Funds for health cut, forcing UI to seek aid

By CRAIG GEMOULES
Staff Writer

Cuts in federal funding to health colleges across the nation have again led the UI to seek aid from the Iowa Legislature to make up the losses, according to William Farrell, associate vice president for educational development and research.

Capitation grants — funds awarded to universities on the basis of enrollment — have been steadily declining in the last few years. President Carter allotted $87.3 million in his 1979 budget for capitation funds. His 1980 budget eliminates the grants entirely.

The capitation funding is used to finance the salaries of 10-15 faculty members in the College of Medicine and to help pay some dental assistants in the College of Dentistry. The money is also used in the College of Nursing and the College of Pharmacy.

DESPITE CARTER'S budget plans, Congress appropriated $144 million in grants for the fiscal year 1979, which was a decrease from 1978. This year

The view now is that there are enough physicians, but they are maldistributed.

Congress ignored Carter's budget and awarded capitation grants, but at a 27 percent decrease from last year's figure. Although Carter has asked Congress to rescind the grants, no action has been taken yet to reduce the funding.

In fiscal year 1979, the UI received $1,358,489 in capitation grants, but the 1980 allocation is expected to total only $997,843. The estimated figure is based on previous awards and average decreases in the last few years.

Although the UI so far has turned to Iowa legislators to act to provide compensatory aid, Farrell said, "Whether or not the legislature will continue to do this is anybody's guess." Last year the legislature granted the UI more than $340,000 to make up for losses in federal funding.

SEN. JOHN MURRAY, R-Ames, chairman of the senate appropriations subcommittee on education, said that group is endorsing a plan to provide funds to the UI equal to those cut by Congress during the last two years. The plan would not only pick up this year's loss, but would keep pace by making up for previous losses as well. "The philosophy here is one of continued strong support for health education," Murray said.

Murray said the plan was proposed by the UI and Iowa State University to the state Board of Regents and then to Gov. Robert Ray, who in turn asked the legislature for aid. The proposal would provide almost $1,056,000 in fiscal year 1980 to be used to make up for lost capitation grants at both universities.

Of the proposed aid, $720,765 is marked for the UI. The greatest share would go to the College of Medicine. Compensation planned for ISU would be used in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

THE LEGISLATURE, however, has not acted on the proposal and if the measure is rejected, the UI will receive no compensatory monies.

Farrell said capitation grants are needed at the UI because they provide a base for other monies, such as the faculty earnings and grants and contracts programs. Both programs supply additional funding to the health colleges.

"If you start cutting out base support, then everything goes down," Farrell said. Capitation is "the bottom dollar which creates other dollars," he said.

Since federal funding has been cut in the last few years, according to Farrell, the UI has to rely on "different kinds of support," such as the faculty earnings program, which returns a percentage of health college faculty earnings to the UI.

FARRELL SAID capitation grants were started in the 1960s as a way of increasing the number of health professionals in the nation. "The view now is that there are enough physicians, but they are maldistributed," he said.

"Carter has not been a strong proponent in investing in health services," he added.

Artist builds ice house at UI

Charles Simonds, a New York artist, constructed this ice house under the direction of Hans Breder, professor of Art and Art History at the UI. The house, located on the northwest corner of Iowa and Gilbert streets, is in the shape of a snail. It was constructed by using concrete reinforcing rods for the form, draping plastic over the form, making the structure airtight and inflating the structure with an air compressor. Finally, muslin is laid over the top and water sprayed on the entire structure. Simonds said he likes to experiment with primitive ways of construction and termed this a "mixed success, but absolutely possible." The top photo shows the outside of the house. On the left is the view upon entering the house.

Reagan tells, repeats ethnic joke

KEENE, N.H. (UPI) — "There goes Connecticut," quipped an aide after Ronald Reagan told an ethnic joke Saturday and his wife Nancy, campaigning separately, made a racial slip of the tongue.

Late Saturday, the former California governor — in good spirits after a spirited question-and-answer session at a Keene high school, regaled New Hampshire Sen. Gordon Humphrey, former Gov. Lane Dwinell and a couple of aides with a joke he later repeated to reporters aboard the campaign bus.

It was:

"How do you tell who the Polish fellow is at a cock fight? He's the one with the duck.

"How do you tell who the Italian is at the cock fight? He's the one who bets on the duck.

"How do you know the mafia was there? The duck wins."

