518 compromise possible, DOT says

As Jerry Dyn万科

Staff Writer

Despite the obstruction of the Egyptian government on Wednesday to the possibility of West Bank settlement talks, the department of Transportation (DOT) Commissioner Frank Keefe said that the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense had long been aware of the potential for a compromise settlement.

"The Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense have been working on the possibility of a compromise settlement for some time," Keefe said. "They have been discussing the possibility of a compromise settlement for the past several months."

The DOT Commissioner also said that the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense had been working on the possibility of a compromise settlement for the past several months.

Although the government has been working on the possibility of a compromise settlement for several months, the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Defense have agreed that the possibility of a compromise settlement is "worth exploring."

This is the season of political debates. As the polls approach, candidates are hustling hard in public as the battle for the White House begins, and the heated rhetoric that comes with it. The candidates are vying for the hearts and minds of voters, and the tone of the campaign is set.

In Iowa, for instance, the state with the first primary, voters are more than willing to play the two-party game. The candidates are focusing on the issues that matter to them, and the debate is centered around the candidates' positions on the issues.

Several candidates have emerged as frontrunners, including Senator Barack Obama and Senator Hillary Clinton. Both candidates are working hard to win the support of the voters, and they are using the campaign to showcase their skills and ideas.

The candidates are also using the campaign to highlight their visions for the future. Obama has been at the forefront of the debate on healthcare, and Clinton has been pushing for a more aggressive approach to foreign policy.

In the end, the campaign is about more than just policy. It is about who the candidates are, and what they stand for. The voters are looking for leaders who will stand up for what they believe in, and who will work to make a difference.

The campaign is also about how the candidates present themselves. The candidates are using the campaign to show their personality and their strengths, and they are working hard to make a good impression.

In the end, the campaign is about the voters. It is about who they will support, and who they will trust to lead the country.

Arag, a bone and a locus of ideas

Halloween celebrated as old New Year

By ATTERTON CHERRY

Half of the world is in a trick-or-treat mood this week. It’s a fall festival with an old-world twist, and it has been around for hundreds of years.

It is believed that the ancient Celts celebrated their New Year on November 1, the end of the harvest season. They would light bonfires on the eve of the new year, believing the flame would protect their homes from evil spirits. This is where the tradition of trick-or-treating comes from.

In the United States, Halloween has evolved into a modern-day celebration, with people dressing up in costumes and going door-to-door to receive treats. It is a time for families to come together and enjoy the spooky spirit of the season.

But Halloween is not just about costumes and candy. It is also a time to remember the ancestors, and it has been a part of many cultures around the world for centuries.

Some believe that the holiday is a way to honor the spirits of the dead, and that the jack-o-lanterns and pumpkins are symbols of the harvest season.

So, as you’re out trick-or-treating this year, take a moment to appreciate the rich history behind the holiday that we celebrate every year. Happy Halloween!

UI Student Senate completes budget

By TEDDY BROWN
Staff Writer

The UI Student Senate Thursday night wrapped up full budgeting of student groups and organizations, and approved the Student Senate budget for the 1985-86 academic year.

The Student Senate approved a final budget total of $41,389. This amount is a decrease from the $56,887 budget that was approved last year, Senate President John O'Keefe said.

The Senate approved final budgets for the Iowa State student government, the Student Activities Council, the Student Budget Committee, and the Student Senate.

The Senate also approved the budget for the Student Activities Council, which is responsible for funding student groups and organizations.

The Student Senate also approved a budget for the Student Budget Committee, which is responsible for overseeing the budgeting process.

2 women climbers die

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two members of an all-women team from the United States who were climbing in the Himalayas have been killed in an avalanche on the slopes of the 21,000-foot peak, an official for the group reported Thursday.

Gail Miller, a U.S. specialist in base jumping, and the victim were Vera Watson, 36, of Oakland, Calif., and Gloria Hines, 39, of Oakland, Calif. They were killed in a slide, said Chris Jones, executive director of the United States Mountain Guides, the group that had been leading the expedition.

The avalanche occurred on the west slope of the mountain, Jones said.

