Carter says he will keep sanctions against Rhodesia

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Jimmy Carter announced Wednesday he will keep in place economic sanctions against Rhodesia, saying the government of Zimbabwe Rhodesia bas "hardened its positions" about a week after the government's offer of a U.S. Embassy的道理 was "irrelevant and impossible".

W . , Carters' decision to keep sanctions was based on a majority vote in both houses and a $5 billion American banks accounts receivable was blocked by the Council of Foreign Relations, a private research society that advises the government.

CARTER: The announcement was made in a statement to the State Department.

"HE LEYEST decision that it is in the interests of the United States to continue sanctions against Rhodesia at this time," he said, adding because the council of foreign relations had given its support to the decision. The council was the American equivalent of the British Foreign Office.

The statement said, "We are prepared to continue the economic sanctions against Rhodesia until such time as we have received assurance that they will cease toMINISTER." He told reporters later Wednesday night that the council of foreign relations had given its support to the decision.

The council of foreign relations was a private research society that advises the government. The council had given its support to the decision in its 14th annual report.

Decision deadline nears on Jordan investment

By LEE THOMAS

WASHINGTON -- Jordan's King Hussein on Thursday announced that he has determined he will not war with Israel, but he made no commitment to resolve the Middle East conflict.

King Hussein also announced that Jordan will not pull out of the West Bank unless Israel pulls out of Jordan's own territory on the West Bank.

Jordanians, who have been on guard since the king declared war on Israel last March, were jubilant.

They piled into the streets in Jordan's capital, Amman, to celebrate. Hundreds of Jordanians wept of joy.

King Hussein said the situation in Jordan is under control and the country is ready to solve the problem of the West Bank.

The king made no mention of the Geneva Peace Conference, which is scheduled to convene in Geneva in February.

The king said the conference will be held in September and that the peace talks will continue.

He added that Jordan will not be ready to go to the peace talks until the Jordanian army has been reorganized.

He also said that Jordan will continue to support the peace process and that the country will not pull out of the West Bank.

Jordan is one of the states that has been a member of the United Nations since 1945.

In his statement, the king said that the decision on the peace talks will be made after the conference in September.

Delegation: Cambodia will accept food

WASHINGTON (AP) -- A group of congressional leaders Wednesday met with the Cambodian government to try to help feed thousands of refugees who have fled the civil war in their homeland.

The women were members of a delegation of three from the families of Americans killed in the conflict, and the families have been working to help feed the refugees who have fled to Thailand.

The delegation was also told that the government has agreed to let food be brought in to help feed the refugees in the country.

Unspesable
We've all heard and seen evidence that American schools aren't teaching their students to read and write the mother tongue; the consequences of this deficiency should be painfully obvious. A presidential commission report issued last month states that the prestige gap in foreign language instruction in this country is also going to have far-reaching negative repercussions, significantly impeding America's ability to retain its status as a world power.

Critic critique

Now that Bill, Edward Kennedy has officially entered the Presidential race, it is time to subject him to the same scrutiny as President Carter.

In his recent campaign swing through Iowa, Kennedy charged that Carter's foreign policies demonstrate the same neglect of the working class as the policies of the Eisenhower administration. Kennedy's defense of Iran, he claimed, was a case in point. It is no wonder that the Department of Labor statistics for last month suggest that unemployment before it, too, becomes a crisis?

Robert Shiller

Jobless blues

President Carter has declared that the war against inflation is the top priority of his administration. Yet last week he announced that a significant number of unemployed workers are still out of work. How can a President who has been called a man of the people be so uncaring about those who have been left behind by the economic recession?

Readers: Empathy, not machismo needed

It's not often that one reads a headline which suggests that Blacks and women, two groups who have charged that the program has less future need of a foreign language than do liberal arts students, are in fact receiving education in the schools to which they have been denied access. The schools are clear in their mission statement: "We serve the public and the students, not the students who serve the public.

Perhaps you're wondering why the title of the book is Train Up a Child. This title is not a new concept. It is the title of a book written by Dr. J. Op-ed policy

Op-ed appears every Tuesday and Thursday in The Daily Iowan.

By MURRAY R. WOLFE

Op-ed is a forum for presenting opinions and arguments on public affairs, written by students and submitted "opposite editorials." Op-eds may not exceed 900 words.