One aide quipped, laughingly afterward: "There goes Connecticut." Nancy Reagan, meantime, attended a Chicago fund-raiser for her husband, who was grounded in New Hampshire by a snowstorm. But Reagan arranged a telephone hookup to his wife and 200 supporters at the reception.

According to a report by the City

News Bureau of Chicago, Nancy Reagan, in speaking to her husband, said she wished he could be there to "see all these beautiful white people."

She hesitated a moment, paled slightly, and amended: "beautiful black and white people."

"I'm so sorry, I didn't mean it," she was quoted as telling a reporter later.

Donald Totten, a state representative who is managing Reagan's Illinois campaign, defended her.

"Well she didn't mean that, she was talking to her husband about the white snow and that's how she got mixed up," he was quoted as saying.

U.S. approves Iran commission; probe awaits Bani-Sadr's okay

By United Press International

The United Nations said Sunday Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim has completed assembling a five-man commission to investigate Iran's grievances, a probe that could set the stage for the release of the 50 American hostages in Tehran.

But a formal announcement of the commission's formation was delayed at least until today while Waldheim awaited approval of the commission's members from Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr's government.

The panel has already received approval from the Carter administration, a U.N. spokesman said.

If Iran accepts the panel, it could be in Tehran within two days to begin its work, U.N. sources said.

There was no immediate comment from Carter administration officials. They were understood to be withholding comment until Waldheim's official announcement.

A U.N. spokesman said Waldheim has "finalized the composition" of the panel.

DIPLOMATIC sources identified the five members of the commission as:

—Louis Edmond Petit of France, an international law expert.

—Mohammed Bedjaoui, Algerian ambassador to the United Nations.

—Adib Daoudi, foreign policy assistant to Syrian President Hafez al-Assad.

—Andrew Aguilar of Venezuela, former ambassador to Washington and former head of the Human Rights Commission of the Organization of American

—Harry W. Jayewardene of Sri Lanka, a lawyer and noted expert in international law.

Jayewardene was a last-minute replacement for Abbu Sayeed Choudhury, the chief judge and first president of Bangladesh.

Bani-Sadr, in an interview with Greek television, said the hostages, in their 106th day of captivity, would be held at least until the commission releases its findings and the United States condemns its own past policies in Iran.

TO DATE, the Carter administration has said it will refuse to admit any wrongdoing for past U.S. policies in Iran.

Berlin asks approval of 35-cent fare

By ROD BOSHART
Staff Writer

In an effort to increase revenue for the Iowa City Transit System, City Manager Neal Berlin has proposed that the City Council raise bus fares to 35 cents effective April 1 through fiscal 1981, and levy a small transit property tax for that fiscal year.

In addition, Berlin recommends raising monthly passes from $8 to $12, retaining the current 25-cent bus fares on Saturdays only and increasing special off-peak rates to 25 cents for school field trip passes and the "Bus and Shop" program.

In a Feb. 15 memorandum to the council, Berlin estimates that adoption of the total package he proposes would increase fiscal 1981 revenues for transit by about $275,000 over current levels.

Berlin says the 35-cent fare — proposed for April 1, 1980, through June 30, 1981 — will raise $22,600 more this year and $194,000 more in fiscal 1981 than projected revenues if the current 25-cent fare were retained.

"THE PUBLIC acceptance of an increase to 35 cents is not expected to adversely affect ridership and the amount of the increase is such that it will minimize the individual financial burden," Berlin said.

Along with the fare increase, Berlin has recommended a transit levy of 10 cents per $1,000 of assessed property valuation. That assessment is expected to produce $59,235 in additional transit operating revenues.

At a public hearing earlier this month, the council indicated it would approve a 10-cent fare hike for the remainder of this fiscal year but it informally split 3-3 over increasing fares to 50 cents effective July 1. Councilor Glenn Roberts said he was undecided on the issue, although he spoke in favor of the 50-cent fare at a previous council budget meeting.

A council majority also indicated support for a transit property tax levy but no specific amount was discussed.

Berlin said the proposed levy "would reduce the transit system's reliance on revenue sharing for departmental operations and provide a base of property tax support for a service which is deemed to be of general benefit to the community," he said.

EVEN IF the council approves the 35-cent fares and the 10-cent transit levy, the city will have to budget $329,101 of its federal revenue sharing funds to subsidize transit service, Berlin said. But city officials had projected that $378,000 in revenue sharing funds would be necessary for operating the transit system in fiscal 1981.

