Local disco accused of race discrimination

By NEIL BROWN

A horn-drawn carriage appeared suddenly in front of the disco, blaring the theme from "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," and there was little question that the Woodfield's Disco was, indeed, the Woodfield's.

A crowd of 500 packed the club, listening to the music of the disco's resident band, the "Rocky Horror Band." The disco's owner, Neil Brown, was on hand to greet the patrons, and the disco's atmosphere was electric.

But the disco's success was not without its problems. On the night of the disco's opening, a投诉 was made against the disco for violating the city's anti-discrimination laws.

The complaint was filed by a group of African American patrons who claimed that they were denied entrance to the disco because of their race.

The disco's owner, Neil Brown, denied the allegations, stating that the disco was open to all patrons regardless of race.

The disco's anti-discrimination policies were strictly enforced, and the disco's staff was trained in the best practices of anti-discrimination.

"We take our anti-discrimination policies very seriously," Brown said. "We have a strict no-discrimination policy, and we make sure all of our staff are trained in the policies.

"Our disco is open to all patrons, regardless of race, gender, or religion," Brown added. "We strive to create a welcoming and inclusive environment for all of our patrons."

Homosexuals march on tenth anniversary

By United Press International

Nearly 300 members of the nation’s most militant homosexual mounting demonstrated Sunday to mark the 10th anniversary of a march in Manhattan police regarded as the start of the gay rights movement.

New York City’s Commission of the Gay Liberation Front said 1,000 to 1,200 people participated in the demonstration Sunday. The demonstration was the largest gay rights demonstration in the U.S., according to the Daily News.

The parade, which was sponsored by a gay liberation group, drew approximately 1,000 people.

16-ton Iowa fossil rock lifted to UI

By STEPHEN HODGES

University Amateur Jeff Schabilion has a new pet rock. Schabilion’s rock is not the kind Linux Frink received last Christmas. His rock weighs in at 16.6 tons. It was the heaviest boulder ever brought to the University of Iowa campus.

The rock, a boulder from the early Carboniferous period, is a fossilized tree. It was removed from the property of Dr. Emerson Webster, who lived in the town of New Boston, Iowa, about 15 miles west of Iowa City.

“Many other rocks have been carried to the UI in the past,” Schabilion said. “We have carried a boulder here to UI campus in the past. The boulder itself is from the New Boston area.”

Abortion opponents march

CINCINNATI (UPI) - Protesting, thouh illuminating and singing “Dat’s My Home,” 300 abortion opponents marched through downtown Cincinnati Sunday.

The march and rally was organized by the National Right To Life Committee and was sponsored by the National Right To Life Committee. The march was held to protest against abortion.

Drainage gully is growing wider daily

BY ROBERT MCGONAGLE

Drained by a deadly combination of drought and flooding, the drainage ditch separating the Iowa City and Coralville radars is growing wider. The city of Coralville recently noticed the gully was growing and asked the city of Iowa City to do something about it. "The gully is growing wider," said Coralville's public works director, "and it's getting deeper." The city of Iowa City will examine the gully and decide what to do about it. "We will do what we can to make it safer," said Iowa City's public works director. "But we can't do anything about it until the weather changes." The gully is growing wider and deeper, and it's getting dangerous. The city of Iowa City will have to do something about it soon. "We will do what we can to make it safer," said Iowa City's public works director. "But we can't do anything about it until the weather changes." Iowa's counties: Rich, and getting richer all the time

It is copyrighted story, yesterday's Des Moines Sunday Register made note of an $8 million surplus accumulated by Iowa's counties. According to Story's Treasurer Maurice Barry, the explanation for the balance is simple: a cash flow problem. Accumulated through habitual underestimation of tax revenues and overestimation of expenses, the surpluses are not twice what Iowa's counties need to carry them over to the next fiscal year. Barry says, as with other state officials, he estimates that a balance of 20 percent of expenditures is an adequate goal. For the 26 counties who have surpluses equaling or exceeding 30 percent of their operating expenses, he says, in theory, a number of the counties are sufficient to wipe out property taxes for a year. American States show disapproval of Somozas