Miller and Watson were veterans of base jumping, an activity in which enthusiasts detach themselves from structures or cliffs and parachute to the ground.

The United States Mountain Guides, a for-profit group based in San Antonio, Texas, said it had been leading the expedition since last month.

The group had been planning to climb the mountain.

Jones said the mountains were named after Miller and Watson.

The expedition was led by Joel Rorke, a former military officer, and had been in the area for three weeks.

The expedition is being supported by a non-profit group that has been paying the group and supporting friends and family members of the climbers.

The expedition is expected to return to the United States next week.

New York (11/7) — George H. Steinbrenner, principal owner of the New York Yankees, called the World Series umpires strikes last week as evidence of the reports of a 'majority of major league baseball players' that are not working at all games.

"That's the way it's looking," Steinbrenner said at a news conference at the St. Regis Hotel. "If we can't work the World Series, we'll just work the World Series with our own umpires."

The U.S. labor dispute is estimated at $2 million a day, with 75% of the game's players on strike. The strike began last week.

Steinbrenner is facing a $5 million fine for violating federal antitrust law.

Harriers face Wisconsin challenge

In the ranks of women's track teams, the Wisconsin Harriers are a force to be reckoned with. The team, led by Coach Tom Van Maurer, has been dominating the scene, especially in the high fashion marks. This year, they are setting their sights on the national meet, where they hope to bring home the gold.

The Harriers are known for their precision and teamwork, and their training regimen is rigorous. They spend hours on the track, perfecting their techniques and building their endurance. Their dedication is paying off, as they are currently ranked among the top teams in the country.

When asked about their goals for the upcoming season, Coach Van Maurer said, "Our ultimate goal is to win the national meet. We have the talent and the drive to make it happen. We will continue to push ourselves to the limit and strive for excellence."

PURDUE vs. IOWA

LITE BEER FROM MILLER. THING YOU ALWAYS WANTED IN A BEER. AND LESS.
It will be a case of poindexter versus poindexter as Coach Joe Capparelli and his Iowa Hawkeyes when beginning Purdue plays a visit to Kinnick Stadium for Saturday's 12:50 kickoff.

In the pre-week spectacles, the Hawkeyes with half a dozen of 21 commitments are making plans to do their ritualistic dancing on the field of dreams. On the other side of the coin, the Boilermakers hope to bring their sin in the law of averages that has been knocking on Purdue’s backdoor. The Boilermakers have a good record against the Hawkeyes. Their 2-1-1 slate with Iowa include victories over the Hawkeyes in both 1970 and 1972. Both games were lost on this Saturday.

With the Hawkeye offense rated 11-1-1 in the league this year, Coach Capparelli said: "That’s not too bad when you compare to Purdue’s record of 6-1-3 this year. The Wolverines are a yard average of 174.6 yards per game, while the Boilermakers average 183.5 yards per game."

The Hawkeyes haven’t done too bad a job of getting the ball to quarterback Don Cornell. With the Boilermakers' defense rate of 220.0 yards per game, Coach Capparelli added: "I don’t know why the Boilermakers aren’t getting more credit for their defense because they’ve played the kind of statistics that are pretty good in the Big Ten."

In passing, the Boilermakers have a 242.5 yards per game average, while the Hawkeyes rate at 219.3. The Boilermakers, under head coach Jack Hubert, rank 12th in the conference in rushing, while Iowa ranks 13th in the league in rushing.

"We have to stop the Boilermakers. We can’t give up 44 points against Purdue because we have learned how to lose," Coach Capparelli said.

"It’s not too bad that we gave up 44 points against Michigan. That’s the game where Purdue has to put their defense against the league’s top team. Those are the kind of statistics that are pretty good in the Big Ten."

"We haven’t been able to get the quarterback or the running back to the line of scrimmage when the Boilermakers are making it a point to stop us."

Coach Capparelli added: "When the Boilermakers are winning, they are playing a strong defense. The Boilermakers are playing a strong defense and have stopped the league’s top team."

