WASHINGTON (UPI) — A unique new drug apparently effective against cancer of the testicles, which primarily strikes young men, is expected to receive government approval soon for use in patients with the disease.

This drug, and a second one, could lead to a dramatic improvement in the way many men with cancer are treated, doctors said yesterday.

The drug, called vincristine, is expected to be available within the next few months.

The drug was tested by Dr. Andrew B. Mead of the National Cancer Institute and Dr. Frank D. Nolan of the National Cancer Institute.

Carter talks about summit

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Jimmy Carter said yesterday that the Camp David accords, which he regarded as the most pleasant and significant moments in his life, are a sign that the world is entering a new era of peace. Carter and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin met with him on Mount Sinai. "I don't know if I will ever work on the same level again," he said.

The welcome Carter received at the church was reflected in a Washington Post public opinion poll that showed Carter gaining support even among voters who have been hostile to him, and giving him an 11 percent jump in his favorability ratings. The poll involved two measures, one while the summit was under way and one following the dramatic climax. The initial lead had Carter in a virtual tie with former President Gerald Ford in popularity, with 41 percent for Carter and 39 percent for the man he succeeded.

The follow-up poll, taken last week, showed 38 percent of those asked would vote for Carter and 32 percent for Ford. The poll's margin of error is plus or minus 4 percent.

The poll's margin of error is plus or minus 4 percent.

"I think some of the most important moments of my life occurred in the last two years," he said, "and of course one of the most pleasant." He gave no examples.

He said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat suggested that once a treaty is finally reached, Carter and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin should meet with him on Mount Sinai. "I don't know if I will ever work on the same level again," he said.

Cool Arab reception fails to damp Vance optimism

By United Press International

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said today that Arab reception of the creation of an independent Palestinian state was "far from rosy." But he added that Arab leaders had not yet made a "serious commitment" to the Camp David proposals, and that he was "not ready to accept" them as a basis for peace in the Middle East.

Vance told the House Committee on International Relations that Arab reception of the proposals was "far from rosy," but that he was "not ready to accept" them as a basis for peace in the Middle East.

One view of Camp David

While being grateful for success at Camp David, one is left wondering what did President Carter get for this time that was so different from last face failure? Carter's determination seems to have had only minimal effect. Success, they say, made more easy the willingness of Begin and Sadat to work together. The least of it is that it gives us a greater understanding as to the nature of the problem. It is understandable that Congress wants to be helpful but we want to get on with the problem of the world itself.

Camp David offered Carter an opportunity to do far more than act as a troubleshooter for the two men. It is his purpose to lay the groundwork for a general agreement rather than a mood of elation by bringing the two parties together.

The experience of these last months during which the Camp David team had been working very hard, especially in the last two weeks, has to some extent changed Sadat's and Begin's basic approach. They both have found out that they need each other to get beyond the current circumstances and, in the hope that the United States will remain United States, then they need Carter also.

One of the reasons was the absence of some crucial messengers to the world for the last time. The absence of such a mission is not just in the case of Camp David, but the whole relationship between Carter and Sadat and Begin is now more and more to be seen as a role of the world, if they wish to get beyond the current circumstances, then it must be the world's understanding that they need Carter to play the role of the world.

The problem was that the Summit, after all, is not the end of the world. There are many more things that have to be done.

WASHINGTON - (AP) - The weather forecast for the airplanes blue skies, bright sunshine, light winds. But it was only a temporary respite. The government is doing some, it would seem that Williamsburg will be one of the worst storms of the year. In the meantime, they say prosperity and property satisfaction are the key issues.

President Carter has been invited to Washington by the Senate and House of Representatives, but he has yet to accept. He is expected to play the role of the world in the coming days, and will meet with both Sadat and Begin in Washington on Wednesday.

They are invited to sit in the plane of the President of the United States, and will arrive in the United States for a meeting, regardless of any other factors.

The Summit failed, however, because of the demand for more power and the demand for more influence. The President of the United States, and the President of Egypt, and the President of Israel, are all working together in the hope of getting the situation under control.

Freedom is not at one's own door. It is on the other side of the world. The President of the United States, and the President of Egypt, and the President of Israel, are all working together in the hope of getting the situation under control.

One thing is clear, however, that the Summit failed. Rather than sending Secretary of State Cyrus Vance on a peace mission, it seems that the President of the United States, and the President of Egypt, and the President of Israel, are all working together in the hope of getting the situation under control.

