Drought in Ethiopia

The menace of drought, what may be the worst drought in Ethiopia's 30-year history, continues to pose a threat to the nation's agriculture. The government has declared a state of emergency in parts of the country, and international aid agencies are providing emergency assistance to affected regions.

Conference on violence concludes

by KELLY ROBERTS

At a conference on violence and its implications for women, a panel of speakers addressed the issue of invisibility.

The conference, the third of its kind, was sponsored by the Women's Resource and Action Centers.

"There is an absolute lack of visibility," said Mary Lynn Nunnelly, a member of the commission on violence against women. "The media do not publicize women's experiences with violence, and we are not acknowledged in the criminal justice system."

A number of speakers discussed the effects of violence in their lives.

"I have experienced rape," said Paula Hauserman, a member of the commission on violence against women. "I was assaulted by someone I knew."

Another speaker, Chris Dietz, said incest appears to be a growing problem. "Incestuous relationships are difficult to deal with, but they are not as invisible as other forms of violence."

The conference concluded with a panel discussion on the need for more research and action to address violence against women.

Opposition head arrested in Iran

TEHRAN, Iran — The National Front opposition party is being targeted by the Islamic regime in reaction to the party's attempt to present candidates for the parliamentary elections.

The party, which has been active in Iran for 25 years, has been banned by the regime and its leaders have been arrested or exiled.

The latest arrest of the party's opposition head, which was announced by the regime's Interior Ministry, is the latest in a series of such arrests.

The party, which was founded in 1954, has been a force in Iranian politics for decades.

Although its programs have been criticized, the party has played a role in several important political decisions in Iran.

Hate mail has become 'boring'

To the Editor:

Your 'Letters' section has become boring with the endless rash of "chauvinistic" hate mail which has been printed in your pages.

This is all, at least for the moment, and I'm still trying to decide what to do with it. Wednesday, after reading this mail, I went to the computer and wrote two "sexist" mail pieces. I am using two personally known women whose attitudes are different from mine, one of whom is a feminist, and one of whom is a chauvinist. This is all, at least for the moment, and I'm trying to decide what to do with it.

Steam haulers on strike

Laid off by a moment of quiet and partial boredom, and officially housed for the start of heavy wheel action scheduled for December, the railroad's small-scale steam haulers were replaced by the larger, more powerful diesel engines. The strike was avoided by the strength of striking rail workers.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' right to go on strike has been upheld by the U.S. District Court. The court ruled that the right to strike is constitutionally protected. The strike was to begin on December 1, 1972.

Hawkeyes drown Big Ten swimming foes

By Howard Busby

The Iowa women's swim team swam into the record books on Saturday at the University of Iowa Aquatics Center in Iowa City as the Hawkeyes completed a 197-85 victory over the University of Wisconsin in Saturday's dual meet. The win was the second straight for the Hawkeyes, who won 208-60 last Saturday over Indiana University at Fort Wayne.

The Hawkeyes, having to swim against former teammate and Iowa record holder Kate Wahl, were totally pleased and expect to find themselves in the Big Ten Invitational next weekend.

"It was totally pleasing and would be a good demonstration for our swimmers to be returning," said Coach Pat Pfitzer. "Iowa recorded third place basically. We have a good demonstration for our swimmers to be returning."

The idea of the meet was to get Iowa's women's swim team gathered at a healthy level before Saturday and to sample the competition that they will meet at the Big Ten Invitational this weekend in Coralville.

"We have won a good demonstration for our swimmers to be returning," said Coach Pfitzer. "We left behind a team that was good in its own right, but we have won a good demonstration for our swimmers to be returning."

The meet will have a consensus between Iowa, Wisconsin and Iowa State. There were also a couple of big athletes at the meet, but Iowa had to go with its own swimmers. The Hawkeyes' women swimmers are in top form, but Iowa's swimmers are in a state of readiness, as they have been training for the meet.

"We have won a good demonstration for our swimmers to be returning," said Coach Pfitzer. "We left behind a team that was good in its own right, but we have won a good demonstration for our swimmers to be returning."

The win was totally pleasing and expectations are high. The Hawkeyes think they have a good demonstration for our swimmers to be returning.

"It's a new kind of Iowa," said Coach Pfitzer. "It's a new kind of Iowa, and we have won a good demonstration for our swimmers to be returning."
