WASHINGTON (UPI) — Protesting Iran will continue to be in the air, President Carter and the United States government prepared to take new steps to pressure the regime.

The administration will try to use every means at its disposal, including economic sanctions, to exert pressure on the Shah to allow political Charter elections and to allow political opposition groups to participate in the government.

In a statement the administration said it would continue its efforts to bring about a change in the government.

The United States will continue to support the shah's government, the administration said, and will continue to work with the Shah to ensure that the country moves toward a more democratic system.

The administration also said it would continue to support the Shah's government in its efforts to counter the influence of extremist groups within the country.

University Heights bus still suspended: Council

By RICK MOUNT
Staff Writer

Due to increased crime and scheduling problems the Iowa City Transit System has not met the need. The Iowa City Council deliberated a decision of cancelling the service to the Heights and the South District.

At Monday’s informal meeting, the council discussed a recommendation from Hugh Morson, transit manager, that the council pursue suspending the service to the Heights and the South District.

The council had discussed the service in the past but has never made a decision. The council decided to suspend the service during the school year and start the service again in the summer.

The council also discussed the possibility of changing the route to include the Heights area.

The service would be held Feb. 27

‘Band-aid’ bus route changes okayed

BY TOM DAVIE

Efforts to solve problems in the Iowa City Transit System have developed into a ‘Band-aid’ action as thousands of riders continue to seek relief from rising fares and increased wait times.

On Monday, the city council and the Iowa City Transit Authority voted to approve a series of changes to the bus routes. These changes include a new route, the East College route, which will replace the older East College route.

The city council voted to approve the changes by a vote of 7-1. The lone dissenter was Mayor Bill Schupe, who expressed concern about the impact of the changes on the city’s residents. Schupe said he was worried that the changes would only provide a temporary fix and that the real solution was to improve the overall service quality.

The council’s decision was welcomed by the Iowa City Transit Authority, which has been working to improve the system for several months. Authority Chair Manuel Lima said the changes would help to reduce wait times and improve service quality.

The new East College route will run between the University of Iowa and downtown Iowa City. The route will be a 30-minute service, and the buses will run every 45 minutes during rush hour. The route will consist of six stops, and the buses will have a maximum capacity of 30 passengers.

The city council also voted to extend the East College route by an additional 30 minutes, starting at 4:30 p.m. This extension will provide longer service times for riders who need to work later in the day.

The new route will be funded by a combination of local and state funds. The city council approved a $500,000 grant from the Iowa Department of Transportation to help cover the costs of the extension.

The changes will be implemented in phases, starting in October. The council also directed the Iowa City Transit Authority to develop a plan for further improvements to the system.

Groups blast UI stock report

BY NEL WATSON

The Student Senate has reacted with shock and anger at the University of Iowa’s decision to sell off its stock in South African companies.

The senate, led by President Jane Coelho, called the decision a betrayal of the university’s mission and said it would affect the livelihoods of students and employees. Coelho said the university had betrayed its commitment to social justice and had abandoned its role as an agent of change.

“UI’s decision to sell off its stock in South African companies is a direct attack on our university’s values and mission,” Coelho said. “It is a clear violation of the university’s commitment to social justice and sustainability.”

UI President Bruce Harre said the decision was made in response to pressure from students and the general public. Harre said the university had taken the decision after careful consideration and had consulted with its Board of Regents.

Harre said the university had decided to sell off its stock in six companies: Xstrata, Anglo American, Lonmin, AngloGold Ashanti, Sibanye-Stillwater and Lonmin. The university has owned shares in these companies since the 1990s.

The university’s decision follows a series of public protests against the sale of stock in South African companies. Many student groups have called on the university to divest from companies that are involved in the management of apartheid, and the university has been under pressure from shareholders and investors.

The university’s Board of Regents has approved the sale of the stock in the six companies. The university is expected to receive $500,000 from the sale of the stock.

UI’s decision follows the sale of shares in three other South African companies: Gold Fields, Anglo American and Lonmin. In each case, the university sold off its entire shareholding.

UI’s decision to divest from South African companies follows a recent decision by the University of California to sell off its shares in South African companies. The University of California’s decision was widely praised as a positive step towards addressing the issue of apartheid.

The university’s decision is likely to spark protests and further discussion within the university and the wider community.

As winter drags on, chicks and chicks also need to be informed of the elements to get around the UI campus. Yet there are problems. The UI provides UI students and UI faculty and staff with free snowplow services, but it's not always clear what happens when shuffling between buildings.

Like getting stuck in the snow or having their busses run down. Or well however, run down.

ALL WELCOME

You're wasting your time reading this newspaper.
Not because it's not worth reading. You're wasting your time because you could be reading this to 10 times faster than you are right now.
That's right — three to ten times faster. With better concentration, understanding, and recall.
The problem is, most of us haven't learned anything new about reading since we were 10 years old. So we're still stumbling along at a fraction of our real capacity. In fact, most people read so slowly that their brain actually gets bored and distracted between words. No wonder you have trouble concentrating when you read!
The new Evelyn Wood RD2 reading program.
Over 20 years ago, Evelyn Wood's search with natural speed readers discovered reading techniques that could be learned and used by virtually anyone. Since that pioneering work, over a million people — from students to presidents — have put the Evelyn Wood method to work for them.
RD2 is Evelyn Wood's latest, updated reading improvement system — designed to be more effective and flexible than ever. With it, you should easily be able to cut your reading and study time by at least two thirds. That means if you're now studying 20 hours a week, you'll be reading 400 hours — or almost 17 24-hour days — in this school year alone! Don't miss it.

Spend an hour and check us out. We hope you may have trouble believing what you've just read. That's why our people are on campus now giving free 1-hour demonstrations of RD2. If you can spare an hour, we'll answer any questions you may have about RD2, and prove that you can unlearn your bad reading habits and start saving two thirds of your study time. We'll even demonstrate some new reading techniques designed to increase your speed immediately, with good comprehension.

Knicks can't win; McAdoo can't lead

NEW YORK (UP) — Work- ing in full swing in the first game of the year, the New York Knicks were more of the usual team Monday night when they met the Detroit Pistons. The visiting Pistons, who are the best team in the National Basketball Association, are a team to be feared, especially with a 2-1 record that leaves them in the lead division. At the same time, the Knick fans were hoping that a team who had lost only 21 games last season could turn out to be a better team this year.

Unfortunately, the 2-1 record forecast would prove to be a false start for the Knicks. After losing to the Pistons, the Knicks found themselves in a losing streak, which they failed to overcome. The team was not up to par, and they lost the game.

The Knick team leaders were not satisfied with the loss, and they knew that they had to work harder to win the game. They promised to do better in the next game.

The Newspapers report that the Knicks will continue to work hard to improve their game and hope to win the next game.
