Atomic sub peril denied by Navy

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Atomic submarines are not necessarily more dangerous than other nuclear submarines, a Navy official said yesterday, as he assured the nation the Navy had taken all precautions to prevent accidents.

"I don't see any reason to believe there's any problem," Capt. William C. Card, public relations officer for the navy, said.

Card said the navy had taken a number of steps to prevent accidents, including 24-hour watch over the reactors and regular checks on the equipment.

"We're doing everything we can to prevent any accidents," Card said.

All university amateur photography contest

These are the winning entries in the indoor and sports category of the All-University Amateur Photography Contest. Starting above right and moving clockwise: The winner was David Damm for his photograph of a referee with the ball, second place went to Charles Hopkins, and David Maxwell took third. The names of the winners, and their photographs, in the remaining categories will be published Thursday and Friday. The contest was judged by Prof. John H. Schulze and Assistant Prof. Peter Feldstein, both of the UI Department of Art and Art History. The winning photographs in the competition, which was sponsored by Grand Avenue Programming and The Daily Iowan, will be exhibited through March 13 at the Union.

RUN A MILLION-DOLLAR BUSINESS IN LESS THAN A YEAR.

Supply officers are the professional business managers of the Navy. Financial management, controlling, merchandising, purchasing—everything it takes to keep the Navy moving moves through them. Even at a junior level, the Supply Officer is responsible for an operation equivalent to a million-dollar-a-year business. If you'd like to know more about Supply School and the Navy Supply Corps, contact your recruiter or send your resume to:

No tears for bellicose Bella Abzug

To the Editor:

I must write to Michael Harper's trenchant favor to NY Times for your March 3 column on the other morning (Mon., Feb. 6). Obviously, Harper, like many New Yorkers and a few presidential candidates have been taken in by the waaah-waaah-waaah Abzug syndrome.

Bella Abzug was one of the first to get the notion that a woman could run for Congress, get elected and serve. In 1970, she ran for the Senate from New York, losing to Democrat Mario Cuomo. Since then, Abzug has continued to fight for women's rights.

In 1972, she ran for the House of Representatives and lost to Democrat Richard Lamm, becoming the first woman to run for the House from New York. She has continued to be an active member of the Democratic party, and has served as the Chair of the Democratic National Committee.

Recently, Abzug has been active in the political arena, serving as a surrogate for candidate Hillary Clinton during the 2016 primaries. Her experience and dedication to the cause of women's rights make her a formidable force in the political world.

We should be supporting women running for public office, not bemoaning their every move. Let's celebrate Abzug's contributions and remember that she is a force to be reckoned with in the world of politics.

- The Editor

The peak of popularity—our new survival pants.

Get this: in New York state, thanks to the "Anti-Fashion Act" of 2019, we can now legally wear pants under our skirts! And not just any pants, either. We can choose from a variety of styles, including leggings, joggers, and even sweatpants.

So, if you're tired of the constant pressure to conform to traditional beauty standards, take a cue from Bella Abzug and get creative with your fashion choices. After all, as Harper noted, "We should be celebrating Abzug's contributions and remembering that she is a force to be reckoned with in the world of politics."

We can all learn a lot from Bella Abzug and her unwavering dedication to the cause of women's rights. So let's get out there and show the world what we stand for, regardless of what anyone else thinks.

NCAA power called dictatorial

WASHINGTON — The NCAA, the national collegiate athletic association, is being accused of running a prison where athletes are punished and cheated.

The association, which oversees college sports, has been criticized for its handling of cases involving student-athletes.

The NCAA's policies and practices have been called into question, with some saying the organization is more concerned with protecting its reputation than enforcing rules and ensuring fair play.

The NCAA's power is being questioned by some who believe it is too dictatorial in its enforcement of rules.

NCAA can suspend players, even in prison

The NCAA has the authority to suspend players, even in prison, for violating its rules.

In some cases, players have been suspended for activities that occurred off the court.

This has led to criticism of the NCAA's policies and practices.

NCAA's influence extends to prison inmates

The NCAA's influence extends to prison inmates, who are forced to adhere to the organization's rules and regulations.

Inmates are required to follow the NCAA's guidelines, even when they are notCOMPETITIVE SPORTS. Inmates are required to follow the NCAA's guidelines, even when they are not playing basketball.