Op-ed is paid for by The Daily Iowan. Op-eds written by non-Iowan staff or by" free-lance" Iowan staff are "free-lance" and not necessarily the opinions of the paper.

The Daily Iowan--Iowa City, Iowa--Thursday, November 15, 1979--Page 5

The primary goal of Op-ed is to provide an opportunity for students who have an opinion or an argument to present it in a forum for public discussion. The policy is to encourage the free expression of ideas and to promote the highest standards of quality and accuracy in journalism.

Op-eds are intended to be provocative and informative. They should be written in a clear, concise style and should be free from errors of fact, grammar, and spelling.

Op-eds are subject to editing for clarity and brevity. They are paid for by The Daily Iowan. Op-eds written by non-Iowan staff or by" free-lance" Iowan staff are "free-lance" and not necessarily the opinions of the paper.

Opinion sought on records ownership

By ROY POSTLE

The Tioga County Clerk of Court Susan Flaherty is seeking an attorney general's opinion in a dispute over the right of the Tioga County Historical Society to record vital statistics files with the county.

The request was prompted by guidelines - in the form of a resolution passed by the Board of County Commissioners -limiting public access to records of births, deaths and marriages.

A letter dated Nov. 1 informed the state's counsel that the society's ability to access records on the death of family members and other genealogy research groups and businesses is fundamental to the society's vital statistical file.

Flaherty says the request is in response to a directive by the County Commissioners' Board that records shall be released only to a member of the immediate family or the person's guardian or legal representative.

"The guidelines are so broad and vague that they confound the records researcher as well as the society's genealogy research groups and businesses," Flaherty said.

The society's request is seeking an attorney general's opinion to resolve the issue.

A domed city: Vermont town considers ideas

RUTLAND - The Vergennes Community Development Committee is seeking public reaction to a specific idea for a $10 million building downtown.

The plan calls for a building to house a downtown health clinic; the town's library; a municipal center; meeting rooms; and information about the region.

A Vermont Clothiers executive has offered to donate the land if the town agrees to raise $10 million in funding.

The idea was sparked by an attorney general's opinion that local governments have the right to open public records to members of the immediate family.

"It seems the basis of this notification is that the state limits the right of access to certain public records," said Carolyn Nutter, executive director of the Vermont Clothiers.

"Flaherty said that the definition of "immediate family" needs clarification. If these records are considered public records, they should be available to the public.

"The town is seeking to resolve the issue," Flaherty said.

"It now places the city of Rutland in a position to determine whether a public records attorney general's opinion, which is our intention that this action will aid you in your efforts in establishing a public records advantage against outside municipalities," Flaherty said.

"The town is seeking to resolve the issue," Flaherty said.

"In the past, the Vermont Clothiers has opened to the public, even though it was not their intent to open the records," Flaherty said.

Rolfing your way through pain to balance

By TINA KIRKHAM

"It's a feeling you can cultivate. When you approach it in a new balance way, the things around you take on a new order. There's more balance around you instead of chaos and fragmentation.

Rolfing? Named for its originator, Ida Rolf, who described this process over 30 years ago, Rolfing is a system of bodywork that seeks to "reorganize" the body and "create balance." Though it sounds dramatic enough, Rolfing itself is a gentle approach that the process of it is

ACCORDING to Park, she found it easier to release the tension in various muscles, because that is often a result of experienced tension. The Rolfi seeks to "free their form from their constraints." Petit says: "I've heard that a lot of people feel their bodies in a characteristic way, that they start feeling better. When they're going to get better, that's a sign that there's a natural rhythm in the body. They adopt a different attitude toward the world."

Besides creating Rolfing with the release of pain or stress, she says that in Rolfing, she feels like in Petit. Petit talks to me in a way that most people can follow with ease. I started feeling thing or another. When things are going well, the body tends to naturally lean in one direction. Petit's approach to Rolfing is the log, though the body was crazy. It didn't hurt at all. I didn't cry at all."

In spite of the discomfort, Petit developed interest in a variety of benefits from the treatment, including change in thinking, gradual sense of movement, increased energy and generally feeling more alive.

Opposition leaders want a revised constitution that will strengthen his authority. "Let's open the door to new concepts and new political ideas," Petit says. "Perhaps you're affected by this process of my practices."

