Hoffa said linked to Kennedy shooting

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The House Assassinations Committee has found "significant indications" that organized crime and former Teamsters President Jimmy Hoffa were behind the assassination of John Kennedy, WCMH-TV reported Monday.

WCMH-TV newsman Frank Seltzer said in a copyrighted report that he has learned from "a highly placed committee source" that Hoffa and two top mobsters have been linked to the assassination in an as-yet-unpublished committee report.

"According to information uncovered by the committee," Seltzer said, "there are significant indications that Kennedy's murder was arranged and executed by members of organized crime and their friends."

There was no immediate comment from the assassinations panel on Seltzer's report.

Seltzer said "the committee, in its report, will name Hoffa and mobsters Carlos Marcello of New Orleans and Santos Trafficante of Miami as the three most likely participants in a conspiracy" to kill Kennedy.

Israel offers Lebanon treaty, ups bombing

By United Press International

Israel proposed a peace treaty with Lebanon Monday but sent its warplanes into new attacks against Palestinian positions in southern Lebanon in a move that brought strong criticism from the United States and an Egyptian call for "firm" U.S. intervention to halt them. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, in a speech to the Israeli parliament in Jerusalem, invited Lebanese President Elias Sarkis to hold peace talks and offered to go to Beirut — headquarters of the Palestine Liberation Organization — for the negotiations.

Begin made the offer barely an hour after Israeli warplanes struck what the Israeli military command described as Palestinian "terrorist concentrations" in southern Lebanon for the second successive day.

"We won't let these murderers rest," Begin told the Knesset (parliament).

Job segregation shaken in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The government Monday accepted proposals that could wipe out one of the cornerstones of South African apartheid — the reservation of certain jobs for whites only.

A white paper representing the government's thinking on sweeping labor law changes suggested by the Wiehahn commission report was submitted in Parliament in Cape Town for debate within the next two weeks.

The paper said statutory work reservation has proved to be an "impractical and inadequate measure which harms race relations and is out of keeping with the needs of modern times."

The government-appointed Wiehahn commission, headed by Prof. Nic Wiehahn, last week published its recommendations that wide-ranging changes be made in the country's labor legislation, including an end to racism at the factory.

Radar challenged

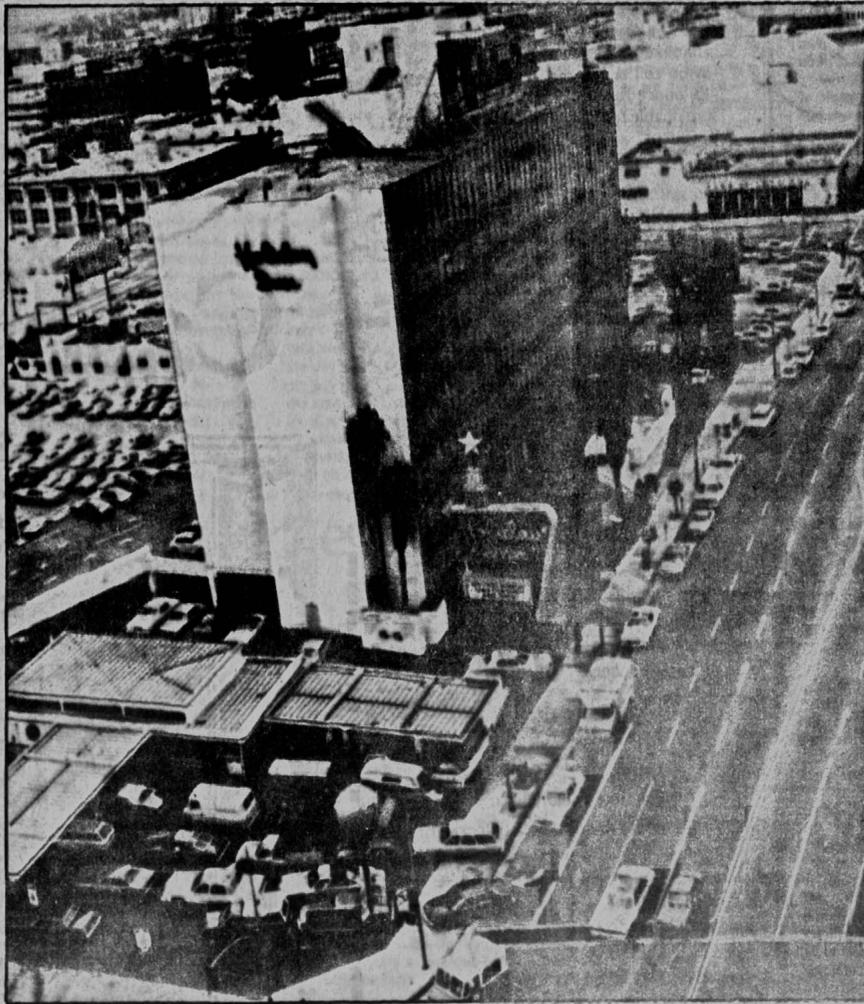

MIAMI (UPI) — Dade County Judge Alfred Nesbitt dismissed charges against 50 motorists Tuesday, saying he was persuaded that radar observation was too inaccurate to support speeding convictions.

Though it technically applied only to the 50 cases involved in a three-week hearing, it was hailed by radar challengers as a possible national precedent and by police as "a terrible blow to public safety."

Originally, public defenders questioned the accuracy of police radar units in the cases of 27 motorists brought before Nesbitt, the county's chief administrative judge. Twenty-three other cases were included during the lengthy process.

