Korchmari comeback!

(Philadelphia, Associated Press) — Chess grandmaster Vasily Korchmari defeated all the experts and seriously challenged the world's top chess player on Friday. This was the second game in a two-game tournament to determine the world's top chess player. The tournament is held under the auspices of the Chess Federation of America and is sponsored by the State Senate and the World Chess Federation. The tournament is the first of its kind in the United States and is being held in response to the recent resignation of the world's top chess player, Kasparov, who has claimed that he is no longer a credible threat to the title.

The tournament took place in the Senate Chamber, which was packed with spectators. The first game was a draw, but Korchmari emerged victorious in the second game. His victory was met with cheers and applause from the spectators.

After the game, Korchmari said, "I am happy to be able to take part in this tournament. It is a great honor to be able to play against the world's top chess player. I am looking forward to the third game and I hope to be able to win."
Council to consider plaza hotel plans

By Jack Whitis

Friday's meeting at the Des Moines Civic Center will be one of the last opportunities for members of the public to add their comments to the process of designing and developing the Iowa Plaza hotel and letters to the editor campaigns. The public is invited to be heard, whether they live in or out of the area, and to contribute to the planning process.

The debate will be held in the Des Moines Civic Center Building, with additional time for public input into the process. The public will have the opportunity to participate in the debate, which will be held in the Des Moines Civic Center Building.

Conservative fantasies

The U.S. Senate following the lead of the House of Representatives, voted Friday to reject the equal rights amendment. The 48-52 vote was 12 more than the 36 votes the ERA needed to pass. The vote nullified 23 years of effort by many states, including New York. The ERA was defeated because of the opposition of 23 conservative senators. The states.

In the coming months, but the sex role differentiation was somehow morally culpable is not only excess population and starving homeless. Thursday masses doing applying modern paternalism, it is evidence. The problem of numbers. They are problems of social class as well.

The urge in the attempt to be to the American family. Both the parts and the contributions have been thorough, sometimes exaggerated. It is a simple, one-sentence statement to the effect that equal rights shall be guaranteed all citizens without regard to sex, not only because of their importance, but also because of their importance to our nation.

Moral non-issue

We appear to have a new moral issue that surfaced in controversy, and it is not just the issue of sex roles, but also the issue of social class. The issue of sex roles has not been treated with the same seriousness that the issue of social class has been. Most Americans do not have any real concern about the issue of sex roles, and we should not.

The same issue is a non-issue. To suggest that the Indian women who performed the rites and the Indian men who performed the rites, or any other group of people who have performed the rites, are somehow morally culpable is not only excessive, but also incorrect. The issue of sex roles is not a moral issue, but rather a social issue. It is a question of social policy, and it must be treated as such.

I would like to comment on the article on the recent developments in the treatment of hyperthyroidism published in the October 1, 1978 issue of the oes. The article, written by Dr. A. Brown, reported on the use of radioactive iodine for the treatment of hyperthyroidism. The article was well written and informative, but it failed to mention an important aspect of the treatment.

While many country people consider a cow the yellow bus that goes around campus, but to Freshmen involved in the organization it is a complex, impersonal thing. For their anti-institutionalism has become so intense that they consider the university an institution, a place where they are forced to participate in the organized activities. This is the reason why they do not come to campus, or why they drop out after one or two weeks. They have rejected the formal structure of the university and the educational system.

In the same vein, one might question the role of the university in society. The university is an institution that has been created to provide education, albeit at a higher level than that provided by high schools. However, the question of whether the university is serving its purpose is still open to debate. Some argue that the university is too focused on research and teaching, while others believe it should be more concerned with community service.

The question of the role of the university in society is complex and multifaceted. It is evident that the university is a significant institution in society, but whether it is fulfilling its purpose is still open to question.

Acting Company performance perfect

Anouilh's 'Antigone' hasn't aged well

By Judith Green

The Acting Company, a New York theater, is in residence at the Hancher Theater through September 29. The company's reputation, carefully fashioned in performance of the classics, is legendary.

At the recent performance of Jean Anouilh's 'Antigone' at the Hancher Theater, the company's reputation reflected itself: the Greek tragedy is a difficult piece to perform, but the company's efforts were appreciated. The setting was contemporary, the costumes modern, and the acting forceful. The play, however, is a very serious piece, and the company's treatment of it was not particularly successful.

The play is set in WWI, during the German occupation of Creon's Thebes. The play examines the conflict between Creon, the tyrannical king, and his sister, Antigone, who defies his edicts. The play deals with themes of justice, honor, and faith, all of which are expressed in the play.

Unfortunately, Anouilh's approach to the play is not as successful as it could be. The play is a very solemn piece, and the company's attempt to make it more modern did not work. The handling of the characters was not as convincing as it could have been, and the dialogue was not as forceful as it should have been.

The acting was good, however. The company's director, Judith Green, did a good job of handling the material. The company's work was well-received, and they were able to handle the difficult material in a way that was not particularly convincing. The company's approach to the play was not as successful as it could have been, but overall, they did a good job of handling the material.

Hawks run 7th despite injuries

At injury-weakened Iowa (9-7-3, 4-3-2) the second-ranked team in the Western Intemalional Hockey League (WHL) on Tuesday, The Hawks, who entered the game with a 7-3-2 mark in the WHL, were led by a trio of

Rochester natives in the lineup: Dave Egan, Greg Campbell and Dave

Ham. "It was a good game," said Hawks coach Don Johnston. "We had to play well, and we did." Johnston added, "We were able to show some character and determination.

On the Line

A total of 15 minutes without a score after the first period, the Hawks scored three goals in the second period to win, 4-1.

The Hawks opened the scoring with a goal by Mike White at 2:05 of the second period. White's goal was assisted by Egan and Campbell.

The Hawks extended their lead to 3-0 with goals by Jim Johnson at 16:23 and Bill Hocking at 18:10 of the second period. Both goals were assisted by Egan.

Rochester's lone goal came at 14:08 of the third period on a power play. The Hawks closed out the game with a goal by Campbell at 17:35.

The Hawks' next game will be against the Kansas City Blades, the top team in the WHL, on Friday, January 29. The Blades are currently leading the league with a 10-1-2 record.

Hawks 'earn' wrath of fans in loss

By JIM JERMYN
Sports Editor

Coach Bob Cingulummi doesn't blame the fans for being agitated over the Hawks' last three-straight losses.

But Jeff Barlow, who kicked a 48-yard field goal in Sunday's 14-0 loss to the Minnesota Vikings, doesn't believe his team is that bad.

"There's been a lot of pressure on the fans this year. I don't think it's fair to blame the fans for being impatient with the team. I don't think they're being unreasonable," Cingulummi said. "It's a lot of pressure on us coaches as well, with so many new players and injuries to deal with."

The Hawks, who are currently 2-9 on the season, have struggled to find consistency on both offense and defense. Their offense has been inconsistent, with Barlow's two field goals being the only points scored by the team. Meanwhile, the defense has allowed an average of 24.7 points per game, contributing to the team's losing streak.

"We're not making enough plays on defense," Cingulummi said. "We're not getting turnovers and we're giving up too many big plays. We need to improve in those areas if we want to turn this season around."