Petit, who invented the Rolfing method some 30 years ago, is similar to a type of deep massage. The Rolfer uses fingers, knuckles — even elbows — to manipulate muscle tissue and "create an aliveness process." When you approach the muscles in one leg, the Rolfer seeks to "create an unbalanced thing". Petit says: "I don't think about it, I don't cry at all."

EIGHT AMERICANS WHO ESCAPED HANGING IN TEHRAN

Claims that eight Americans who escaped from Iran under a U.S. government program last year have been arrested in Tehran have been challenged by U.S. officials.

The State Department confirmed that the Americans were in Iran but did not provide further details.

ATTENTION:

Due to the sensitivity of the situation, U.S. officials have declined to comment on the report.

Yale battles Harvard in Ivy League rivalry

Red-Hot Gilroy

President Young S. Gilroy at Harvard Universitybelieves the team's success stems from the players' dedication to the Ivy League's traditions.

Yale is currently ranked #2 in the league, just behind Harvard, who holds the top spot. The two teams are set to face each other in the annual rivalry game on Saturday, November 13, 1875. Gilroy says he's excited about the match-up and believes it will be a close one.

Gilroy went on to say, "This is the biggest rivalry in the Ivy League, and we know it's going to be a tough game for us. But we'll be ready to give it our all." He also mentioned the importance of team spirit and how it has been a key factor in Yale's success this season.

The game will be held at Harvard Stadium, and admission is free for all fans who want to attend.

ACC powers back for another try

Despite the recent withdrawals of several teams from the ACC, the conference is looking to make a strong showing in the upcoming season.

ACC Commissioner John Swofford is confident that the conference will be able to attract new members and strengthen its presence in the college football landscape.

Swofford said, "We have a lot of work to do, but I'm optimistic about the future of the ACC. Our fan base is strong, and we have a lot of potential for success." He also mentioned the conference's efforts to expand its media deals and enhance its brand.

ACC schools have been successful in recent years, with teams like Clemson, Louisville, and Boston College makingnoise in the national rankings. Swofford believes the conference can continue to build on this success and attract more top talent.

Bucks' Schlichter wants win Saturday

Quarterback Bill Schlichter of the University of Michigan is looking forward to Saturday's game against Ohio State.

Schlichter said, "We're really excited to face Ohio State. We lost to them last year, so we're determined to come out strong this time." He also mentioned that his team is well-prepared for the challenge and is ready to give it their all.

Ohio State is currently ranked #1 in the Big Ten Conference, while Michigan is #5. Both teams are looking to improve their records and secure a spot in the conference championship game.

Schlichter expects the game to be tough, but he is confident in his team's ability to come out on top. "We know it's going to be a challenge, but we're ready to face it," he said. "We're ready to win this game and secure a spot in the conference championship."
Iowa opens at Windy City Invitational

SOUTHERN IOWA WEEKLY

The basketball season is here, and what a season it will be. The Hawkeyes are off to a strong start, and the Big Ten race is heating up. With the return of key players from last season, including point guard Ronald Lester, Iowa is expected to make a strong push for the conference title.

The Hawkeyes opened their season with a home win against the University of Illinois. Lester led the team with 24 points, including a game-winning three-pointer at the buzzer. Iowa will look to continue their strong play as they head to Windy City for the Windy City Invitational.

The Windy City Invitational will feature some of the best teams in the Midwest, including Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan. With a deep bench and a strong Tradition basketball program, Iowa is expected to do well in this tournament.

The Hawkeyes will face off against their heated rivals, the Illinois Fighting Illini, in the opening game. Coach Bobby Knight expects a tough game, but he's confident in his team's ability to come out on top.

Other games on the schedule include Iowa vs. Wisconsin and Iowa vs. Michigan. With their experienced roster and strong coaching staff, the Hawkeyes are expected to make a strong showing in this invitational.

The Windy City Invitational is a great opportunity for the Hawkeyes to showcase their talent to a national audience. With a strong performance, they could solidify their position as a top team in the Midwest and set themselves up for a deep run in the NCAA Tournament.

The Hawkeyes will need to be at their best if they want to come out on top. With a tough schedule and strong competition, this invitational is sure to be a exciting and competitive.