Weather

Your weather staff would like to scotch a pernicious rumor that's been slinking around town: We have not been dumping our waste weather on Coralville. We wouldn't think of doing such a thing to our sister city, even though it does look like it got its architecture from a K-Mart kit. Today, Coralville will get highs in the 80s with cloudy skies and a chance of thundershowers, and so will we. Of course, Coralville gets dabs on any tornadoes, but, after all, what are sisters for?

Street traffic is light, but there are long lines at gasoline stations as the gas crunch continues in Southern California. This line at a service station in down Los Angeles extends back a block and around the corner.

City waste open-dumped

By TOM DRURY
Staff Writer

The city has been dumping between 15,000 and 20,000 pounds of partially treated sewage into open lagoons at its landfill every day for approximately a month, the city's superintendent of pollution control said Monday.

Both city officials and an official with the Iowa Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) said they believe there is no immediate or potential health hazard.

"I'll admit that this is not a practice that we want to continue all the time," said Earl Voelker, director of the DEQ's Region 6. "But I don't see where that'll be a problem, unless there's something that I don't foresee."

"We got lots more toxic material going out to that landfill than this sludge," Voelker said. The DEQ supervises use of the city landfill and has been aware of the dumping.

Iowa City Superintendent of Pollution Control Harry Boren said the partially treated semi-solid waste — "sludge" — portion of city sewage has been dumped at the landfill, five miles west of Iowa City on IWW Road, since waste-treating bacteria utilized in the city's sewage treatment plant died. The liquid waste portion of city sewage is being processed normally.

Boren said it has not been determined why the bacteria quit working, or when effective bacteria can be introduced into the system's three digesters.

"We don't have any real good handle on that," Boren said. "We don't even know what caused (the bacteria) to

Black's residents badger placarding officials

By ROGER THURLOW
City Editor

For nearly 30 minutes Monday afternoon, eight residents of Black's Gaslight Village tried to talk two city housing inspectors out of placarding several of the village's residences as unsafe for habitation.

The residents badgered the inspectors, tried to reason with them, questioned their motives and insulted them. But when the inspectors went ahead and posted four rooms as "unsafe or unfit for human occupancy," Leigh Gignilliat, a third-year UI law student, felt there was only one more thing left to say.

"You're giving us an intent to placard. Well, I'll give you our intent. We intend to fight you to the bitter end."

Gignilliat and the other residents hounded city Inspector Pamela Barnes and Housing and Inspection Services Director Michael Kucharzak as the two officials went around the village Monday to see if several city housing code violations had been corrected.

At 1:55 p.m., the residents met Barnes and Kucharzak at the entrance of the village on Brown Street and followed them as they tried to find village owner Frances Black, as they inspected houses, and, finally, as they placarded four rooms. The group then escorted Barnes and Kucharzak off of Black's property.

"I've been doing this for 17 years, and I never encountered the situation that we experienced out at Black's Gaslight Village," Kucharzak said after returning to his Civic Center office.

Kucharzak and Barnes were re-inspecting the village on orders from the city Housing Appeals Board, which ruled last week that the village must be re-inspected on May 7 before placarding could begin.

The four placarded rooms, all of which are located on third floors, are lacking secondary egress — fire escapes. According to Kucharzak, if the fire escapes are not installed within 30 days, the residents of the four rooms will be evicted.

But, he said, if the housing code violations are corrected any time within the 30 days, no evictions will take place. He admitted that Black is close to finishing the repairs on the village houses.

"All we're trying to do is achieve compliance. When they are brought into compliance, then the process will stop," he said.

The 30-day period will begin when Black receives the placard notice, which was mailed to her following the inspection. Kucharzak said he would have given Black the notice during the inspection, but she did not come out of her office when Barnes knocked on the door.

"I had an appointment with them at two o'clock, but I never knew they were here," Black said. "I was eating dinner at the time. If they had rung the doorbell I would have come out, but I couldn't hear the knock."

Ten days after Black receives the notification, the tenants of the four rooms will receive a notice that they have 20 days to move.

Black said Monday that her contractor should have all of the required fire escapes installed within 30 days, "so no one will have to be evicted."

During the inspection the residents peppered Kucharzak and Barnes with

The gas crunch pinches America

May allocations cut 17.2%; big decline in consumption seen

California shortage brings lines, tempers; rationing plan set

By United Press International

American gasoline supplies will be sharply lower in May, with oil companies allocating an average 17.2 per cent less than a year ago, an authoritative petroleum newsletter reported Monday.

The figures came with only four days left for congressional approval of President Carter's standby gasoline rationing plan. Carter Monday offered two changes designed to win more votes, and congressional leaders said the amendments should swing some support Carter's way.

May's reduced gas deliveries will hit hardest metropolitan areas such as Los Angeles that have little or no public transportation, according to the Lundberg Letter, an independent newsletter specializing in oil market analysis and gasoline statistics.

The predicted nationwide shortages are likely to be less severe than the 17.2 per cent, the newsletter said, because new Energy Department regulations allow grants of increased supplies to priority users and certain service stations.

But even with the grants, "the sharp allocation cut in May will almost certainly force a big reduction in gasoline consumption," the newsletter said.

The drop in gasoline supplies will be the sharpest since the Arab oil embargo in 1974.

Carter's changes in his standby rationing plan were designed to win more votes, especially from western and rural states. He proposed that:

—each household get rationing coupons for each car or vehicle owned up to a limit of three. Under the original plan there was no limit; and —states that traditionally use a lot of gasoline because of long distances or lack of public transportation could qualify for extra supplies.

