Tradition
The years college campuses were the scenes of growing student unrest. Dr. Robert Townley, author of the "Vietnam War Repealed" pamphlet, pointed out that during the Vietnam War, students were at the forefront of the anti-war movement. The authors of the pamphlet state that the students were "exploited" by the Vietnamese war. In Chicago, activities lasting weeks to months were organized to "take back" the universities and demonstrate against the war. Many students were seen demanding a voice in the formulation of public policy. These activities were met with police and military force by the city authorities. In particular, the authors note that the students were demanding the removal of "RFQ" from the universities. The authors also note that the students were demanding the "RFQ" to be replaced by a "free market" system in which students would have more say in the formulation of public policy. These activities were met with police and military force by the city authorities.

The problem, however, was that judgment was primarily in the hands of the students. The Committee decided that the amount of judgment the students would receive was not sufficient. Following the conclusion that the control center was unable to control the event, the Housing and Human Relations Bureau was established in 1957 to handle the issue of civil rights. The Bureau's role was to coordinate the actions of the various agencies involved in the event and formulate a more objective approach to the issue of housing and human relations. Japanese dance is exercise in observation

Hancher audience exhibits Western impatience

JALI KELLY

Gaining a performance of the Bugaku dance in the Yoder Auditorium of Hancher Hall Tuesday night, Hancher Hall audience members were left with mixed reactions, but some were left with a new outlook on the truly exotic form.

"I have a feeling that Hancher Hall audience members were very much interested in the Bugaku dance," said Dr. Jean Brown, a member of the program committee.

Several artistic remainders were present, and the bugs were seen preserved through Japan's talent. Bugaku, which is highly thought of by the people of Japan, is held every year in Tokyo. Bugaku is a highly stylized and ritual dance. The entire program usually performed five different characters, each of which is played by different actors.

Indian voter registration vexes auditors

By United Press International

A more rigorous registration drive by South Dakota's registration has encountered its first major roadblock. According to United Press International, there has been some voter confusion as the registration deadline approaches.

Monday was the last day to register under the voting law in North Dakota which requires state residents to register at least two months before an election. The deadline for voter registration was December 15.

Auditors, election and tribal officials said that the registration drive had been going well in the northern part of the state, particularly in cities where most Native American registration centers are located.

That's what's troubling the area's nine county auditors, who say their staffs have been overwhelmed by a steady influx of voters seeking to register for the primary election.

Dent expects recognition

NEW YORK (UP) - Dent, a man who began his baseball career in the Negro Leagues, is on the verge of receiving the greatest recognition of his career. Dent, a member of the National Baseball Hall of Fame, was selected for the All-Star Game by the American Baseball League. This is the first time in his career that Dent has been selected for the All-Star Game.

Dent's selection is a testament to his years of hard work and dedication. He has been a consistent performer throughout his career, and his selection for the All-Star Game is a well-deserved recognition.

Dent's selection also highlights the importance of recognizing the contributions of players who have excelled in the Negro Leagues. These players, who were often overlooked by the mainstream media, have made significant contributions to the sport of baseball.

Dent's selection also serves as a reminder of the need for continued efforts to honor and recognize the contributions of players who have been historically marginalized. By recognizing Dent's achievements, we can help to ensure that his legacy is preserved and remembered.

In conclusion, Dent's selection for the All-Star Game is a testament to his hard work and dedication, and it serves as a reminder of the importance of recognizing the contributions of players who have been historically marginalized. We should continue to celebrate and honor Dent's achievements, and we should strive to ensure that his legacy is preserved and remembered.
In the standing tournament, Cathy Hockin QB Dolan likely starter.

Junior Bill Dolan, who beat Iowa in their regular season game last week at Iowa, in the likely starter at quarterback for the game against Ohio State. Dolan, the Iowa quarterback, has been playing well in recent games and has shown good decision-making skills.

The competition for the starting quarterback position is very tight, with both Dolan and Hockin playing well. Dolan has a strong arm and is a good scrambler, while Hockin is known for his accuracy and ability to read defenses.

The coaches are looking for a quarterback who can lead the offense and make good decisions under pressure. Dolan has shown good leadership qualities in recent games and has been effective in the pocket.

Hockin, on the other hand, has shown good poise and decision-making skills in recent games and has been effective in directing the offense.