Berlin notes that property taxes have increased at a rate considerably less than the inflation rate while the cost of services such as transit have increased at a considerably higher rate.

And, he says, "The $12 charge for the monthly pass is a reasonable figure because the state currently is subsidizing 50 percent of the cost of the pass for a large number of riders who are state employees. And presently, Coralville is charging $12 for the pass."

But Berlin noted that the $12 monthly pass for persons who do not receive the 50-percent state subsidy "would not be appreciably better" than paying on a per-ride basis.

BASED ON the figures in Berlin's memo, riders with passes use them an average of 35.9 times per month. At 35 cents per ride, this amounts to $12.56 per rider.

Berlin said a high percentage of monthly pass users in Iowa City receive the state subsidy.

In his memo Berlin said, "The use of passes is of benefit to the transit system because the loading of passengers is expedited; passes reduce accounting procedures, money is received in advance, there is no necessity to issue transfers and passes encourage Saturday ridership."

Noting that on Saturdays there is "a great deal of excess capacity in the transit system," Berlin has recommended retaining 25-cent bus fares on Saturdays "to provide an attractive alternative to the auto."

Berlin has also recommended that the council retain its special off-peak fare reduction for schools and shoppers, but he recommends this special fare be increased to 25 cents from its current 15 cents.

City's budget outlook said 'more favorable'

By ROD BOSHART
Staff Writer

With the prospects for the final fiscal 1981 budget brighter than originally projected, the Iowa City Council may be able to fund some areas that it has tentatively marked for budget cuts.

In a budget update to the council Friday, City Manager Neal Berlin said the status of the city's collective bargaining and several unanticipated budget changes by the council have created "a slightly more favorable" 1981 budget outlook.

"Originally it was estimated that revenue and expenditure changes of approximately $1.6 million would be required to provide a balanced general fund," Berlin said. But, noting that the city's collective bargaining contracts may be resolved at levels below amounts originally anticipated, and revisions by the council allowed unanticipated budget cuts, Berlin said the amount now required to balance the general fund is somewhere between $1.1 million and $1.3 million.

"With these changes, there is an interim balance of $494,670 available in the general fund and $122,284 available in revenue sharing," Berlin said.

DUE TO this improved budget outlook, Berlin cited 10 possible areas in the departmental budgets where the council could replenish funds that were cut during its initial budget examination. The options Berlin notes are:

—Allocate an unspecified amount to the employee salary budget, which has tentatively been cut by $429,000 with the proposed elimination of 27 full-time positions.

—Place an additional $100,000 in the collective bargaining reserve until contract settlements for union employees have been reached and the final salary budget for management and non-union employees has been set.

—Increase the human services budget, which has been tentatively cut 26 percent.

—Increase the $22,500 allocation for the school crossing guards program by an unspecified amount.

—Add $5,000 to $10,000 to funding of the North Side street lighting project.

—Allocate $20,000 for senior citizen services formerly performed by the Johnson County Council on Aging, which ceased operations last week in a dispute over methods of reporting use of funds.

—Maintain the city's newspaper recycling service by allocating $35,242. The council tentatively agreed to cut this service June 30.

—Allocate $10,000 for street marking in the fall.

—Continue with the asphalt street resurfacing project at a cost of $75,000.

—Rebuild the Iowa Plate Glass building and its facilities for city departmental use at a cost of $200,000.

Israel opens embassy in Egypt

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — A nine-member Israeli delegation led by Charge d'Affaires Yosef Hadass arrived in Cairo Sunday to raise the Star of David atop the Jewish state's first embassy in the Arab world.

The flag will be hoisted over a two-story villa in the plush Dokki district this morning, thus opening a new era of relations between the two former Middle East antagonists.

Hadass, a Syrian-born career diplomat with a doctorate in international relations, led a nine-member team, made up of two diplomats and seven administrative personnel.

Before his departure from Tel Aviv, Hadass said the Israeli diplomats should work to forge a new relationship, based on daily contact between the Egyptian and Israeli peoples.

Strict security measures have been enforced around the embassy.

Chicago firefighters ignore back-to-work order

CHICAGO (UPI) — Striking firefighters, risking mass firings and a contempt of court citation that could put union leaders in jail, ignored back-to-work ultimatums Sunday from Mayor Jane Byrne and a Cook County circuit judge.