The standby plan will fail automatically if it is not passed by Friday. Even if Congress does pass the plan, details will have to be sent back to Capitol Hill for further approval if the president decides to ration supplies.

The first change was made to prevent "junkyard millionaires" — rich people who could buy extra cars to get extra rationing coupons then sell the coupons at high prices.

The second change was for the benefit of wide-open western states and rural areas heavily dependent on cars.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The two men had cut into the line of motorists waiting to buy gasoline. They got out and demanded that the service station attendant fill their car up first.

"They were big enough to back up their demand."

The attendant, sweating, weary, disgusted, picked up the hose, turned on the electric pump, directed the nozzle in their direction, pulled the trigger and sprayed the two. Then he took out a book of matches.

"Get out or I'll turn you into a torch," he said.

The two men got into their car and fled. The veneer of civilization in the nation's third largest city has been thinning this past week over the quest to get gas.

The "silent majority" of citizens have been lining up sheeplike at the stations and incidents have been the exception. But there have been some.

Los Angeles, which runs on automobile wheels, goes into an odd-even rationing system Wednesday that should alleviate the crisis — but not before its citizens get a taste of panic.

"Can you imagine," said Linda Shambow, a representative of a radio advertising agency, "what it would be like if we had been told that an atom bomb is about to be dropped and we have to get out of the city?"

There were other incidents to back up her dread.

In suburban Santa Ana, Steven Goldberg, 31, and his wife, Cathy, 28, tried to siphon gasoline from their motorboat into their car, using a vacuum cleaner. A spark ignited the fumes and sent them to the Irvine Burn Center with injuries to their arms and faces.

Four men dressed in uniforms of the California National Guard took two fuel tankers into the streets and began selling gasoline to the public. They were arrested. The National Guard said it did not know if they were guardsmen.

The Monday morning crunch on the famous Los Angeles freeways was nonexistent. Roberta Wax, a driver from the San Fernando Valley, said it took her 30 minutes instead of the usual 50 to reach her office.

Jim Doyle went to his usual filling station at 5:45 a.m. on the understanding it would open for service as usual at 6 a.m. Fifteen minutes before 8, the owner strolled in and began serving a line a half mile long.

People carrying cans of all kinds formed pedestrian lines. Many of them pleaded that they had run out of gas and their cars were stalled down the road. But there was no way of knowing whether that was true or whether they were hoarding.

Men tried to break into the line with the excuse that they were doctors or that their wife was pregnant and about to give birth. A young woman swept by one station on roller skates calling out "people power." One waiting motorist said the gasoline shortage was a Machiavellian ploy to encourage nuclear energy.

A filling station attendant at a car wash where gas sales were limited to seven gallons said a man drove in and offered him $50 for a full tank. He took the $50 and split it with his boss. Other car washes sticking to the seven-gallon limit reported that cars went through the spray corridor three times.

A station in Santa Monica reported a man in a Cadillac drove in and topped off his tank with one gallon.

The Los Angeles police department shortwave radio was less frantic Monday in responding to calls of massive traffic tieups around gasoline stations and reports of fights. Last Friday there had been threatened shootings and the use of knives and baseball bats to get service.

Los Angeles has no subways or commuter rail service. Its Southern California Rapid Transit System buses are already crowded beyond capacity. Taxicabs in Los Angeles have long been rare as dodos, existing mainly at the expensive hotels and the airline terminals.

Faculty may move up by moving out — to other jobs

By JOHN OSBORN
Staff Writer

Second of three

An exodus of faculty members from the UI may result as professors seek to avoid the 7 per cent salary increase restriction of President Carter's anti-inflation guidelines by going to other institutions.

"Full-level professor salaries may be lower, and one way to get around the 7 per cent guideline is to leave," said Calvin Siebert, professor and chairman of the Department of Economics. "It is hard to say what effect the guidelines will have at this point, but if they continue, it could be a problem."

Two political science faculty members have already announced they are leaving because of low salaries. Although many departments have been burdened with this problem and may continue to lose high-quality faculty in the future, departments in the College of Business Administration are especially vulnerable because of the extensive opportunities in the business field.

Warren Boe, professor and chairman of the Department of Business Administration, said that demand in the field for teaching positions is particularly strong. "I was at a recent (business education) conference, and the people there were talking about nine or 10 job openings in all the business areas — accounting, finance, management information systems," he said.

Boe said he thinks the anti-inflation guidelines will be a problem if enforced, and he noted that higher salary options are definitely available for talented business professors.

"I find it pleasing, but also disconcerting, that some of our admittedly very good M.B.A. graduates are coming out and getting job offers that are higher than their professors' salaries."

"Salaries in business and industry are getting higher and higher, and they are leaving us behind. Other universities are also able to pay substantially higher amounts. I know of some people who receive as much as a $6,000 increase. That is certainly much more than 7 per cent," Boe said.

Two professors in the Department of Business Administration are leaving for other schools after this semester, but Boe said that reasons in addition to salaries were involved in their decisions to leave.

"One of our business law professors is going to teach at a law school, and another who is in the marketing area was concerned about the emphasis on research as opposed to teaching; but they are both receiving substantial

The power and the glory

(CH) — University of Wisconsin-Madison (UW) students will have at least one more year of "insanity, crooks, clowns and criminals" in their student government, according to newly reelected student vice president Leon Varjian. "That's what the students got last year and that's what they wanted again," Varjian said.

Varjian and his running mate Jim Mallon were overwhelmingly reelected May 2 in an election that drew 6,739 votes, the largest turnout in recent UW history.

