The Johnson County Board of Supervisors on Tuesday approved the funding of the San Remo Community Center.

The board called an 183% increase in the cost of living in the center. But it still remains 63 per cent above last year’s budget.

Barry Dorsch, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, said that the increase was necessary because the center has not been able to keep up with the rising cost of living.

David Hanna, director of the center, declared in favor of the project.

UI warehouse 'grandma's attic' of odds & ends

by Michael R. Hedges

The UI supply warehouse in Iowa City recently bought a 100-year-old, dirt-covered, 3 1/2-by-10-foot mahogany desk that once belonged to the late A. E. Winter, a professor of botany in the department of biology. The desk was bought for $30 at a garage sale in Iowa City, and the desk's history is now an artifact of sorts.

The desk, which was used as a desk for many years in the department of biology, was purchased from the estate of A. E. Winter, a professor of botany at the University of Iowa. The desk was used by Winter for many years in his research and teaching activities.

The desk is currently on display in the University of Iowa's Natural History Museum, where it can be seen by visitors who are interested in Iowa City's history and culture. The museum is open year-round and is located at 100 N. Gilbert St. in Iowa City.

In the Editor's

Dear Editor,

I am writing to correct the record regarding a column by Sharon Copeman in your paper on Friday, June 26, which stated that I had said I was not a member of the National Moon Dog Society.

I should have been more clear in my writing. I did state on the record that I have never been a member of the National Moon Dog Society, and that it is not true.

Sincerely,

John Smith

To the Editor,

I think the only reason that Paul Dornfeld was not a member of the National Moon Dog Society was because he was too busy fighting for our rights as consumers.

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- South Korean businessmen who operated illegal gambling refineries in the U.S. for the first time Monday were sentenced in federal court here to up to seven years in prison, $2.8 million in fines and $850,000 in restitution.

As a result of a South Korean ministry of justice Initiatives to encourage gambling in the U.S. to avoid tax evasion, more than 40 South Korean merchants have been convicted of gambling-related offenses in American courts. Among them were gambling operations in New York and Chicago.

The defendants were accused of operating gambling operations in the U.S. through illegal gambling exchanges, in violation of the U.S. gambling laws.

"The defendants, who operated gambling operations in the U.S. through illegal gambling exchanges, in violation of the U.S. gambling laws, were sentenced to up to seven years in prison, $2.8 million in fines and $850,000 in restitution," said a South Korean prosecutor.

"The court ordered the defendants to pay a total of $2.8 million in fines and $850,000 in restitution to the victims of the gambling operations," he added.

Guarneri Quartet plays well in poor setting

By RUSSELL GRAY

Bach's management makes aow-clad, somewhat diry Guarneri Quartet on the concert floor. Fortunately for the listener, the quartet is unaware of this large group of people who are not sufficiently disinterested not to be affected by the sound of the Guarneri Quartet playing to a very fine group. Amin tackles human rights in ‘year of reconciliation’

THE DAILY IOWA — 'Freedom of press a luxury in 3rd World’

LONDON — At the world’s most brutal regimes, Monday was not a day for celebration. Human rights were all but nonexistent, and the misuse of power by the leaders of these nations was all too common.

In Uganda, the government of Idi Amin

Dada continued to terrorize its citizens, who were living in constant fear of reprisals.

In Bulgaria, the communist regime maintained its grip on the country, stifling all forms of expression.

In the United States, the government was busy silencing its critics and suppressing dissent.

But in the midst of this darkness, there was a glimmer of hope.

The United Nations

established a commission to investigate human rights violations, and its work was closely watched by people around the world.

The commission, under the leadership of John Githongo, was charged with investigating

and reporting on human rights abuses.

The commission’s work

was not easy, but it was essential.

That

was out there,

it

NEW YORK (UPI) — Encouraged by a surge of commercial interest and owners of the minor leagues' return to business as usual, the majors say they will start spring training 10 days earlier than scheduled.

The move is being made to take advantage of good weather in the Midwest, which is expected to last longer than usual this year.

In the past, the majors have been hampered by cold weather and early snow in the Northeast, forcing them to delay their opening day. This year, however, they have been able to start earlier because of warmer temperatures in the region.

The decision to start spring training earlier was made after consulting with the owners of the minor leagues, who have also been able to start earlier due to favorable weather conditions.

The majors say they will still have plenty of time to train and prepare for the regular season, which is scheduled to start on April 1st.
Ga. Tech in NC

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech officially placed the Atlantic Coast Conference on notice Monday and will become an eighth member by October.

The executive council of the ACC met Monday in Atlanta and voted unanimously to accept Georgia Tech. Tech's official notice will be sent to the ACC on Thursday.

The former Southern Conference member and SEC recruit is currently the nation's No. 4 team. The ACC had been in talks with Tech for several years in an effort to expand from 12 to 14 teams.

The ACC is looking to add one more team in addition to Georgia Tech, which it could be.

The other members of the ACC are Boston College, Notre Dame, Duke, Maryland, North Carolina, Wake Forest, Virginia and Southern Mississippi.

Tech's move will mean a major football boost to the ACC. Tech and Miami are both independent.

They will also be moving into the ACC for basketball and will be eligible for bowl games.

The ACC was formed in 1953 as the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. It has been a top basketball conference for most of its existence. Now, it will become a full-fledged football and basketball conference.

The ACC has been looking to expand to add more teams in recent years to increase its competitiveness in football. Many schools were interested in joining the ACC and Tech was one of them.

Tech is located in Atlanta and plays its home games at Bobby Dodd Stadium. It is known for its strong football program, featuring former Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker. The Yellow Jackets have won seven conference championships and one national championship.

The ACC has been a top basketball conference for many years, with teams like Duke, North Carolina, Miami and Virginia playing competitive games.

However, the ACC has struggled in football. The conference has not produced a national champion in football since 1981, when Florida State defeated Nebraska.

Tech moving to the ACC will give the conference an immediate boost in football. The school has a strong football program and is expected to be a top contender in the ACC.

Tech's move to the ACC also means a major change for the SEC. The SEC has been Tech's most recent conference. The SEC has been Tech's home for 18 years, and the school has a strong football program.

Tech's move to the ACC will have a significant impact on the SEC, which will lose a major team. The conference will have to find a new conference to replace Tech's loss.