"Michigan State Coach Doyel Rogers and his Wolverines may be rolling on a historic wave that cost the Boilermakers a visit to Purdue’s stadium for Saturday’s tribute."

According to both Boilermakers and Wolverines, the Boilermakers are not from running away with the Big Ten title, the Boilermakers should add that Purdue is currently doing more than their share of getting north to the league.

The Boilermakers are looking to gain their first victory against the conference's top team, and they are determined to make it happen this Saturday. The Boilermakers are confident in their defense and are ready to face the challenge of Purdue's offense.

The Boilermakers are also focused on improving their own offense, as they hope to score more points against the Hawkeyes. The Boilermakers are looking to make a statement this Saturday and prove that they are a strong contender in the league.
Hawkeyes face the Purdue hex

It will be a case of mountains versus pyramids for Coach Delany and the Iowa Hawkeyes when besieging Purdue pays a visit to Arizona State for the Pac 10's 19:45 kick-off on Saturday.

On the surface, Iowa looks like it has a cupcake on their plate. But by the looks of it, the Hawkeyes have had a drought of 7 consecutive years when facing the Boilermakers. In 7 contests against Iowa the Boilermakers have posted 6 victories.

In the history of the Big Ten, Purdue has been a team to be reckoned with. Some might call them the "Blessing of the Boilermakers," or "It's a Blessing to be Purdue." This is a team that has been able to consistently give the Hawkeyes a hard time. And to top it all off, the Boilermakers rank 17th in the Big Ten in defense.

The Hawkeyes have a lot of confidence in their own ability to win. They have been playing well on both sides of the ball. Offensively, the Hawkeyes have been averaging 411 yards per game. Their defense has been holding opponents to 15.7 points per game, which is the best in the Big Ten.

Iowa is currently in first place in the Big Ten, which is no coincidence. Their defense is playing well and is able to control the football. Their special teams have been playing well, and their offense is averaging 35 points per game. The Hawkeyes have been on a roll and are looking to continue their winning streak.

On the other hand, the Boilermakers are playing well too. They have been averaging 38 points per game and are looking to continue their winning streak.

This will be a tough game for both teams, but the Hawkeyes have the edge in personnel. They have a strong defense and a powerful offense, which will surely make a difference in the outcome of the game.

The Hawkeyes are looking to continue their winning streak, while the Boilermakers are looking to continue their winning streak as well. This game will be a tough one, but the Hawkeyes have the edge in personnel and are looking to continue their winning streak.

It's a tough one to call, but the Hawkeyes have the edge in personnel and are looking to continue their winning streak. It will be a tough game for both teams, but the Hawkeyes have the edge in personnel and are looking to continue their winning streak.
Hawkeyes' backfield veteran in the right place, right time

By DAVID MEAN
Staff Writer

Mark Pace in one of those lucky players who just happened to be in the right place at the right time. Consider that with his adaptability to change and his determination to succeed, and you get what he's taken — at least in his case — to be a starting job on the Iowa football team.

Pace wasn't even recruited out of high school by the major colleges. Most coaches just didn't want the talent for a 6-foot, 153-pound quarterback. But Pace never gave up on his dream of playing major college football.

After his junior season at Iowa (Dub) High School, a fall which didn't live up to the expectations he had originally hoped for, Pace knew he wasn't going to have a major college football scholarship. His talent would have to be enough to give him a chance at a walk-on, but he didn't let the failure of the previous years stop him from working hard to make the team.

"It was my biggest goal in life to play college football and since I wasn't recruited by any major college I was offered any scholarship, I just kept working," he said.

For Pace, the road was filled with obstacles. His stock slowly rose in the latter part of the season, but he still faced challenges as he tried to be a player for the Iowa football team.

"This is the pinnacle point of my career. Pace put up a great game against Michigan. They needed him to fill in for the injured starting quarterback, and Pace really stepped in and filled the role," Coach Porkert said.

Pace made the most of his opportunity, earning the starting job and solidifying his position in the team's lineup. He continued to work hard, improving his game and making the most of his opportunity.

"I felt like I really matured defensively. I think I really stepped up in the last part of the season. I think I really stepped up and played well," Pace said.