The pair are members of the Pail and Shovel party. Among their antics this year were the erection of a $4,000 paper mache Statue of Liberty on the ice of Lake Mendota and the purchase of several hundred dollars worth of children's toys which they brandish about in the student association office to let all visitors know that nothing that transpires there should be taken seriously. They also dispensed pennies to students on registration day "so they couldn't say 'We never get anything for our student fee money.'"

Mallon and Varjian were accused of overspending the association budget by as much as $9,000, often without authorization. But the dean of students office investigated and found no wrongdoing.

"Our campaign slogan was 'Go for it' and the students went for it hook, line and sinker," Varjian said. He said the campaign for the 1980 election will begin immediately. "We figure we should have as many years as FDR had."

Doubts confirmed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An undercover survey of auto repair shops shows the American consumer had only a 50-50 chance of getting a car fixed correctly and for the right price, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams said Monday.

The survey was conducted at 62 dealers, service stations and independent repair shops in Atlanta, Philadelphia, Miami, Nashville, Houston, New York City and White Plains, N.Y. No shops were identified, but Adams said the information is being turned over to local law enforcement officials for possible prosecution.

He said the survey showed that more than half of the $50 billion American consumers spend each year on car repairs — 53 cents of each dollar — is wasted on needless work.

The biggest problem area, Adams told a news conference, is engine repairs, where it is "almost a sure thing" that the repair will not be made properly.

"When we took test cars into repair shops at random, we found we had only about a 50-50 chance of getting a car fixed right and for the right price," Adams said.

"What we have ... is a variety of wasteful practices, including habitual overrepair or package deals ... and just plain old lack of competence to do the job right," Adams said.

Justice served

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — C. Arnholt Smith, once the city's mightiest business leader and a friend of former President Richard Nixon, was convicted Monday of tax evasion and stealing nearly $9 million from a company he once controlled.

"It's a great shock," said Smith, 80, after hearing the jury convict him of the grand theft charge that could bring him a maximum prison sentence of 10 years.

"It's a great relief," said Deputy District Attorney Steven Davis, who prosecuted the eight-month trial that cost the county an estimated $1 million and cost Smith an equal amount for his defense. "I feel gratified that the jury has found Smith guilty."

Judge Robert W. Conyers set sentencing for May 31 on a total of five convictions against Smith that stemmed from his multimillion dollar business dealings during the early 1960s.

The jury, which convicted Smith of two counts of state income tax evasion last week, convicted the financier of two more tax evasion charges Monday along with the more serious grand theft charge.

Each of the tax evasion charges carries a maximum prison sentence of five years while the grand theft charge carries a maximum 10-year term.

The prosecutor said if Smith is sentenced to prison, the most time he likely would receive is 10 years.

Udall has doubts on nuke future

THREE MILE ISLAND, Pa. (UPI) — Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., heading a House investigation of nuclear power, Monday led a group of 15 congressmen on a tour of the crippled Three Mile Island reactor and said the industry's future "hangs in doubt."

Udall conceded his own energy subcommittee is split on the issue.

And he said as a result of viewing the "immensity and complexity" of the reactor control room panels, "I think we have got to focus on the human element and less on all of the backup systems and computers and all of the rest" under investigation as the prime cause of the March 28 accident.

"I think the future of nuclear (power) hangs in doubt," he said after touring the facility — the first visit to the control room by outsiders since President Carter toured it April 1.

"I'm not going to judge it prematurely," Udall said. "But I've never been a great enthusiast for nuclear power. How far we go into this swamp is something the country has got to decide."

Meanwhile, Ralph Nader charged federal officials with "monumental neglect" of nuclear emergency plans, and congressional investigators said transport of nuclear materials endangers the public.

Nader told the House Government Operations environment subcommittee the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor accident was a "spectacle of federal confusion and indecisiveness over how the public should be protected from the release of radioactivity."

At the same time, the General Accounting Office, an investigative arm of Congress, issued a report saying: "Federal agencies responsible for the safe transportation of nuclear materials have not developed and enforced policies and regulations that adequately protect the public from exposure to radiation from such shipments."

The problem is made worse because state and federal officials do not keep in close enough touch, the report said.

UI student government leader Monday that unless recreation meet, they cannot support the $1 million in student fees for a sports project.

The Collegiate Associations (CAC) passed a resolution Monday for greater emphasis on recreation in the proposed $21.7 million "H Sports Arena" plan. The Student will act on the resolution Thursday. Although UI Hospitals officials hope to see a reduction of the theft of surgical garments when the color is changed from green to pink, they assert that was not the primary factor in making the decision.

"The principal reason for the change was infection control," said Dean Borg, UI Hospitals public information director. "The pinks" will not go off the sixth floor (the location of the hospital's operating suites). So that will help to control infection in the operating rooms."

Hospital officials expect to save $15,000 because they believe people will be less eager to wear the pink garments outside of the hospital. Borg said the hospital currently purchases approximately 4,500 surgical shirts, trousers and gowns each year.

Borg explained that the green garments will be phased out gradually. Beginning June 1, operating room personnel will wear the pink garments, while the green garments will be delegated to other areas of the hospital.

"When the changeover is made, the excess greens will go to the other places, such as the labor and delivery rooms, the nursery and intensive care," Borg said.

Various committees of doctors have been working on making a change for some time, and Borg said the response

UI student government leaders said Monday that unless recreation needs are met, they cannot support the use of $6 million in student fees for a sports arena project.

The Collegiate Associations Council (CAC) passed a resolution Monday that calls for greater emphasis on recreation in the proposed $21.7 million "Hawkeye Sports Arena" plan. The Student Senate will act on the resolution Thursday.

Executives from the groups submitted similar proposals, but CAC members made some changes before passing the resolution.

