City planners want industry; counclors favor non-polluters

City Council plans to loan Iowa City's downtown area to industry in order to attract new industries and other major employers.

Iowa City's downtown area is considered a prime location for industries. The city has been working on a plan to attract new industries by improving the infrastructure and providing incentives for businesses.

The city councilors are divided on the issue. Some believe that it is important to keep the downtown area free of industries, while others believe that it is necessary to attract new industries to strengthen the local economy.

Mayor John W. Vaughn said, "We have to be careful about what we bring into the downtown area. We want to keep it attractive for people who want to live and work here."

Councilor Glenn E. Campbell added, "We need to consider the impact that industries could have on the quality of life in the downtown area."

But Councilor William L. Brown argued, "We can't stand by and do nothing. We need to attract new industries to keep the downtown area vibrant and growing."
Iowa court upholds drug conviction

By ROBERT MURPHY

The Iowa Supreme Court on July 8 upheld the conviction of an Iowa man who sold drugs, sustaining the trial court's decision that he be sentenced to a term of 15 years in the Iowa Men's Reformatory.

The court denied the appeal of Leonard Zuhlke, 20, of Coralville, who was convicted in District Court of possession with intent to distribute and delivery of a controlled substance. Zuhlke was sentenced to prison on July 1, 1975.

Justice Charles Young, writing for the court, said the appellant had "presented no new facts, arguments, or legal theories persuadable to the trial court's decision and the Iowa Supreme Court's affirmance of the trial court's conviction in this case.

On July 24, 1974, Coralville police officer Donald H. Murphy arrested Zuhlke in an automobile outside an apartment building in Coralville.

Young wrote, "On the appeal of Zuhlke, the Iowa Supreme Court affirmed the conviction on the 15-year sentence.

"It is our view that the evidence is sufficient to support the conviction," he said. "The Iowa Constitution states that the power of an accused person to disprove the guilt of the state is limited to a reasonable doubt, but the burden of proof is on the state to prove the guilt beyond a reasonable doubt."

Paraphrase:

The comprehensive plan for the Iowa City, which is currently undergoing a comprehensive planning process, aims to provide for the future of Iowa City by establishing a uniform plan for land usage. Comprehensive planning is an effort to direct anticipated growth and preserve open spaces, ensuring a sustainable and environmentally sound community. The plan is intended to serve as a guide for developers and to help maintain the city's character and quality of life.

In the letter to the editor, the writer expresses concern about the potential impact of Iowa City's comprehensive plan on open spaces and the environment. While the plan includes provisions for parks and open spaces, the writer questions whether developers will be required to pay for such spaces that may not be utilized by the community as a whole.

In response, staff from Iowa City's comprehensive planning department explains the importance of comprehensive planning in directing growth and development, while also acknowledging the need to consider the interests of developers. They assure the public that the plan is designed to balance the needs of developers and the community, ensuring sustainable development.

The city council has raised concerns about the comprehensive plan and its potential impact on affordable housing and open spaces. The council has stated that the plan will need to be reviewed and amended to address these concerns.

In conclusion, the comprehensive plan for Iowa City represents a significant effort to balance the needs of developers and the community, while also ensuring sustainable development and preserving open spaces.

UI undergraduates cost less to educate than students in Iowa's other two public institutions, but the graduates are no less important to the state, according to legislators who voted today.

The move to cut costs to educate a student at Iowa's three universities is studied every semester by a committee composed of representatives from each school.

Six UI students at the university are eligible to credit hours earned at the university (UI), while 60 percent of students at each school.

Airport plan to be clarified

City officials will meet with consultants April 30 to try to resolve which of two proposed airport master plan study reports should be used to guide recommendations for expanding the city's airport.

The consultants - representatives of members of the City Council, the Airport Commission and the Johnson County Regional Planning Authority - are working on the feasibility and definition of public meetings during the course of the master plan study. The study's findings will be made public.

Planning consultants were concerned that city residents would regard airport expansion as a threat to their safety and environment. The consultants in both studies, said, will provide only a public hearing, not a vote, on the master plan. Other informational meetings were designed to receive public input before decisions were made for the public, or should be made by the public, said.

The consultants' visits were planned to show the public the consultants had heard.

Students trade off brain for food

Two students of the University of Iowa journalism school, Brian Pitfield and Mark Callister, recently developed a new opportunity to plan an event on the campus of the University of Iowa. The event is to be held on April 30th.

The event is to be held at the University of Iowa, and is to be open to all students and faculty.

The event will include a variety of attractions, such as games, food, and entertainment. The event is expected to be well attended, and is to be held from 6pm to 10pm.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The economy took a sharp chill during the first quarter of the year, with financial and trade analysts fearing the worst performance in national output since the downturn of 1973-74.

The National Association of Purchasing Management, a private business research group, reported yesterday that its measure of the current economic trend dropped to 45, the lowest reading since the 1973-74 recession.

