WASHINGTON (UPI) -- Electric utilities charge the public at least as much as the federal authorities on the cost of natural gas to fund the emergency fund, which is used to finance the utility's activities.

The FERC said it had been informed by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) that the emergency fund is being spent on the cost of natural gas for making the emergency fund available for utility activities.
Paraquat home-test kits unreliable, overpriced

For those concerned about the possibility of the herbicide paraquat being present in the marijuana they have bought and consumed, a reliable test kit is now available. The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML) and the Consumer Protection Service of Iowa have called the test "an extremely useful tool..." to discover the presence of paraquat in marijuana. "The test is an important tool because the consumer should be able to see if their marijuana is contaminated,"

"The only method for detecting paraquat is through the use of a spectrophotometer, which can be expensive."

Steel yard blues

An advertisement in Menasha's Wall Street Journal by the Battelle Institute, which is the main benefactor of the research facilities in Menasha, adds a bit of grim humor to the industrial theme. The advertisement reads: "BUT THAT LTXILL WE ARE IN THE MILLION WE".

Dear Daily Iowan,

As a reader of your newspaper, I would like to express my concern about the ongoing conflict between the steel industry and the American workers. The industry is struggling with the global glut of steel, and the workers are facing the threat of job loss. Despite the efforts of the government and unions to support the industry, it seems that the situation is not improving.

Sincerely,

Grassroots campaigning in 74th District race

BY ROGER THUROW

Jean Lloyd-Jones is running for the 74th District state representative seat, and both he and his opponent say the divergent experiences they have had have prepared them well for the legislative job they are aspiring to.

Lloyd-Jones, 47, is a custodian in the University of Iowa's building services department. He has been a custodian for 13 years and had the job for the last five years. He says he's run the entire gamut of repressive labor conditions. He says he didn't like it, but he didn't like the job anyway. He says he's gotten a lot of experience in meeting people on a local level.

"I have 13 years of cleaning high school buildings, small and large," Lloyd-Jones said. "I've dealt with people who aren't in a very good situation financially. I've just been given the opportunity to talk to them."

Lloyd-Jones, who seems to be someone who can talk with people, is someone who can handle a conversation. He's a good communicator, he says. He says he's been able to communicate with people, and that's a good skill to have in a legislative job.

By the way, Lloyd-Jones is a good listener. He says he's been able to listen to people, and that's a good skill to have in a legislative job.

In any case, Lloyd-Jones says he's been able to listen to people, and that's a good skill to have in a legislative job.

But he also says there's a lot more to being a custodian than just cleaning floors. He says he's been able to talk to people, and that's a good skill to have in a legislative job.

Woman quits cops after beating

MIAMI (AP) — Sandra Jones, only the third woman ever admitted to the Highway Patrol Academy, has withdrawn, claiming she was knocked down three times by the morning instructor and forced to run until her feet bled.

Jones, whose husband taught her how to run, had tried for a year to get into the academy in Tallahassee, but left this week after only eight days.

"I didn't want to go in the academy," she said. "There was no training, no course to prepare you to go on." She complained, "The instructor" was too hard in the head and the back.

The following day, she said, "I went to the academy, wanted to go on" with Sherman, went to the academy director, "All there were great qualifications and none saying "no physical ability," she said.

But the next day, she said, "I told the colonel of the academy, 'Sir, I'm not going to do this anymore."

"I didn't quit because of the instructor," she said. "I quit because I think I was punished for going in the doctor."