Under the terms of the resolution, the groups would voice their "condemnation of the use of any mandatory student fees for any arena proposal" unless three items are considered.

If the items are not in an arena proposal, the original resolution states, student government "could not support one dime of the mandatory student fees financing an arena package."

But in the CAC resolution that clause was deleted and the group instead proposed that student government be "formally consulted in advance of the allocation of any mandatory student fees for an arena."

Student government executives say the arena plan must include:

—retractable seats in the arena that would provide recreation space;

—a "major renovation" of the Field House or the construction of an east side recreation facility to accompany a new arena; and —further commitment to Title IX and women's athletics at the UI.

The senate resolution further states that the senate executives would "research the feasibility of constructing another recreation building (preferably east side) with some portion of student mandatory fees."

Men's basketball Coach Lute Olson has said that he prefers the construction of an arena solely for intercollegiate athletics.

But senate President Donn Stanley said Monday he believes the arena should include retractable bleachers that can be rolled away to provide recreation space. Students would probably be willing to close the arena during the time each day when the men's team is practicing, he said.

He added that women's sports officials have said they will allow recreation time during their practices. Stanley said the retractable seats, which he said look like permanent seats when they are pulled out, would provide an additional 30,000 square feet of recreation space. "It's just ridiculous to have 7,000 seats there when they don't need to be," he said.

He said, however, that the retractable bleachers would not provide the total space needed for recreation.

As part of the preliminary plans for the arena package, UI officials have proposed removing all bleachers from the Field House to provide additional campus recreation space.

But Stanley says that is not enough. And even with retractable seats in the arena, he said, "We weren't getting a good deal for our $6 million. You can't put any permanent equipment there. And you've just got big open space."

"We need big open space, but not all big open space. We've got to get what we need this time or we've missed the boat. And we say that if they say they don't have the money, then they're spending it on the wrong thing," Stanley added.

"If you can't afford to do both, to us recreation is the priority."

Stanley said the senate believes the UI must "follow through" on its commitment to women's athletics. "It's important that there be parity between men's and women's athletics," he said.

Stanley said his attitude toward the project has changed since planning for the arena began last fall. "I was really for it, and I thought we could work out a compromise," he said. "But I see all the claims and desires, and I'm really not keen on it at all."

Legislator sees no pay problem raises," Boe said. He added that neither professor wished to comment, and he declined to identify them.

Boe said the money difficulties are not simply due to the legislature's budget concerns.

"It is more than just the state being concerned with money. The university is put in a bind because we get a lot of funds from the federal government each year, and losing that would be a severe blow, so we have to abide by Carter's guidelines," he said.

Boe said that there are also other factors that make recruiting good professors for the UI difficult.

"We're having some difficulties recruiting because of competing with areas in the South and the West Coast, and the desirability of living here is not that high for some people. We were recruiting a finance professor, and he ended up going to Oregon. We're bringing people in here in the middle of an Iowa winter, and we're losing out," Boe said.

Sen. John Murray, R-Ames, who is co-chairman of the joint appropriations subcommittee considering this year's salary proposals, said he does not think there is a problem with faculty salaries.

"The information I have doesn't show the regents' institutions coming out on the bottom compared with the other Midwest schools," Murray said. "Also, it is more expensive to live in Chicago or Minneapolis or Ann Arbor than in Iowa City. "Except in isolated circumstances such as business, or computer science, where non-teaching alternatives are available, I have heard little or no talk about all of this leaving among the administrators," he said.

Murray emphasized the non-monetary attractions that teaching offers, and he said that discretionary funds, which allow a department to authorize up to a 10 per cent salary increase, should be sufficient to retain the top members of the faculty.

"The whole point is that the salaries we pay are commensurate and within the reasonable range of other universities. I dispute the conclusion that university professors are low-paid. They're not overpaid by any means, but they are in a reasonable range," he said.

May Brodbeck, UI vice president for academic affairs, disputes this, however.

"I think he (Murray) is mistaken. In fact, we are not competitive, and because of the higher salaries at other schools, we are continuing to lose high-quality faculty," she said.

Official: No health risk presented by dumping of sludge

Until the digesters are working, he said, the plant will be unable to decompose and stabilize the semi-solid waste that settles out of sewage in the plant's clarifier. He explained that the digestion kills some of the disease-carrying bacteria, but not all of it.

Normally, the digested sludge is dried in lagoons at the sewage plant and then spread as fertilizer over abandoned landfills in the area, Boren said.

Boren said plant officials believe that some of the undigested sludge dumped daily into clay lagoons at the landfill can get into ground water or local wells.

"We don't think there's any environmental problem because we're putting it in clay soil lagoons," Boren said, adding that travel through soil would also help purify the sludge.

Voelker said that there may be bacteria in the sludge, but "the soil will probably filter it out."

"This is pretty much domestic waste with no hazardous materials," Voelker said. He said that it would be undesirable if the sludge were to get into wells, but added that this would also be the case with completely treated and dried waste that is normally applied to landfills.

City Engineer Eugene Dietz said the U.S. Geological Survey maintains several test wells nearer to the landfill than any potable water wells. Dietz said Boren has notified the geological survey of the dumping, and the geological survey has said it will monitor the quality of water in the test wells.

Dietz said the lagoons at the landfill were created with DEQ approval to deal with a similar problem at the plant approximately four years ago.

He said the sludge will be allowed to dry in the lagoons and then will be buried. The smell from the lagoons, he said, is probably no worse than that of hog manure or cow manure.

"I would say that this happens to every sewage plant at one time or another," Dietz said. "It doesn't happen very often, but when it does, it's not a catastrophe."