It seems that Vance was not allowed to play the role of the world, and was forced to agree. Vance was not allowed to play the role of the world, and was forced to agree. Vance was not allowed to play the role of the world, and was forced to agree.

Dolly Parton looks like accountants, volleyball, wigs, chiffon

Dolly Parton is the perfect example of how one person can have a significant impact on popular culture. Her charm, beauty, and talent have captivated audiences for decades, and her influence extends far beyond music and entertainment. Born in Tennessee, Parton's journey to the top of the charts was anything but ordinary.

Dolly Parton was the product of a small family in rural Tennessee. She grew up in a poverty-stricken environment, but her determination and hard work paved the way for her success. Parton's passion for music was evident from a young age, and she began singing in local churches and talent shows.

Parton's breakthrough came in 1967 with her debut album, "The Lonesome Road." This album featured some of her most iconic songs, including "Jolene" and "Coat of Many Colors." Her voice, which was both powerful and emotive, quickly gained her a following, and she soon became a household name.

Parton's success continued with albums like "Heartbreaker," "9 to 5," and "9 to 5: Music From The Motion Picture" soundtrack. Her music was not only popular but also socially conscious, and she used her platform to promote issues like poverty and gender equality.

Parton's musical career was just one aspect of her extensive influence. She became a role model for many women, inspiring them to pursue their dreams and be confident in themselves. Parton's beauty was not just skin deep; she was also a pioneer in the representation of women in the entertainment industry.

Dolly Parton was more than just a singer; she was a businesswoman, a philanthropist, and a humanitarian. She founded Dolly Parton's Imagination Library, a program that provides free books to children in need. This program has reached millions of children worldwide, helping to promote literacy and education.

Parton's influence extends far beyond the entertainment world. She has been honored with numerous awards and accolades, and her legacy continues to inspire new generations of artists. Dolly Parton is a true icon, and her impact on popular culture is undeniable.

Angels morn Bostock's death

By THORNTON

Los Angeles (AP) - Bostock had no roommate, Bostock had no locker. Bostock had no picture in the Los Angeles Times.

The Angels had no loss to mourn. Bostock had no name.

On Sunday morning, the Angels' clubhouse at the Coliseum was transformed into a memorial to their 39-year-old guard, Lyman Bostock.

Bostock was slain by a sniper early Saturday while eating breakfast at a Los Angeles hotel. He was shot dead in his room at 12:30 a.m. before the Angels were scheduled to play the Chicago White Sox.

The police said Bostock was one of the nation's most heavily armed guards.

"If this ever happened to me, I'd be out of here. But I'm happy that no one was injured,"said one of the Angels, who asked that his name not be published.

Bostock was killed in a six-pack of violence.

The Angels were stunned.

"Lyman was a good man, a good guy," said one of the Angels, who asked that his name not be published.

When he came to the clubhouse, he always had a smile and a wit. Lyons didn't take the losses in stride. He didn't even think about the losses.

When he came to the clubhouse, he always had a smile and a wit. Lyons didn't take the losses in stride. He didn't even think about the losses.

"He was a good player," said one of the Angels, who asked that his name not be published.

Cyclones stun Hawkeyes

BY STEVE NEMETH

The Iowa State Cyclones scored a 17-10 victory over the University of Iowa Hawkeyes, propelling their record to 2-0 for the 1979 season.

The victory followed a weekend doubleheader in which the Cyclones' men's tennis team defeated the University of Denver 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, and the women's tennis team won 6-4, 6-3.

In the first game of the doubleheader, the Cyclones' 340 total yards against the Hawkeyes' 230 lead to the Cyclones' victory.

The game was played on September 25th, and the Cyclones held off a tough fight from the Hawkeyes to secure the win.

Nancy Smith recorded a simply destroyed Iowa, and everyone'sмотрелась на нее как на находящуюся под угрозой. Лучшая защита не спасла ее.

The destruction wasn't just physical; the Cyclones' mental game was also strong, with Rabinowitz losing a single point in the third quarter.

The same story was heard by the crowd in the stadium, which was divided 1086-107.

There's no doubt that it was just a great victory for the Cyclones. The defense was sound and everyone was ready to play football, Coach Earl Boykins said. "There was no margin for error. We made sure we didn't make any mistakes, and we were determined.

"We didn't play well and we still won," Boykins said. "The Cyclones came through in the clutch as usual.
