleasant surprise to find that the station wagon was in good repair and that the food was delicious.

Censorship plagues Soviet art

Censorship is a pervasive problem in Soviet art, and it is often difficult for artists to create work that is truly representative of their ideas. The government imposes strict controls on the content and style of art, and artists are frequently censored or banned. This situation is particularly evident in the works of many contemporary Soviet artists, who find it difficult to express their ideas freely.

Cagers edged by Illinois

By Neil A. Miroian

The Iowa women's basketball squad had its shot at the last shot - every moment counted. Illinois' Kaye Tresnak scored 25 points and the Illini winced 75-70 Tuesday afternoon in the Field House. Tresnak's shot clinched the final victory, which sealed the season's only loss for the Illini. Tresnak's shot, which was recalled and disallowed because one of the referees had missed the call, was the only shot that Illinois had to pull within 4+ points of Iowa. The game had been a seesaw battle, with both teams trading leads in the second half. Illinois had led by as many as 10 points early in the game, but Iowa came back to tie the game at 31-31. Iowa then took the lead back to 61-57 with less than three minutes left in the game.