The Organization of American States has called for the resignation of Nicaragua's President Anastasio Somoza. The resolution was adopted by the 26 member states, which had also passed a resolution condemning Somoza's refusal to allow American military observers into the country. Even so, it is hard to justify a surplus of more than 10 percent of the operating expense of a county— a position that three of the counties find themselves in. Johnson County has a 20 percent of operating excess surplus. A number of other counties have surpluses in the 15 percent range. Taxation on these counties is outstripping inflation, and the money is going, in most instances, to no good use. It's lovely to think of the 80-90 percent of operating excess surplus. Yesterday the title was on the new SALT III Talks, or so it seems. For some time now the Carter administration has propagated the groundwork for a new American nuclear system, SALT III. The United States is not alone in its efforts toward this end. But the United States is probably closer to having a workable and feasible SALT III system than is any other country in the world. In fact, the United States is probably closer to having a workable and feasible SALT III system than is any other country in the world. Car upkeep takes more from income than ever before

DEPARTMENT II (UPI) - The cost of owning and operating a car now averages more than one-quarter of the national income, it was reported last week. For the first time in history, it was reported, the cost to the average American has exceeded the amount that the average American earns.

In the survey, which covered 4,475 passenger cars and commercial vehicles operated by 10 million people, a record 23.7 percent increase over 1977, the study found that the total, before interest, taxes and insurance, was up 9.1 percent from 1977.

The survey covered all cars and trucks on the road, but did not include the millions of vehicles operated by government and organizations.

The survey showed that the average American is spending 4.4 percent of his income on gas, 3.6 percent on interest, 3.3 percent on insurance, 2.8 percent on upkeep, and 2.7 percent on taxes.

Trevino fires 71 for Canadian win

OUGUINE, Canada (UPI) — Victory-wittering Ben Crenshaw finally pressure-gutted his way to his fifth career PGA title Sunday in the Canadian Open with a 71-

Trevino, 38, supplanted steady prosperity through five holes before collapsing with a 75-

Trevino, who is 26th on the all-time money list with $1.71 million, became the first Canadian winner of the $200,000 event.

The victory was the second straight in the 1979 Canadian Open for Crenshaw, whose money total stands at $1.71 million.

Trevino, who entered the final round two strokes behind Crenshaw, carded four birdies and a bogey.

The victory was the 22nd of his career on the PGA Tour and came in the 40th year of his professional career.

Bulls' selection to key NBA draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alphonso Davis, known as "Bugs," has been removed from Stanford's NBA draft and is likely to have a future in the pros.

The 6-7, 220-pound Davis, who averaged 10.8 points and 5.4 rebounds per game last season, was chosen by the Chicago Bulls in the second round of the NBA draft in 1985.

Davis, 25, was born in San Francisco and the pair are expected to make the cut at the 72-hole Open.

Tiger Woods, playing in the 1999 U.S. Open at Medinah, his home course, finished third.

Woods is one of the most talented and popular golfers on the PGA Tour, but his performance in the Open was marred by a triple bogey on the 18th hole, which led to a second-round elimination.

Tiger Woods' win at the 1997 U.S. Open was a defining moment in his career, as it marked his first major victory.

Tiger Woods, who turned pro in 1996, has since won 14 major championships, including the Masters, U.S. Open, and British Open.

Woods' win at the 1997 U.S. Open was particularly significant, as it marked his first major victory after starting the year ranked 16th in the world.

Woods' win was also notable for his young age, as he was only 21 years old at the time.

Woods has since gone on to dominate the sport, winning multiple majors and setting numerous records.

Woods' success has not been without controversy, as he has been the target of numerous personal attacks throughout his career.

Woods' win at the 1997 U.S. Open helped cement his status as one of the greatest golfers of all time, and his legacy continues to grow with each passing year.