Judge John F. Hechinger, who issued a back-to-work order shortly after the strike began Thursday and has thrust himself into the role of negotiator, warned leaders of Firefighters Local 2 would face contempt citations if strikers failed to return to their jobs by 10 a.m.

No significant back-to-work movement occurred by deadline, and about 900 firefighters gathered on the Daley Center plaza in near zero temperatures to proclaim solidarity in the first firefighters strike against the city.

The union has claimed the walkout by its 4,300 members was nearing 100 percent participation.

Drunk driver slams car into Mardi Gras crowd

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — An apparently drunk driver crashed a stolen car through three barricades and into a crowd of hundreds of Mardi Gras parade spectators Sunday, injuring nine persons, including two police officers.

Anthony Moore, 28, was arrested in the French Quarter three blocks away. He was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and police said he might be charged with attempted murder.

Moore was drunk or "under the affects of something," police spokesman Don Joly said. He was caught by one of the injured officers.

Police Lt. Frank Hayward was less than a block away, one of dozens of officers nearby.

"The vehicle just barreled through the barricades, the steel cables," said Hayward. "It was a very heavy crowd on both sides of Canal (Street). There were at least 800 people in the area that he passed through, but luckily they were able to get out of the way."

Pakistan accuses India of siding with Soviets

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Pakistan, its irritation growing over what it considers the indifference of India to the Soviet invasion of neighboring Afghanistan, has denied charges it is helping Moslem rebels fighting Russian troops.

Official sources in the Pakistan capital of Islamabad said Pakistan does not see India adopting Pakistan's demand for a complete withdrawal of Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

Pakistan's Adviser on Foreign Affairs, Agha Shahi, expressed regret that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko "should have been allowed while still in India to accuse Pakistan of letting itself be turned into a seat of tension" and "a base for further upholding of aggression against Afghanistan."

Militant farmers plan change of tactics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Militant farmers, who used tractors to stop traffic in the nation's capital last winter, began their third annual visit to Washington Sunday with promises that things will be different this time.

The farmers, members of American Agriculture Movement, started arriving over the weekend. Some drove across the country in pickups and other vehicles — fueled by gasoline or pure alcohol — while others traveled by plane.

Woman gets deferred judgement

years Friday.

According to Johnson County District Court Judge Robert Osmundson's order, Kimberly M. Worrell, of 1324 Ridgeview Drive, must report to area probation officials until Jan. 31, 1982.

Worrell entered a guilty plea on Jan. 17 to a charge accusing her of taking a stethoscope and a blood flow detector from the hospitals on Nov. 2, 1979, court records state. A complaint filed by Campus Security Detective Richard Gordon valued the items at over $500.

ALSO IN district court Friday, Osmundson sentenced a Rock Island, Ill., woman to a two-year prison term after a Jan. 16 jury verdict found her guilty of second-degree theft.

Rosa M. Wilson, 23, was arrested on Oct. 21, 1979 along with another Rock Island, Ill., woman, when the vehicle they were riding in was stopped by Iowa City police for failing to display license plates. The two were charged when authorities found articles of clothing in the vehicle that had been reported stolen earlier, according to court records.

Wilson was arrested with 25-year-old Gloria Anders. On Feb. 8, Osmundson granted Anders a five-year suspended sentence and placed her on probation for three years, court records indicate.

In support of his decision to grant Anders a suspended sentence, Osmundson pointed out that the defendant was both the mother of two children and currently pregnant.

Cut phone wire causes blackout

A cut telephone wire was the culprit in a chain of events that resulted in a 20-minute power outage Friday morning for "practically everything" at the UI, said Marshall Stewart, manager of the UI Power Plant.

Stewart said the plant was just about the only area unaffected by the outage, which occurred at approximately 11:30 a.m.

The UI Hospitals systems were maintained by emergency generators, according to Tom Walsh, a spokesman for Hospitals Information Services.

The telephone line, which controls a monitoring system linking the Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Co. and the UI Power Plant, was cut during routine repairs on Burlington Street, said Joan Bix, business office supervisor for Northwestern Bell in Iowa City.

Repairs were made in about two hours, she said.

T.T. Hoogerwerf, Iowa-Illinois district manager, said the cut wire tripped Iowa-Illinois' power supply to the UI. The UI generates part of its own power, but the remainder is purchased from Iowa-Illinois, he said.

The power supply was cut at 11:35 a.m.

for two minutes and at 11:45 a.m. for an additional two minutes. The UI was the only Iowa City area affected, Hoogerwerf said.

