WASHINGTON (UPI) -- President Carter agreed Friday to try to break a deadlock over the Panama Canal treaties if the Senate will not change its rules to allow an up-or-down vote on the legislation. Carter said he would make a formal request to the Senate this week for such a vote.

"We are in complete accord to work without interruption through the weekend," was the final warning reported on the switch.

Sadat had no word to add to that statement, which he had issued Thursday, and which he read into the Senate record. He then repeated the president's three sessions with leading senators.

White House officials said they believed that Carter officials and Senate leaders on both sides of the aisle had agreed to try to iron out differences quickly.

Sadat's visit during the next two days of the week or so after the July 4th holiday will take the form of a "working visit," a Carter official said.

"I don't see anything that would keep us from completing meetings in two days," the official said.

Sadat arrived here Thursday to begin his talks, which were to be completed by Monday.

The city has since transferred $95,000 from the reserve fund to the snow removal budget. The reserve fund accumulated over the last two years was very little new, but it was enough to cover the cost of this year's snow removal.

The city and county have been working closely to ensure that the necessary funds are available for the upcoming season. The city has also been preparing for the possibility of using snowplows from the county's fleet to help clear city streets.

The city council has also discussed the possibility of implementing a snow emergency plan, which would allow for more efficient use of city resources during severe weather conditions. The plan would involve coordinating efforts between the city and county to ensure that all streets are cleared as quickly as possible.

Meanwhile, the weather is expected to remain cold and snowy throughout the winter season. The city's public works department is working to ensure that all necessary equipment and supplies are on hand to handle any unexpected situations.

In addition to the snow removal budget, the city has also allocated funds for other winter-related expenses, such as ice management and road salt. The city is working closely with the county to ensure that all necessary resources are available to handle the winter season.

Auto accident results in student's death

By ANNABE MURPHY

Iowa City Press-Citizen

A 38-year-old man was killed early Friday when he was struck by a pickup truck while walking along a roadway in Coralville.

Student Mushtaq Ali, a Pennsylvania State University student, was killed when his bike was struck by a pickup truck while he was riding it on the shoulder of Highway 6 with a snowboard.

The driver of the truck was arrested on a charge of vehicular homicide.

The accident occurred at about 6:35 p.m. on Tuesday, when the driver of the truck, who was traveling east on Highway 6, lost control of his vehicle and struck the student's bike.

The student was pronounced dead at the scene. The driver was taken to the hospital with minor injuries.

The Iowa Highway Patrol is investigating the accident, and the driver is expected to face charges.

A fundraiser has been organized to support the family of the deceased student.

Snow budget drifts in the red

By TOM MURPHY

The city of Iowa City has cut the snow budget for the upcoming season to $252,684, down from the original budget of $260,000.

The city council cut the budget due to a decrease in the expected amount of snowfall. The city was able to reduce the budget because they have a reserve fund that they can draw on to cover unexpected costs.

The city's public works department is also working closely with the county to ensure that all necessary resources are available to handle the winter season, including plow trucks and snowplows.

Diversity reigns in farm groups

JESS DEBOER

The farm movement is a diverse and colorful coalition of organizations affiliated with farmers. Nowhere is this more evident than in the diversity of farm groups. The farm movement is a large, complex network of organizations working to improve the economic and social conditions of farmers. These organizations represent a range of interests, including issues related to agriculture, the environment, and social justice.

Some of the organizations that make up the farm movement are the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Farmers Union, and the United Farm Workers. Each of these organizations has its own unique approach to the challenges faced by farmers.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is a powerful lobby organization that works to influence legislation and policy at the federal and state levels. The National Farmers Union is a cooperative organization that represents farmers and their interests. The United Farm Workers is a labor union that represents farm workers.

The farm movement is also characterized by a range of grassroots efforts. These efforts are often organized around local cooperative efforts, such as farmer cooperatives and community-supported agriculture (CSA) programs. These efforts are driven by farmers and communities who are working to improve their own economic and social conditions.

The farm movement is an important force in American society. It is a reminder of the importance of diversity and the power of collective action. The farm movement is an example of how people can come together to address the challenges facing our world.

Guide seeks to resuscitate 'Daily News'

CHICAGO (UPI) — The executive board of the Chicago Daily News Sunday struck out against the fading media hero in an effort to keep the Chicago Daily News from closing down after more than 100 years.

The proposal will be reviewed and voted on at a full membership meeting Monday evening, said a spokesperson. It was designed to attract new members and stabilize the paper, which has lost a significant portion of its circulation in recent years.

The Daily News, a long-time staple of Chicago's journalism community, is facing financial challenges and has struggled to attract new subscribers. The proposal includes a plan to reduce costs and increase revenue through various initiatives.

Kim will testify, Jaworski says

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Leon Jaworski, special counsel to the House Ethics Committee, predicted Sunday the House panel eventually will get to the 'crux' of its investigation into Special Envoy Ambassador Kim Jong-chul's possible use of government funds to influence his Korean counterparts.

Jaworski said Kim's testimony is critical because the committee needs to probe into Korean influence-buying before it can make further progress on the case. "If Ambassador Kim's testimony is not forth coming, we will not have the whole story," he said.

Jaworski added the committee is "very interested in hearing" Kim's testimony because the special envoy's role and activities are "the central focus of the investigation."

He explained that in its probe, the committee is seeking to answer the question, "Was this money used to remove contaminants?"

"I believe absolutely that it will be made available," Jaworski said. "I have been assured by Ambassador Kim personally, and his testimony will be made available." He added it will be "precisely under what circumstances that may be." He said there would be an ongoing dialogue with Kim's aides about the Korean's ability to answer questions during the hearing.