Some economists called the report "alarming" and "ominous," saying that the figures indicated the economy was heading for a recession.

"This is very serious," said one economist. "It's a clear signal that the economy is slowing down."

Others, however, were more cautious, noting that the report was based on a survey of only 1,500 manufacturers and retailers and that it might not reflect the overall economic situation.

"I wouldn't make too much of it," said another economist. "It's just one survey, and it might not be representative of the entire economy."

The report showed that the economy had slowed in the first quarter, with the current economic trend index falling to 45 from 47 in the fourth quarter of 1974.

"This is a significant drop," said a third economist. "It shows that the economy is not as strong as we thought it was."
Canal treaties in limbo until ’79

WASHINGTON — Although the Senate worked most of this year to get them approved, the Panama Canal treaties now remain to see what it is going to be like under the new regime, or the expected split of authority and a complete shift of authority under the new regime.

President Reagan and Senate leaders are expected to have appointed a new treaty team to work on the treaties now that will sit in limbo for some time before this nation, before this government, before the American people will see what it is going to be like.

MOSCOW — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance arraigned in Moscow yesterday to try to break a deadlock in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, but said “complex and difficult problems remain in the talks, including an entire new family of Soviet missiles.”

The problems remain to see what it is going to be like under the new regime, or the expected split of authority and a complete shift of authority under the new regime.

But if the Americans agree with the Panamanian action taking place in the Canal Zone, they would have to intervene in Panama, China’s role in the African problem.

Americans in Canal Zone wary

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — The Western world’s last bastion of power in the Western Hemisphere and possibly its last line of defense, the Panama Canal Zone, has been thrown into turmoil by the recent actions of the Soviet Union.

The American military and civilian workers who have lived in the Zone for more than a century are now faced with a new reality: the possibility of living under Soviet rule, or the threat of a U.S. military intervention to protect their safety.

Grigorenko given political sanctuary in United States

NEW YORK (UPI) — Grigorenko, a major general in the U.S. armed forces, was given political sanctuary in the United States by the Department of Justice.

The decision came just hours after Grigorenko, a major general in the U.S. armed forces, was given political sanctuary in the United States by the Department of Justice.

Grigorenko, who was wounded and disabled during the war, was invited to come to the United States to receive medical treatment and to work on behalf of the United States.

The Department of Justice decided that Grigorenko’s actions were in the best interests of the United States and that he should be allowed to remain in the United States.

It’s Your Right to Check Your Credentials

Sometimes people, as employers of employees, try to gather entry to our customers’ homes. They say they want to see the wiring, or inspect the chimney or something else. And their purpose, visibly, is to perform fraudulent "repairs." Whenever you’re in doubt, you may see the person’s Company identification. All Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Company employees carry photo ID cards in color like the one shown here. If you’re still in doubt, call your nearest Iowa-Illinois office. We’ll be happy to check it out.

Peru brothels study blasted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Part of a $200 million federal grant was going to Peru brothels to study sexually transmitted diseases among virgins. What one academic researcher did finally send a very short excuse to Harry Proxmire.

The $200 million grant was awarded to the University of Minnesota to study the spread and control of sexually transmitted diseases among virgins. However, some concern was raised about the morality of the research.

“While Dr. van der Bende from Peru sent us a very short excuse, we have received no response from the University. We are therefore concerned about the possibility of the project going ahead.”

In a statement, the University of Minnesota said it had sent the project manager a summary of the research, which is still ongoing. The project will be reviewed by a local ethics committee before it continues.

Peru brothels study blasted by the National Institutes of Health and academic researchers after it was blasted by Harry Proxmire.

In a letter to Proxmire, the Department of Health and Human Services said the project was stopped. The letter said the study was "not consistent with the values of the American public and the American way of life."

Peru brothels study blasted by Harry Proxmire.

Proxmire, a member of the Senate’s Appropriations Committee, opposed the funding for the project, saying it was unethical and would do more harm than good.

"The study is designed to understand how women become involved in prostitution and what factors contribute to their decision to enter the business. The methods include interviews with women and their clients, as well as observations of brothels. "The study is not consistent with the values of the American public and the American way of life," Proxmire wrote in a letter to the White House.

The National Institutes of Health had awarded the University of Minnesota $200 million to study the spread and control of sexually transmitted diseases among virgins. However, some concern was raised about the morality of the research. The University of Minnesota had previously said the project would be halted.

Philadelphia depth baffles Willis, Knicks

The Knicks' most glaring problem has been Bob McAdoo's offensive in-fluencc. McAdoo, a dynamic NLI scoring champion who would be expected to score 30-40 points a night for the Knicks, has scored 110 points in four games — the least third-best in the league — but still only 10 points. If the Knicks were playing in the closing weeks of the season, the coaches would have to consider his lack of scoring a problem, but they are scored only 90 points in six games, and they are playing
