 Amid strikes, oil sabotage feared in Iran

Siamu newspapers Tuesday reported 80,000 workers at several oil wells in Iran had engaged in strikes and sabotage activity. The report noted that at least three workers had been killed in the conflict and that the government had not yet officially acknowledged the situation.

Washington (UPR) - The government Tuesday started its troops against the two groups sporting a series of violent attacks, including the stoppage of oil fields where a series of violent attacks had also been produced by the 30-year-old war of Iraq. The official Press agency reported that the hostilities were not yet over. The report added that the government had not yet acknowledged the situation.

In Patients, who had formed the attack, had carried out for the past four years or more a continuous campaign against the government and the requirement among the population. The patients had managed to overcome the sudden attack.

Questionable Peace Prize winners

Considering the winners in recent years, one begins to wonder why the Nobel Peace Prize is ever given at all. It's not that there aren't people in the world who deserve it, or that there aren't sincere, dedicated peacemakers out there, but there's always the fear that the prize may be turned into something of a joke.

It is indeed true that the prize has been called into question in recent years. The winner in 1991 was the late Sadat of Egypt, and the furor over the decision was considerable. Many people felt that the award was a slap in the face to the people of Egypt, and that it was a step in the wrong direction for the peace process.

Another example of the criticism was the awarding of the Peace Prize to a group of individuals for their work in the field of human rights. Some people felt that the group had not done enough to deserve the award, and that the prize was better suited to individuals who had made a more direct impact on the issue.

There have been many other examples of criticism over the years, and the question of whether the prize should continue to be awarded is likely to remain a topic of discussion for many years to come.

Environmental safety vs. costs

By DAVID SIMMONS

For several years, the issue of environmental safety has been a contentious one. While there are those who argue that the costs of implementing environmental laws and regulations are too high, there are also those who argue that the benefits of a cleaner environment are worth the cost.

In recent years, there has been a growing awareness of the importance of environmental issues. The public has been increasingly concerned about the impact of pollution on the environment, and there has been a rise in the number of people who are willing to voice their concerns and take action to protect the environment.

Some argue that the costs of implementing environmental laws and regulations are too high, and that the benefits of a cleaner environment are not worth the cost. However, others believe that the benefits of a cleaner environment are worth the cost, and that it is important to take action to protect the environment.

Press freedom endangered by court rulings

It appears that the New York Times' coverage of the Watergate scandal was in violation of the law. The Times' reporters and editors were found guilty of having engaged in illegal surveillance practices.

Whether an increase in reporters being monitored will have any impact is still to be determined. However, it is clear that the court rulings have had a significant impact on the freedom of the press.

The freedom of the press will be limited even further if these court rulings are upheld. It is essential that reporters be able to report the news freely and without fear of reprisal.

No longer able to guarantee the secrecy of their sources, reporters will be forced to become more cautious in their work, and to take more care to protect their sources from government interference.

The court rulings have left the freedom of the press in a precarious position, and it is essential that these rulings be overturned.

Unfortunately, there is no space for your letter today. It appears that the Department of Veterans Affairs is doing a poor job of communicating with the public.

When a specific group of people is represented by a leadership group, that group has no representation. The Department of Veterans Affairs is a federal agency, and it is important that it communicates effectively with the public.

I urge the Department of Veterans Affairs to take action to ensure that the views of the public are heard, and that the public is kept informed of the work of the agency.

Bus service for Heights possible

Iowa City, Thursday's hearing at University Heights was in order to help the site designated for the proposed jail, to provide a better view of Old Capitol Building.

"The board and the council have agreed to make the city a place where people can have easy access to our community," said City Manager Don Wiltz.

The city and University Heights have been working together to develop this area, which is a part of the proposed jail site.

Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission members agreed to support the plan.

Several weeks ago, the residents of Marcey Court, located on the street in front of the proposed jail, came to the city council meeting to express their concern. Several people have complained about the view of Old Capitol Building.

Iowa City officials have been trying to find a solution to the problem. They are considering various options, such as relocating the jail site or creating a buffer zone between the two buildings.

The city council has also been working with University Heights to develop a plan for the area. The city and University Heights are considering different options, including building a new parking garage and creating a green space.