The Senate Ethics Committee is to vote today on whether to recommend filing of perjury charges against five former House members who committed ethics violations.

In all, about "two dozen" Congressmen may be guilty of violating ethical standards and may face some form of legislative punishment. Jaworski said he has "seen no evidence" that any of these cases involves a "coercive effort" to influence the House.

Jaworski said Kim's testimony is "one of the central elements of the investigation." He noted Kim's testimony is "important because he is the central figure in the secret lobbying operation, to testify before the House.

"I believe that there is no influence buying that has not already been revealed," Jaworski said. "I think everybody has seen the evidence that is already available."

“If you think I am engaging in wishful thinking, but I believe that I have an extremely strong case that would make the congressmen involved face serious legal consequences, that there is so much evidence available that it is hard to believe that there is more."

The House and Senate panel will file the case in the 93rd Congress on a "legitimate matter of public interest," Jaworski said.

President Lyndon B. Johnson, Jaworski also said, has no greater rights than private business now has. Johnson, Jaworski said, will have to order the Hill taking some money up for him and we Just want to know who the congressmen involved face serious legal consequences, that there is so much evidence available that it is hard to believe that there is more."

Ethiopians launch "all-out" attack

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) - Somalia's leader is pressing for an all-out attack by Soviet and Cuban-backed Ethiopian forces in southern Somalia.

Somalia has been interested in the region for years and has been looking for a chance to strike back at Ethiopia, which has long been a rival in the Horn of Africa.

The leader of Somalia is said to be considering a massive military campaign against Ethiopia, which has been fighting a civil war in its eastern region.

In recent weeks, Somalia has been stepping up its military preparations, reportedly sending additional troops and equipment to the area.

The Somali government has also been加大了对Ethiopia的外交压力，要求其立即停火并从两国边境地区撤军。 Somalia has been urging the international community to take action to prevent further violence and instability in the region.

Pakistan and Somalia are close allies, and Pakistan has been a strong supporter of Somalia's efforts to defend its sovereignty.

The Middle East is a complex and volatile region, with numerous countries and conflicts vying for dominance. Countries such as Pakistan, Somalia, and others are all trying to assert their influence and gain control of the region.

Ethiopia's move to launch a full-scale attack on Somalia is seen as a significant development in the ongoing conflict in the Horn of Africa.

Carter resists pressuring Israel

President Carter reaffirmed his commitment to the United States to play an active role in the search for peace and to encourage efforts by others in the region that progress is made in the Middle East.

The White House said the president would further refine his approach to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict in the months ahead.

"The president is committed to a two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict based on the principle of two states living side by side in peace and security," a White House statement said.

Israel, which has been under pressure from the United States to return to negotiations with the Palestinians, has been resisting efforts to pressure it to make more concessions.

The president's statement comes as the United States and other countries are increasing efforts to jump-start the peace process in the Middle East.

The White House said the president remains committed to a two-state solution based on the principles of security, stability, and normal relations between Israel and the Palestinians.

The president's statement also reaffirmed his commitment to the security of Israel and its allies.

The president's refusal to pressure Israel is seen as a significant setback for efforts to jump-start the peace process in the Middle East.

The president has been under pressure from both Israel and the Palestinians to take a tougher stance on the conflict.

The president's statement is likely to be welcomed by Israel, which has been under pressure from the United States to return to negotiations with the Palestinians.

The president's statement is also likely to be met with criticism from the Palestinians, who have been pressing for an end to the occupation and for self-determination.

Jazz & Grover Washington Jr. sizzle and soar

The Hancher Entertainment Committee has brought another excellent jazz to Iowa City in recent years. We've been treated to Weather Report, the Crusaders, Stanley Turrentine, and the Billy Cobham-George Duke band among others. The format and feeling of the show were more akin to a late night jam session than a polished jazz revue. The fluid rhythm and sound of the group made you feel that you were sitting in on the jam session itself.

Wrestlers dominate Michigan foes

By MIKE CULLEY

Michigan's 30-0 victory over Iowa on Wednesday Night is second only to a 30-0 win over Ohio State last week. With a win over 200 of the 309-pounders, Michigan's John Clancy defeated Iowa's Mark McSweeney, 6-1, in the match's final bout, allowing the Wolverines to claim a 20-0 victory over the Hawkeyes.

McSweeney's win was the only one for Iowa in the match, as Ohio State's Marco Martino defeated Iowa's John Newcombe, 6-1, in the 160-pounder. Michigan's Mike McManus defeated Iowa's Tim Hargrave, 6-1, in the 174-pounder, giving the Wolverines a 19-0 lead early in the match.

Michigan's Dan Gable, who won 17 matches at 197 pounds, had the most impressive performance of the evening, as he defeated Iowa's Brian Cornell, 6-1, in the 190-pounder. Gable's win gave the Wolverines a 24-0 lead, which they held for the remainder of the match.

Gable's performance was part of a larger trend for Michigan, as the Wolverines outscored the Hawkeyes 30-0 in the match. Ohio State's Randy Lewis, who defeated Iowa's Ron Hargrave, 6-1, in the 197-pounder, added to Michigan's lead, giving the Wolverines a 21-0 lead at the halfway point.

Michigan's victory also came on the heels of a 30-0 win over Ohio State earlier in the week, giving the Wolverines a 60-0 record on the season. The Wolverines have not lost a match this season and have won every match by a margin of at least 18 points.

Michigan's next match is against Iowa State on Wednesday Night, with a win over the Hawkeyes expected. Michigan leads Iowa State 14-0 in the overall series, with the last meeting coming in 1993.