Dietz said that plant officials have emptied one of the three digesters and are attempting to introduce sludge with working bacteria into the system.

City nuke law considered

By ROD BOSCHART
Staff Writer

A proposed ordinance to monitor and prohibit the transportation of radioactive materials through or into the Iowa City area has been referred to the city's legal staff by the Iowa City Council for further study.

Joseph Ptak, a researcher for the Iowa Public Interest Research Group who submitted the ordinance for the council's consideration May 4, said the ordinance is designed to provide the minimum standards and regulations necessary to ensure the safe shipment of radioactive materials through Iowa City.

Ptak said the proposed ordinance is modeled on existing laws in cities in Ohio and Vermont and those currently proposed or to be proposed in Dubuque, Davenport, Cedar Rapids and Ames.

Under the proposed ordinance, a permit would have to be secured from the city for the transportation of specified amounts of the following materials into, within, through or out of Iowa City:

- plutonium isotopes;
- uranium;
- any element with an atomic number of 89 or higher;
- spent reactor fuel elements or mixed fission products;
- large quantities of radioactive material;
- materials classified as "Fissile Class III" by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission; and
- any shipment needing an escort for safety reasons.

The proposed ordinance would not regulate the shipment of radioactive materials for military or national defense purposes, Ptak said in his letter to City Manager Neal Berlin.

Ptak said an accident involving the transportation of radioactive wastes occurs once every 10 days in the United States.

"In the last few months, there have been three accidents involving the transportation of radioactive material in the state of Iowa," Ptak said.

"A city should be permitted discretion in prohibiting unwarranted shipments involving risks not comprehensively covered by federal laws," he said.

In a memorandum to the council Friday, Berlin said, if the council is interested in considering such an ordinance, I would suggest that the council refer it to the legal staff for preparation of an appropriate draft and consideration of the legality of various provisions.

'Pinks' replace hospital greens

By KELLY ROBERTS
Staff Writer

Although UI Hospitals officials hope to see a reduction of the theft of surgical garments when the color is changed from green to pink, they assert that was not the primary factor in making the decision.

"The principal reason for the change was infection control," said Dean Borg, UI Hospitals public information director. "The pinks" will not go off the sixth floor (the location of the hospital's operating suites). So that will help to control infection in the operating rooms."

Hospital officials expect to save $15,000 because they believe people will be less eager to wear the pink garments outside of the hospital. Borg said the hospital currently purchases approximately 4,500 surgical shirts, trousers and dresses each year.

Borg explained that the green garments will be phased out gradually. Beginning June 1, operating room personnel will wear the pink garments, while the green garments will be delegated to other areas of the hospital.

"When the changeover is made, the excess greens will go to the other places, such as the labor and delivery rooms, the nursery and intensive care," Borg said.

Various committees of doctors have been working on making a change for some time, and Borg said the response within the hospital has been good.

The problem with the theft of hospital greens climaxed when a hospital official attending a garage sale recently found a stack of the garments for sale. But, Borg said, by that time work to change the color had already begun.

The hospital will have to trust the staff not to steal the remaining greens, he said. But that won't be easy because the greens are sent out to be cleaned, making them available to persons outside the hospital.

AWOL resurfaces after 28 years

BERLIN (UPI) — An American soldier who went AWOL in 1951 because of "troubles" with the army said Monday he hid for 28 years in his girl friend's tiny West Berlin apartment and never went out into the street until she died of cancer.

"In all of the 28 years we shared our lives, she never suggested that I should give myself up," said 54-year-old PFC Robert Petree of Flint, Mich., in an interview. "There was no discussion about it. She knew I wanted to be with her."

But the woman, whose name Petree declined to disclose, died of cancer just before Christmas, leaving him without support.

Petree said he eventually decided to commit suicide, but when he found himself unable to make his fatal jump in front of a train, he called the police instead and turned himself in Wednesday.

U.S. Army officers listened to Petree's story, then sent him to hospital to be treated for a crippling hernia.

Petree said the Army assigned him to the 6th Infantry in West Berlin in 1949. Shortly after arriving, he met the girl destined to hide him for almost three decades.

But Petree also ran into trouble with the army.

"I was blamed for something I had not done," he said. He refused to divulge details but said he wrote complaint letters to President Truman and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, then U.S. military governor in Germany.

"I never got a reply from the president and never got beyond Gen. Clay's secretary," Petree said. At that point he went AWOL.

At first, Petree and his fiancée lived with her widowed mother in the Friedenau section of West Berlin.

In 1961, Petree's fiancée rented a tiny apartment for the two of them in the Schoenberg section, and one night she sneaked Petree to it — his first and only venture into the street during his 28 years of hiding.

"It had two rooms, but one of them had a balcony, and I couldn't be seen near that in case I was spotted and reported to the police," Petree said. "So I spent all of my time in one room and never ventured out."

Petree's fiancée worked first as a seamstress, then as a cleaner in a pharmacy, while he did odd jobs around the apartment and listened to the radio or, later, watched TV.

"Sometimes I did get bored and wondered what would happen if I turned myself in to the military people," he said. "But I was scared at the way they would react."

So the couple lived, from 1951 until the middle of 1978, when the woman developed a heart ailment and cancer of the breast.

"She went into hospital for an operation," Petree recalled. "As soon as she could, she got up and visited me. She was in a lot of pain, but she knew how pleased I was to see her again."

"She died shortly afterwards, just before Christmas."

After weeks of thought, Petree said he decided to commit suicide. He collected his few documents in a bag and finally abandoned his hideout to go to a subway station.