The city council will continue to work on the plan and will make a decision on the proposed jail site in the near future.
New, Improved! Registration Ready

The UI's new computerized registration system is now available for students, faculty and staff. If you have not used this system before, here are some tips to help you make the most of its capabilities:

- Scheduling classes: The system allows you to see all the courses offered for a given semester, and you can add or remove classes at any time before the registration deadline.
- Viewing your schedule: You can view your current registration status and see any changes you have made.
- Drop/add classes: If you drop or add a class, the system will automatically update your registration status.
- Checking availability: You can check the availability of classes before you register.
- Printing schedules: You can print your registration schedule at any time.

When using the system, it is important to keep the following in mind:

- Registration deadlines: Make sure you register before the deadline.
- Prerequisites: Check the prerequisites for each class before registering.
- Course limits: Be aware of the limits on the number of credits you can register for.
- Financial aid: Check with the Financial Aid Office to see if you are eligible for financial aid.

If you have any questions or need assistance, please contact the Associate Registrar's Office at 319-335-1235.

Iowa City police host to 1,200 distance runners

JAY CHERVIN
Senior Writer

One of the fastest distance races in the area gets underway today. The City Center 26.2 will draw upwards of 1,200 runners into downtown Iowa City.

The event is open to the general public and features a 26.2-mile run around the city streets. Participants are encouraged to run, walk, or even jog.

The race starts at 8 a.m. at the intersection of Clinton and Linn streets and ends at the same location.

Injuries slow Hawkeyes

The Iowa State football team lost to Nebraska Saturday night, 18-15, after a series of injuries left the defense in shambles.

The Hawkeyes, who were ranked third in the nation last week, lost four key players to injuries during the game.

1. Changing the "sills" and "core" terminology to "general education." 2. Adding to the current offering, a Freshman Orientation Week, for incoming freshmen. 3. Establishing a mandatory two-hour orientation session for all students, including upperclassmen. 4. Abolishing the option of a pass/fail for general education courses. 5. Revising the proficiency placement test for all entering students. 6. Changing the Rhetoric requirement to a 12-hour college course in writing, a 2-hour course in speaking, and a 1-hour writing course in the major to be taken as an elective.

1. Eliminating the Physical Education requirement.

Rossman-Abit possible

WASHINGTON (UPI) - NHL deputy hockey commissioner Pete Parnell said Tuesday he would be in favor of international hockey competition. At the same time, he was cautious about the possibility of a possible game between the Soviet and Canadian hockey teams.

"There's a situation developing where the USSR hockey people want to play us in the fall," Parnell said. "I'm not sure if they think they'll win."

The international game would be an early-season affair in September or October. Parnell indicated that the NHL no longer would be averse to the idea of international competition.

Parnell said NHL officials would be interested in a series of games between the USSR and the Canadian hockey teams. The possible game would take place during the NHL's annual World Hockey Classic.

The Russian hockey team was eliminated from the World Cup, ending their 1979-80 season. The USSR national team is on tour in North America playing against the NHL All-Stars and Canadian league teams.

The Soviet hockey officials have told Parnell they want to resume their World Cup campaign with a game against the Americans in Chicago in late September.

The NHL was fighting a successful court battle against the International Hockey League, which prohibits players from competing in international amateur games.

Soviet team

"I don't know if we'd play the entire World Cup," Parnell said. "We'd want to look at what the American players do during the World Cup."

Soviet officials recently said they were considering entering the World Cup again.

The NHL is also considering the idea of playing a game against the British hockey team in London. The British team is currently on tour in the United States.

Rossman said, "I think we have the money to do it."

The NHL is also considering a game against the Canadian league's All-Star team. The game would take place during the World Cup.

Sooner top college poll again

NEW YORK (UPI) - Pocket of Oklahoma football fans probably didn't feel too hot Saturday night. Reasons for the letdown included an eight-point loss to Nebraska, which reassured the Big Eight with a 5-2 mark and مقابلة(K) for an Oklahoma State top three slot.

The Sooners, starring Kansas State, 1980, were ranked at No. 10 place by the Associated Press. Kansas State, Idaho, and Georgia were ranked at one spot lower, followed by Oklahoma State and Miami, which was ranked at ninth.
