After DOT offer, city said close to F-518 okay

By ROD BOSSHART

The Iowa City Council and the Iowa DOT have reached a tentative agreement that would allow the construction of a road called F-518 on city land, according to a city spokesperson.

The agreement was reached after a meeting between the city and the Iowa DOT on Monday, the council spokesperson said. The agreement includes a $4.5 million refund for city residents, who will now have to pay a portion of the construction costs.

The refund will be divided among city residents based on their property tax assessments, the spokesperson said.

The city and the Iowa DOT have been working on the project for several years, and the agreement marks a significant step forward in the process.

The refund will be used to pay for the construction of the road, and the city will be responsible for maintaining it.

The city and the Iowa DOT will continue to work on the project, and the road is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

March for Survival

Today approximately 300 international-aid workers, led by the March for Survival in the Thak-Bok-Cambodian border to demand a right of return for Cambodian refugees. The March for Survival focuses on the international call for a peaceful resolution to the internal conflict of the Khmer Rouge. The marchers leave the border in order to draw attention to the plight of the Cambodian refugees who have been forced to flee their homeland due to the ongoing conflict. The march is a peaceful protest to raise awareness and demand action for the human rights violations occurring in Cambodia.

In a recent issue of The New Republic, Bernard-Henri Levy, leader of the French volunteer group, organized the march and will permit authorities to distribute food and medicine to Cambodians. If the march is not allowed, they plan to distribute the supplies to Cambodians in refugee camps.

To the editor:

Using the argumentation crisis as an excuse and theREAMS of the United States will have a profound effect on the psyche of the American people. We need to face the facts and realize that our military is not a deterrent and that our system is in desperate need of reform.

in response to your Jan. 31 letter, "A Message to the People," I am writing to express my disagreement with your的观点.

I believe that the problem lies in the way we approach the issue of military reform. We have been too quick to condemn our military and not enough to look at the underlying causes of the crisis.

In my opinion, the real problem is the lack of decision-making power in the hands of the military leadership. This allows too much discretion and can lead to poor decisions that ultimately hurt our country.

To the editor:

I agree with your viewpoint on the need for a more transparent and accountable military leadership. However, I believe that the issue goes much deeper than just the military's decision-making power.

It is our duty as citizens to demand better leadership and hold our military accountable for their actions.

To the editor:

The United States has a responsibility to ensure that its military is effective and that it serves the people it is meant to protect.

This means taking steps to address the issues that have led to the crisis in our military, such as inadequate funding, poorly trained personnel, and an outdated system of promotions.

We need to recognize that the crisis in our military is not just a matter of numbers or resources, but a matter of values and principles.

It is time for us to come together and work towards a solution that will benefit our country and our citizens.

Sincerely,

Jane Smith

Lightning plays havoc: kills at least 200 a year

By DONALD FREDERICK
Wedding Beaders' Iowa News Service

WASHINGTON — Lightning packs a powerful wallop. It can deliver 30,000 volts and temperatures five times hotter than the sun’s surface.

It’s no wonder, then, that the destructive storms that strike the earth sometimes play havoc with life. Lightning kills virtually at least 100 people a year in the United States, despite the considerate steady reports.

“For some unexplained reason, the number of recorded lightning deaths has been steadily declining since this date, when an averaged lightning death rate of one was recorded per day, averaging everywhere everywhere everywhere.

“Localities without lightning often go generated because, unlike marine phenomenon, this is because of the number of tornadoes and droughts, the bolts kill people for years to come.

“Luckily, instead of those who survive a fatality, lightning victims often live long lives, sometimes living on through direct kills.

THE HUMAN lighting red revealed: There was a gentle rain, but not thunder until suddenly one big — the loudest thing I’ve ever heard. Five was leaning around the chapter desk, and then my ears stopped ringing, and it’s too late. You can smell sulfur in the air, and then you know you’re dead, and it’s too late to do anything.

“Lightning is caused by a huge collection of charges that are in a similar way. When the lighting is touched off, the air becomes instantly colder, and it creates an electrical spark.

“Just what makes nature’s fireworks? Dr. J. A. Serow, a research scientist of the Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory, believes that these help trigger lightning strikes.

“TRAVELING, in contrast, displays a variety of — perhaps spectacular — lighting in the work. Lightning strikes are often large and highly controlled geometrical patterns. It uses materials such as copper wire, sheet metal and floral strips to weave wall hangings that either fiber or freeze a supernatural and mysterious quality, and, when lightning strikes, the lighting of the sky creates a work of art.