"I wanted to throw myself in front of a train," Petree said. "But all of the people were looking at me, and I couldn't go through with it."

Instead he took a train to the American sector, where he asked a woman to call the police.

Petree said he believes both his father and mother died while he was in hiding, although a brother may still be alive.

But in any event, he hopes to be allowed to remain in West Berlin.

Through rain, sleet and anonymity

Campus mail workers are efficient but ignored

By DAN O'CONNOR
Staff Writer

Employees of a postal service are a lot like baseball umpires: they are doing a good job if nobody knows who they are.

For the UI's campus mail system, which handles 50,000 pieces of mail daily, anonymity might seem to be all but impossible.

The day begins at 5:30 each morning at the campus mail office, 129 W. Court St., behind the University Laundry Building. By the time supervisor Dick Burton and his seven co-workers are finished nearly nine hours later, all interdepartmental mail on campus and some U.S. mail has been delivered.

Additionally, at least three pick-ups have been made at each of the UI's 123 mailboxes.

The campus mail system delivers U.S. mail to places on campus where the federal system either will not deliver or would deliver later in the day, Burton said.

"We deliver some of the Post Office's mail, like to the UI Hospital," he said. "The secretaries start work at 7 o'clock and they (U.S. mail carriers) don't get over there until 10 o'clock."

Campus mail workers, all employees of the UI, go to the Post Office and pick up some mail at 5:45 a.m., Burton said. The Post Office brings some mail to the campus mail office around 7 a.m., and "it is out by 9 at the latest," he said.

"We handle their mail that would be delivered later or not at all," he said, adding that they do so in service to the UI, not to the U.S. Postal Service.

The U.S. system makes one round a day for pick-ups, while the campus mail system makes at least three stops during the day, Burton said.

The latest a letter can be mailed for same-day delivery on campus is 11 a.m., he said. Where the Post Office delivers, they pick up the U.S. mail, but they are done earlier in the morning, he explained.

"Where we stop, we pick up the U.S. and campus mail and take it to the Post Office," Burton said. "Otherwise, it would sit there until the next day."

Letters mailed at the Iowa City Post Office are picked up at midnight for delivery the following day, a representative of the Post Office said. Next-day delivery for street mailboxes is only possible for letters deposited before the last pick-up listed on the box.

The only way same-day delivery is possible at the Post Office is to mail a letter by 8:30 a.m. and send it special delivery, the representative said.

Mail that is just going from one spot to another on campus does not require postage because the campus mail system is funded by UI.

Burton said that campus mail uses about $2,500 in postage each month and an additional $1,000 per month in mailings for United Parcel Service. These amounts are for postage affixed to U.S. mail and UPS material that comes from UI departments, many of which do not have postage meters to attach postage themselves.

Despite the volume of work involved, the system may appear to remain relatively anonymous, Burton was asked why that might be.

"We don't have a lot of time to stop and talk," he explained. "We're not good humor men around campus."

AWOL resurfaces Postscripts after 28 years

BERLIN (UPI) — An American soldier who went AWOL in 1951 because of "troubles" with the army said Monday he hid for 28 years in his girl friend's tiny West Berlin apartment and never went out into the street until she died of cancer.

"In all of the 28 years we shared our lives, she never suggested that I should give myself up," said 54-year old PFC Robert Petree of Flint, Mich., in an interview. "There was no discussion about it. She knew I wanted to be with her."

But the woman, whose name Petree declined to disclose, died of cancer just before Christmas, leaving him without support.

Petree said he eventually decided to commit suicide, but when he found himself unable to make his fatal jump in front of a train, he called the police instead and turned himself in Wednesday.

U.S. Army officers listened to Petree's story, then sent him to hospital to be treated for a crippling hernia.

Petree said the Army assigned him to the 6th Infantry in West Berlin in 1949. Shortly after arriving, he met the girl destined to hide him for almost three decades.

But Petree also ran into trouble with the army.

"I was blamed for something I had not done," he said. He refused to divulge details but said he wrote complaint letters to President Truman and Gen. Lucius D. Clay, then U.S. military governor in Germany.

"I never got a reply from the president and never got beyond Gen. Clay's secretary," Petree said. At that point he went AWOL.

At first, Petree and his fiancée lived with her widowed mother in the Friedenau section of West Berlin.

In 1961, Petree's fiancée rented a tiny apartment for the two of them in the Schoenberg section, and one night she sneaked Petree to it — his first and only venture into the street during his 28 years of hiding.

"It had two rooms, but one of them had a balcony, and I couldn't be seen near that in case I was spotted and reported to the police," Petree said. "So I spent all of my time in one room and never ventured out."

Petree's fiancée worked first as a seamstress, then as a cleaner in a pharmacy, while he did odd jobs around the apartment and listened to the radio or, later, watched TV.

"Sometimes I did get bored and wondered what would happen if I turned myself in to the military people," he said. "But I was scared at the way they would react."

So the couple lived, from 1951 until the middle of 1978, when the woman developed a heart ailment and cancer of the breast.

"She went into hospital for an operation," Petree recalled. "As soon as she could, she got up and visited me. She was in a lot of pain, but she knew how pleased I was to see her again."

"She died shortly afterwards, just before Christmas."

After weeks of thought, Petree said he decided to commit suicide. He collected his few documents in a bag and finally abandoned his hideout to go to a subway station.

"I wanted to throw myself in front of a train," Petree said. "But all of the people were looking at me, and I couldn't go through with it."

Instead he took a train to the American sector, where he asked a woman to call the police.

Petree said he believes both his father and mother died while he was in hiding, although a brother may still be alive.