Although the power was cut for only a total of four minutes, Hoogerwerf said, additional time is needed to re-activate the system. "Once the system shuts down we can't restore power instantly," he said. "The load must be restored gradually."

"This was a freak occurrence. It's something that we expect not to happen again."

Stoner's debate challenges 'silly'

By STEPHEN HEDGES
Staff Writer

Challenges from Republican senatorial candidate Tom Stoner to debate Republican opponent and 4th District Rep. Charles Grassley are "childish" and "silly," Grassley campaign manager Robert Bradsell said Sunday.

In Iowa City for the last of six state-wide campaign organizational meetings, Bradsell said Stoner's debate challenges have been amateurish and have not followed regular candidate debate protocol.

"Frankly, I credited Tom Stoner with a little more knowledge on these kinds of things," Bradsell said in a press conference. "This just isn't the way it is done."

Stoner, a Des Moines broadcasting millionaire, has been challenging Grassley to debate since last June, when Stoner announced his candidacy. The winner of the June 3 Republican primary will face Democratic incumbent John Culver in the November elections.

STONER'S latest challenge is a series of "Saturday Night Live" debates, which would be held in two counties in each of Iowa's six congressional districts. Grassley contends his schedule in Congress will not allow any debating before the March 28 candidate filing deadline, but Stoner has already accepted debate invitations.

Sunday Stoner said he is considering a series of "empty chair debates" if Grassley fails to accept the "Saturday Night Live" proposal.

Bradsell said that the Grassley campaign first received an official letter proposing a debate from Stoner.

"We're not about to accept challenges based on what we read in the papers," he said. "We think he (Stoner) is a little silly to come out of the precinct caucuses and propose debates — the voters just aren't ready for another election this quickly. Chuck has repeatedly said he will debate his opponents, and they (the Stoner debate proposals) would mean canceling an awful lot of previously held commitments."

The UI College Republicans has proposed a debate between Grassley and Stoner tentatively scheduled for early April. Last week Stoner accepted the debate invitation, but Grassley has yet to indicate whether he will appear.

Steffen says SWEEP diverse

By KENDRA GLASSGOW
Staff Writer

Julia Steffen, leader of the "Students With Energy, Experience and Potential" slate vying for seats on the UI Student Senate, says her group represents not only diversity, but experience in student government.

The SWEEP slate supports Steffen for senate president and Brad Knott for vice president. If elected, they will appoint Bill Farrell secretary-treasurer. Steffen, currently vice president for Knott said he wants to enclose the walls of the Wheel Room and upgrade the stereo system there. "We need to create more of a social atmosphere so that the university is going to make money on the Wheel Room," he said.

The new atmosphere, Knott said, could be created by "bringing in some plants and inviting in some entertainment, — local talent doesn't get a chance to come down here." He said he believes students should be allowed to carry beer from the Wheel Room to the Union game room.

whether or not to completely abolish the parietal rule," Steffen said.

THE SENATE'S committee system, she said, needs to be changed to increase efficiency. "Committees weren't as active as they could have been," she said. "They need to report more often to the senate, and outdated committees need to be abolished." Steffen wants to organize a newsletter exchange so that student groups can discuss ideas and common problems.

To increase student interest, Steffen said she would "hold about two forums on each side of the river per semester." Senate meetings would be announced in The Daily Iowan "Postscripts" column.

Knott strongly supports the development of a variety of social and cultural events. These events, he said, are equally as vital to the UI as heavily-supported athletic events. He said he will work to promote "a wide and varied collection of viewpoints and attitudes at the UI."

FOR EXAMPLE, he suggests holding a spring dance at the UI and expanding the spring Riverfest, and advocates stronger support for cultural events and the UI Lecture Committee. "I want to make sure that if money continues to be increasingly tight, that these programs won't get slighted," Knott said.

"I want to see that every student gets tickets to athletic events, too," he added. "Students have been paying mandatory fees and not getting their tickets. The guest policy would have to go in times of stress."

Farrell, who hopes to be re-elected to one of the off-campus senate seats, has served on the senate since last August. He is member of the committees on budgeting and student health insurance.

FARRELL'S pet senate project is renovating the Student Health Insurance policy. Several changes in the policy already have been made, he said.

"I'd like to see students' needs coordinated with the most efficient policy possible," he said. "And I'd like to see the Student Senate take an active role in advertising that policy."

