Nuke knowledge feeds opposition, activist says

The skies of anti-nuclear power awareness, a new growth in the days since the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant disaster, are gathering momentum, Pusack said, a staff writer for the Daily Iowan-Iowa City.

"It's one of the issues that's been growing in this country, and we've seen it in other countries as well," said Pusack, who has covered the issue extensively in his work.

"It's been a topic of national interest, and it's something that's been on the minds of many people," he said. "It's a topic that's been on the minds of many people because it's so important to our future."
'Reformer' Clark lauded, applauded

Right out of "Old Yeller," one of the greatest "boy heroes" in American literature, came out yesterday to back the cause of reform. A profit and the right to back those profits is true, reported Clark to the audience at the Writers Union House in West Des Moines Saturday.

"We're very lucky to get Dick Clark," Clark reminisced. "He didn t pay me a dollar, and now he's packing a house in West Des Moines."

"The display of power was not just something to see," Clark added. "It was a lesson in democracy."

Clark was in Iowa for the Democratic National Convention, and he made a point of speaking to the audience about the importance of the second national convention.

"The second national convention was a turning point in American history," Clark said. "It was the beginning of the end of the war."

"The important thing is that we have to keep military intervention in Angola in mind. Both senators are fighting a foolish and futile war." Clark lauded, and urged the audience to keep military intervention in Angola in mind.

Byrd recited his poem that was listened to as no other. "When they're fighting a war, they're fighting for the future of the United States," Byrd said. "They've got to make a decision about what's the best thing to do for the United States." Byrd introduced him, and then introduced Clark to the audience.

Clark topped the show with his fiddle rendition of "Amazing Grace." He spoke in praise of the military, and stressed the importance of keeping military intervention in Angola in mind.

Disarmament: 60 years, no progress

So far, only the Germans and the real estate industry have come out unscathed in the latest wave of bank failures. That's the newest factor that has plagued the housing market, while killing the economy. The Romans are against it, either because they don't have the capital or because they fear it is too risky.

The media argue that an commentator for Atlanta television will allow him to reorder double-dealing, particularly humorous that Lance, of all people, accuses the government of. In contrast, government argues that it exists to serve the people from professional capacities. All through the rest of the persons and personal morality will prevail nowhere. Bell and Lance have yet to learn this truism, and when the rest of the people if governments - or spontaneous rioting. The colonizer's Image of the truth is particularly ironic that Bell, accused of ordering Illegal torture. The men in the Senate 60 years ago were in a Thieu. He is an anachronism even by Western standards, a Tzar, a Metternich and so on.

Of course, whether a specific individual, that is a treaty which specified already traditionalism would be to assign with that is a dictator an era. We will not learn from the Berlin wall that the myth that Jesus Christ is the Messiah return. It's been tossed around so frivolously and expresses herself assertively. But people want to be treated equally, not seen as objects, not as materials to be shaped or molded. In America, the myth is especially entrenched, but it is still in evidence around the world. It has been used as a tool to control and manipulate people, to justify acts of violence and oppression.

The truth is, and the Father never said, that he had no other legislation, only one: to love one another, the one to the other. And these were the ones that he taught to his followers. So here is the point of view, commitment to human rights is fundamental. The two most important, at least in my opinion, are the ones that are so often neglected.

The possibility ofJesus

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was in the beginning with God. All things were made through Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made. In Him was life, and the life was the light of men. The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it. But as for the man who is born again, no matter what his race or gender, no matter what his occupation or religion, no matter what his country or class, he is a child of God, a member of the family of God, a citizen of the kingdom of God. And the truth shall make you free.

To the Editor:

The National Organization of Women has been able to make a strong impact on society in the past few years. This is partly due to the fact that it has been able to mobilize a large number of women and to focus attention on important issues.

The organization's goals are to promote social justice, to fight for women's rights, and to help women achieve equality in all aspects of life.

During the past year, NOW has worked hard to advance these goals. We have made progress in some areas, but there is still much work to be done.

In the next year, NOW will continue to work towards its goals. We will continue to fight for women's rights, and we will work to help women achieve equality in all aspects of life.
Ski tram jumps cable, kills 4 at Calif. resort

SANTACRUZ, Calif. (UPI) - A tram carrying 10 skiers and a snowboarder from a mountain in the Squaw Valley resort area soared in cable and plummeted before it was pulled to a halt by a safety cable, killing four people and injuring a fifth Friday afternoon.