But in any event, he hopes to be allowed to remain in West Berlin.

Hurlers, hitters help Hawkeyes sweep Upper Iowa

By HEIDI McNEIL
Staff Writer

The Iowa baseball team got in some extra batting practice Monday with a little help from a strong wind as the Hawks trounced Upper Iowa, 13-0, 19-3. Iowa's doubleheader sweep upped the season record to 30-10 as Coach Duane Banks' crew earned its sixth straight win. The Peacocks' mark fell to 10-16.

The Upper Iowa pitching staff faced some hot Hawkeye sticks as it surrendered 33 hits in the two games. The Peacocks emptied the bullpen using five hurlers in the twinbill.

Shortstop Dave Hoeksema led off the hit parade with his 16th double of the season to score Lantz Platz. An error coupled with a wild pitch scored Hoeksema, Ed Garton and Jeff Jones to make it 4-0.

The Iowa bats kept going in the second and third stanzas as Platz blasted a two-run shot over the left field fence. Not to be outdone, first baseman Del Ryan ripped another to the same spot for a two-run round-tripper.

Catcher Tom Norman scored the final run in the sixth as he took advantage of an Upper Iowa miscue to end the 13-0 shutout.

hurler Rick Klienow (2-3) to an early shower as he gave up eight hits, walked four and struck out two in 2 2-3 innings.

Reliever Ken Doyle didn't fare much better as the Hawks repeated the hitting show from the previous two frames during the fourth and fifth stanzas.

Third baseman Jeff Lueders rapped a run-scoring double in the fourth while shortstop Hoeksema and Garton scored in the fifth on a costly Peacock error.

Catcher Tom Norman scored the final run in the sixth as he took advantage of an Upper Iowa miscue to end the 13-0 shutout.

A left-right freshman combination handled the mound duties for the Hawks in the opening contest. Iowa City native Randy Norton earned his fourth victory in six outings as the right-hander fanned seven Peacock batters while scattering four hits during his five inning stint.

Southpaw reliever Mark Radosevich finished the game in fine fashion giving up one hit and striking out four.

Upper Iowa's Doyle survived the final Iowa hitting attack allowing six hits while walking three and striking out one.

field. Outfielder Ed Lash followed suit with a two-run blast over the right-field fence.

The Peacocks retaliated a little in their portion of the first frame with a run scored by center fielder Don Lyons.

Iowa's home run display continued in the second as Lueders cracked one over the right fielder's head to score an additional three. Bill Wilson accounted for another as his triple sent catcher Ken Kramer home, putting the Hawks in front, 7-1.

The Iowa bats kept swinging in the third paced by a Pesko triple and an Eric Linderman single which produced three tallies. A ground out by Lueders brought Pesko in as Garton iced the cake with a solo blast to center.

Upper Iowa scored its final runs in the third on a ground out by Hunzelman and sacrifice fly by first baseman Jim Dunwald.

The Hawks followed the Upper Iowa scoring strategy as they tallied a couple of runs in the fifth also on a ground out and sacrifice fly.

The final two stanzas found Wilson, Kramer and Lueders rapping out triples to made the final score, 19-3. Lueders' three-base blast was his ninth RBI for the day.

Another Iowa City product Jeff Mason (2-0) picked up the win for the Hawks as he struck out three, walked two and gave up four hits. Reliever Chuck Halling went the distance in the final two frames surrendering two hits against two strikeouts.

A trio of Peacock hurlers in the form of Roy Rydell, Jerry Johnson and Rick Radcliffe were unable to contain the Iowa batters as Rydell (1-1) was saddled with the loss giving up 13 hits in the first two innings.

Banks was pleased with his team's showing and hopes that today's 1 p.m. home game with Iowa State will be a good tune-up for this weekend's Big Ten slate in Michigan.

Hobbs, Lazar sign free agent contracts

Two more Iowa football players will take a crack at joining the ranks of professional football players.

Jon Lazar and Darrell Hobbs signed as free agents with the Dallas Cowboys and Atlanta Falcons, respectively. Teammates Tom Rusk and Dave Becker were selected during the NFL's draft.

Lazar was the Hawks' top ground gainer for the last three seasons and will be trying out as a fullback with the Cowboys. The 6-foot-1, 210-pound running back was an All-American as a prep at South Tama High School.

Hobbs, a 6-6, 250-pound defensive end, was a regular on the Hawkeye defensive unit since transferring to Iowa after receiving first team All-American honors at Ellsworth Junior College, which played for the national JUCO title during his last season.

"I'm just happy to get a chance to play, whether it be as a free agent or through the draft. I think I've got the ability to play pro ball, but I've got to improve my strength and probably should add 10 to 15 pounds," Hobbs said. "If I don't make it, I won't be disappointed, all I'll be able to say is that I gave it my best shot."

Thornton given Clemente Award
 NEW YORK (UPI) — First baseman Andre Thornton, considered to be an inspiration to his teammates on the Cleveland Indians because of his positive outlook and unselfish attitude, was presented with the Roberto Clemente Award on Monday.

Thornton, who won out over a field of 17 candidates, lost his wife and daughter in an automobile accident in October 1977, but his strong faith in God helped him to cope with the tragedy. He called his selection "the greatest thrill I've ever had in baseball."

Nicklaus wins Athlete of Decade
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus was named Athlete of the Decade, 1969-1978, beating out notables like O.J. Simpson, Bobby Orr, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Bruce Jenner.

Second place went to Rod Carew, who has been playing baseball almost as long as Nicklaus has played golf. Last year's winner was Muhammad Ali.