Another priority for Farrell is assuring suitable relocation of the three daycare centers that will be moved so that a new Law Center can be built in Varsity Heights. He said he hopes "to see that daycares get suitable relocation sites and some sort of guarantee of permanence from the university."

The senate election will be held Feb. 28. The other SWEEP candidates are: Lynn Black, Marty Meshek, Dave Metille and Pam Sempel for residence hall seats; John Bowlsby for the family housing seat; Charisse Myers for the greek seat; Kathleen Uehling, Carl Wiederaenders, and Cris Schoon for at-large seats; and Melvin Caldwell, Joe Fredericks, Brad Johnson, John Lanaghan, Dawn Whitney, Jeff Reist, Jody Shaffer, Jim Soukup and Barb Timmerman for off-campus seats.

Student elections

senate, was elected as a residence halls senator in March 1978. A junior, Steffen has also served as secretary-treasurer.

Knott serves as secretary-treasurer for the senate. He won a seat on the senate in April 1979 by petitioning to fill an off-campus vacancy. He is co-chairman of the senate's State Relations Committee, which lobbies the Iowa Legislature for appropriations.

ACCORDING TO Steffen, seven of the SWEEP candidates "have served for more than two weeks on Student Senate, and most of the seven have served at least one full term."

There is also great diversity among the candidates, she said, for the slate includes UI residence hall assistants, a Right to Life member, a business fraternity president and a law student. "SWEEP has the experience that is necessary to work the mechanics of Student Senate, combined with a variety of new faces who bring new ideas with them," Steffen said.

The top priority for the SWEEP slate is renovation of the Union. The platform also calls for improving mass transit throughout Iowa City, supporting stronger social and cultural events and continuing work on the Student Health Insurance policy.

STEFFEN SAID she wants "to make the Wheel Room more competitive with downtown Iowa City. 'I'd like to get some remodeling under way, including expanding the roominess of the Wheel Room.' Steffen wants to give the Wheel Room a pub-like atmosphere.

EDITOR WANTED

The Board of Student Publications, Inc. and the publisher of the Daily Iowan will soon interview candidates for the editor of the Daily Iowan to serve in the following year. This position will require a person with ability, dedication, and responsibility to assume editorial control of a daily newspaper with a circulation of more than 17,000 in the university community. The applicants must be either graduate or undergraduate students currently enrolled in a degree program at the University of Iowa. The Board will weigh heavily the following evidence of qualifications: scholarship, pertinent training and experience in editing and news writing (including substantial experience on the Daily Iowan or another daily newspaper), proven ability to organize, lead and inspire a staff engaged in creative editorial activity and other factors.

Applications will be considered only for the full year term from June 1, 1980 to May 31, 1981

(No applications will be accepted after 4 pm February 22, 1980)

Cambodia: poison gas used

PEKING (UPI) — Cambodian guerrillas are gathering evidence to present to the United Nations that Vietnam is using poison gas and chemicals in the war against them, killing 100 people a day, the Cambodian ambassador in Peking said Sunday.

"The Vietnamese fire poison gas with 80mm and 105mm artillery shells," Ambassador Pich Cheang said in an interview. "The gas is visible and makes a white-colored cloud. People who are close to it bleed from the mouth and nose. They die almost immediately. Others who are farther away die more slowly."

Pich Cheang represents the Cambodian regime formerly headed by Premier Pol Pot, which was driven from power when Vietnamese troops took over Cambodia in January 1979 and has since waged a guerrilla war.

THE AMBASSADOR, who returned recently from a six-week visit to Cambodian forces operating near the Thai border, said Vietnamese aircraft also spray a toxic chemical to attack people in parts of Cambodia they do not control.

"The toxic chemical is a yellow-colored powder sprayed from planes. They put it down anywhere, plains, forests or villages."

"It is not aimed at crops. It is aimed at people. In Cambodia's dry season, the effect is lasting, because these chemicals stay on the leaves of trees. In rainy seasons, they would be washed away."

"People who come in contact with the yellow powder suffer skin burns. They get dizzy and vomit. If they are around when it comes down they die pretty quickly. If they are some distance away they can be saved."

Science embargo

Although President Carter's determination to boycott the Moscow Olympics is the most publicized aspect of the new foreign policy towards the Soviet Union, it is not the most significant disruption in U.S.-Soviet exchanges. In the February issue of Science magazine, Nicholas Wade discusses the effects of Carter's policy on scientific cooperation between the two nations.