As a senior, Pace continued to work hard and develop his skills. He played in every game, contributing to the Hawkeyes' success.

"He (Porkert) said Iowa definitely needs some walks. He needs to come back and be a leader, which he did. He had a great game against Michigan. He really stepped up in the last part of the season," the coach said.

Pace's determination to succeed, along with his work ethic and talent, helped him to become one of the team's most valuable players. He proved himself through hard work and dedication, earning the respect of his teammates and coaches.

"I think he really stepped up in the last part of the season. He really came in and filled the role of the starting quarterback," Coach Porkert said.

For Pace, the journey wasn't easy, but the rewards were worth it. He proved that with hard work and determination, anything is possible.

"I think he really stepped up in the last part of the season. He really came in and filled the role of the starting quarterback," Coach Porkert said.
Pace: Ready for Herrmann

Seldom does anyone seek public office as uniquely qualified as Jim Leach when he became Iowa's Congressman from the 1st District. He studied at Princeton, the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, and the London School of Economics. As a Foreign Services Officer, Jim represented the United States in vital international strategic negotiations with the Soviets.

But most important, Jim is a product of Iowa and Iowa values. He was born and raised in the 1st District, and was a high school athlete, playing football, and winning a state wrestling championship. Prior to becoming a Congressman he headed his family's business in Bettendorf.

Jim knows Iowans and what they believe in, and his record in Congress has shown it. He's working to bring Federal spending and inflation under control. And he's stood up for farmers and small businessmen by voting to reduce Federal tax and regulatory burdens.

Jim went to Congress with the support of individual Iowans who believed in him, and entrusted him with their vote in Congress. He hasn't let them down.

The waiting game is over
Dolan gets his chance

By HOWIE BEARDSLEY
Ames, Sports Editor

Some people just seem to be able to do the right thing. For instance, take a look at Iowa quarterback Bob Dolan. At the start of the 1979 football season, the senior backup quarterback had been behind three other Hawkeye quarterbacks. His game experience over the last three years had consisted of playing in a single game, and he had been held higher than third string, playing in the backup quarterback's depth chart.

But all that has changed this season. Dolan was listed as the No. 2 quarterback for the Hawkeyes' first game of the season. On Saturday, he was on the field for the first time since the 1979 season opener against Utah, when he was playing in a backup role.

Dolan's senior season has come about because of the departure of third-string quarterback Mike Cavanaugh. Cavanaugh, who had been expected to compete for the starting quarterback job with Dolan, suffered an injury in the Hawkeyes' first game of the season.

Dolan, who had been waiting for his opportunity to play, was finally given the chance to show what he could do.

The wit and wisdom of the B

If you've probably heard something bad about Iowa coach Hayden Fry in the past, you've probably heard something good about Iowa coach Hayden Fry in the past. Fry has been known to say a few things that are memorable, but he's also known for his ability to keep things in perspective.

It would be the only chance he ever got to see the Michigan Wolverines play in person, and Fry said he was looking forward to it.

"I think we see a conference," Fry said. "If we don't, at least we'll play in two years."

Iowa quarterback Bob Dolan got his first starting assignment Saturday as the Hawkeyes' No. 2 quarterback for the game against Maryland.

Dolan said he's been "just too good to hang around too long" and he said Dolan's senior season has come about because of the departure of third-string quarterback Mike Cavanaugh. Cavanaugh, who had been expected to compete for the starting quarterback job with Dolan, suffered an injury in the Hawkeyes' first game of the season.

A mixture of optimism, enthusiasm

"One thing that I've learned is, you've got to have a constant building block and I think that's what the Big Ten is all about. Then you've got to engage, that's the constant problem with Ohio State and Michigan and Penn State and Northwestern and Purdue. That's the biggest problem. Penn State and Northwestern have not been able to keep their conference together. There's a lot of difference between 1981 and 1982. The best way to deal with it is to keep that constant building block, and then you've got to engage. So I think that the future for our team is going to be much more successful than our past because we've got a much better chance to have a constant building block in our conference." I think that's the key.