“Culver is away, and different approaches in these early uses of fiber techniques are used on a massive scale, making ber work with and without the aid of water to pack down the fibers. The aid of water to pack down the fibers.

“Besides providing heat retention, the aid of water to pack down the fibers.

“So-called ‘nightscape,’ another large construction, is an alternative to any of this spectacular black paper in a checkerboard of black and white. A group of schoolchildren carrying the exhibit were intrigued by the tiny printed words in the museum and wanted to read them. They perceived that the language seemed different stories.

“Some firms focus on just one element of their health care coverage costs. Retention administrative costs, for instance. Of course that’s important because what you pay in retention doesn’t buy benefits. But, it may be penny wise and pound foolish.

“Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Iowa operating costs are among the lowest in the nation. These low Blue Cross and Blue Shield administrative costs put more of your money into the cost of benefits where it should be. That helps you be pound wise.

“Some firms focus on the penalty of rare differential while spending dollars on their own administration of a health care program. The salaries and wages of employees needed to file claims and handle paper work must be considered part of the rate paid. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Iowa handles things directly with members hospital and participating physicians. It saves time, work, and money, and keeps the employee’s health care problems confidential.

“All firms are concerned with cash flow, and well they should be. What a health care program does to cash flow can make a big difference. A lower cost program that ties up money is not pound wise. Blue Cross and Blue Shield have an effective cash flow program for large firms that makes their money work hard.

“Spend a few minutes with a Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Iowa representative could be the best thing you can do for your company and for your company. An appointment at your convenience without obligation, call or write.

Culver outpost rivals

DES MOINES (CPI) — Sen. John Culver raised nearly $800,000 during 1979 for his re-election bid and spent less than half of the money, according to figures released Monday.

Reports filed with the Federal Election Commission disclosed Culver lapped last-minute from the war chest of multimillionaire businessmen who are seeking to unseat the Democrat, sophomore senator who made his first bid for re-election.

Culver reported raising slightly more than $400,000 during the year, or about 54 percent of the money he had spent more than $500,000 lobbying the groundwork for his re-election campaign, according to the figures.

In contrast, his campaign totalled only $180,000 in contributions to Culver in 1979.

Culver lapped 16 persons, most of them living outside Iowa, who made maximum individual contributions to his campaign.

Herbert and Greenway each received $1,300 from the 16 donors.

Among the $18,000 given to Culver were actor Paul Newman and his wife, Joanne Woodward, John Surber, chairman of the organization, and John E. Hearne, executive secretary of the organization.

Herbert’s brother, Charles, who lives in New York, was the highest earner among the donors.

Culver received $2,000 from special interest groups, primarily labor organizations.

Aspen fever in Midwest skiers:
Opportunity in Iowa’s backyard

By FRED WYER

Around this time of the year in a red-faced Midwesterner, talk always turns to skiing. And it’s not just a little bit of a brag—when you’ve spent thousands of dollars on an all-expense-paid trip to the Rockies or even the Alps, you’ve earned bragging rights.

The nearest opportunity to ski in Iowa is the state-of-the-art ski resort at Bivouac. Located in the northeast corner of the state, Bivouac offers some of the best skiing and snowboarding in the Midwest. With a vertical drop of 500 feet, Bivouac has something for everyone, from casual skiers to adrenaline junkies.

Bivouac is just one of the many ski resorts in the Midwest that offer great opportunities for skiing and snowboarding. Whether you’re a beginner or an expert, there’s something for everyone. And with prices starting at just $15 for a day pass, Bivouac is an affordable option for families and individuals alike.

In addition to skiing and snowboarding, Bivouac also offers a variety of other activities, including tube riding and snowmobiling. So whether you’re looking to hit the slopes or try something new, Bivouac has got you covered.

So the next time someone mentions skiing in the Midwest, make sure to mention Bivouac and all the other great opportunities for skiing and snowboarding in the region. It’s not just bragging rights; it’s a real opportunity to experience some of the best skiing and snowboarding in the Midwest.

Saturday night, around 10 p.m., a few blocks from the Minneapolis campus, a group of students decided to head to a party. They were looking for a good time, but little did they know, they would end up in a tense situation.

The party was being held in a small house on the campus, and the atmosphere was already heated. People were drinking and talking loudly, but the mood turned sour when a group of students showed up who were not invited.

A fight broke out, and the emergency responders were called. The students were eventually dispersed, but the incident highlighted the challenges faced by the university community.

As they walked away, one of the students said, "I knew it would happen sooner or later. We should have just stayed in the library."