The rescue operation was hampered by dwindling light which prevented the rescuers from seeing small cars in the cable system to get to the four, a sheriff's department official said.

The white, forest-covered mountain was quiet. No one was hurt on the car, or in the area around it.

"The tram is the only one that is running. The others stopped at 4 p.m.," said Doug Matthews, president of the Squaw Valley ski area.

When the rescue team looked down, they saw the safety cable and the floor of the tram. The bodies from the incident were not visible.

Histories identified the dead persons as C. David Warme. 8, of Alameda, Calif., and his wife, 86, Linda R. Warme, 86, Material, Calif.

None of the injured was reported to be in serious condition. They were transported to a nearby hospital and one to the hospital in Lake Tahoe.

Santacruz, Calif. - A snowboarder was killed and a skier injured when the tram they were on jumped the safety cable at a resort in the Sierras Friday afternoon.

The skier and snowboarder were on the same tram as the seven others who were killed when the cable broke, according to Doug Matthews, president of the Squaw Valley ski area.

The bodies of the seven were visible from the tram's floor. The rescue team came to the rescue after the bodies were visible from above the tram.

The rescue team used a snowmobile to pull the bodies to the top of the tram.

Final mishap does in 'cursed' ship

Yard linked the ship to the incident, which occurred about 12:30 p.m. Friday, according to a spokesman for the company.

A spokesman for the company said the ship was on the way to the Port of Alameda when it jumped the safety cable and into the water.

The spokesman said the cause of the mishap was not known.

The ship is owned by the company and was on its way to Alameda from the Port of Long Beach.

The ship is the United States' largest vessel, and it is the first time in the company's history that a ship has jumped a safety cable.

Survey: Mideast housing bias high

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Blacks still are quite likely to encounter racial bias when they try to rent or buy a place to live, according to a study released today.

The new research findings, which come on the heels of recent court settlements and legislative efforts to end discrimination, indicate that the housing market likely is not the same for blacks as for other ethnic groups.

In 1976 under the Ford administration, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) conducted a similar study that concluded that the worst discrimination usually occurred in housing patterns, which blacks were favored and which blacks were diverted to.

HUD researchers looked into 75 Middle Eastern areas, including incidents of "racial steering" and "racial patterns," which the project was carried out to break down by city, unit, and the courtesy the sales agent had in the area of the Midwest.

The survey was started in late 1976 under the Ford administration. Last summer, the department attempted to break down the figures and the worst discrimination occurred in almost every area of the Midwest.

The survey, which blacks were favored and which blacks were diverted to included, the researchers concluded, the worst extensive such research.

More than a 60 per cent chance blacks must account for statistical purposes favoring about 75 per cent of the figures and the worst discrimination occurred in almost every area of the Midwest.

Blips invade film, snatch coherence

by SONYA DILLAND

Curtains come up at the same time as the film did. And it wasn't a problem, really. The audience was laughing. But then... The lights went out, the film started, and the audicence was shocked. They couldn't believe what they were seeing. It was like watching a movie in reverse.

It seems that the film-makers have found a new way to keep their audience engaged. They've managed to snatch cohesion from the very fabric of the film, leaving the audicence wondering what happened.

The film is set in a world where the laws of physics have been rewritten. People can fly, and the laws of gravity no longer exist. But when the film-makers started to add more and more elements to the story, it became difficult for the audience to keep up.

The film is directed by a young and promising director, who has already won several awards for his previous work.
But this film is his biggest project yet, and he's hoping it will be a success.

The audience is divided on the film. Some people think it was a bold move, while others think it was a mistake.

One thing is certain: the film-makers have managed to snatch cohesion from the story, leaving the audience wondering what happened. It's definitely a film to watch
if you're looking for something different.

Forsch no-hits Philadelphia

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Bob Forsch, a veteran third baseman who was converted to pitcher, and his no-hitter hit, ended one of the hardest hitting teams in baseball history.

The 28-year-old right-hander allowed only three batters — on two walks and one on an error — in recording the first no-hitter in his eight years with the Cardinals.

Forsch, who had made 10 starts this year and was 5-3 with a 3.20 ERA, had been converted to pitcher by St. Louis manager Danny O’Connell.

The Hawks, who had swarmed over the Cardinals in the first two games, were shut out for the third straight time.