Wade cites the example of a $10 million piece of equipment, the MHD channel, which was built specifically to be tested at a facility near Moscow. The channel, which is used to contain ionized gases from a rocket engine, should have been transferred to Moscow on Jan. 20. Now it will sit at a plant in Pennsylvania, pending the development of a new test facility or a new foreign policy.

The fate of the MHD channel is a small, concrete result of Carter's decision — the kind of result that often gets lost in broader statements of the national interest. There will be other sacrifices, small but concrete, if the scientific community accepts Carter's direction. At this point no one in the Carter administration is calculating the losses.

It has taken many years to open channels of communication between Soviet scientists and our own. If the new isolationist policies remain in effect for long, the United States will be severing contact with a superpower we call "a closed society." As Wade suggests, we may be the ones who suffer the most. The exchange agreements between U.S. and Soviet scientists offer us access to information which otherwise would be difficult to obtain. Because of the relatively free flow of information from the United States, the Soviet Union is less dependent on the scientific exchange agreements between the two countries.

The problem with Carter's brand of crisis politics is that it focuses the public's attention on a few selected consequences of the actions he takes. By chilling our relations with Russia he hopes to effect the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan. Whether or not he succeeds, the rupture in U.S.-Soviet scientific exchanges will produce consequences of its own.

Defending the national interest in this way ignores the fact that the national interest is a jigsaw puzzle. Holding one piece tightly while misplacing the others is shortsighted policy. Carter has tried to obscure the consequences of his Cold War strategies by asking the American people to make sacrifices, as if the sacrifices amounted to no more than personal discomfort.

Although it is difficult for anyone to predict the long-range results of the present foreign policy package directed against the Soviets, there are people in this society who have special knowledge of some of the problems it could cause. They should be speaking out, not in their own interest, but in the interest of the public.

Book banning

The Kanawha, Iowa, Board of Education voted last week to permanently remove John Steinbeck's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel The Grapes of Wrath from two sophomore English class reading lists. Two weeks ago, following a parent's complaint about using the book, Superintendent Leroy Schornhorst ordered the school's 30 copies of the book confiscated until the board decided the issue.

School board President Wayne Rietema said, "We do not intend to become a censoring committee," yet he called upon the board to ban the novel from required reading lists. Only one member of the board has read the entire novel.

The Grapes of Wrath, published in 1939, is the story of poor Oklahomans who are uprooted from their homes during the 1930s. Steinbeck chose to use the common language in the novel to portray realistically the struggles of the main characters. Indictments that the book "takes the Lord's name in vain dozens of times" carry little weight given the book's lasting importance to American literature.

Teacher Diane Kaffe, who wanted to use the book in her class to supplement an English text, said using The Grapes of Wrath would not only expose her students to great literature, but would also teach them about history and current issues.

Iowans proudly point out that their state has one of the highest literacy rates in the country. Yet, the Kanawha board members would rather pretend concern for their students by censoring Steinbeck's work from required reading lists than show true concern by advocating the study of great books in American literature.

City finances

For the past few years the Iowa legislature has been making it increasingly difficult for cities to raise tax revenues.

First, the legislature imposed a percentage limitation on the annual increase in municipal budgets. For several years the limit was about 7 percent; during those same years the annual rate of inflation was moving toward 10 percent — and beyond.

This year, the legislature has imposed a percentage limitation on the increase in assessed valuation of residential, agricultural and commercial property. That means that although market values might increase 11 percent, for example, the action imposed by the state would limit the increase in property assessment for taxation purposes to 6 percent. The following year, the limit will be 4 percent.

In addition to the above measures, there has been in effect for years a maximum rate at which cities can tax; some cities — such as Iowa City — already are taxing at the limit of $8.10 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

With inflation running in two figures and with the kinds of fiscal restraints being imposed by the legislature, it is ridiculous to think that cities are going to be able to continue to provide satisfactory public services. For those cities already taxing at the legal limit and finding themselves unable to raise tax revenues to match inflation, harder times are ahead.

'East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet'?

Alexander Solzhenitsyn has the mark of suffering on him, which sanctifies and should be honored. He may also be a literary genius (I cannot judge his claims there.) But as a political thinker he is the loopest specimen still loose in our journals.

The ripest report from his nut farm

Outrider Garry Wills

runs in the current Time. There's one test of political sanity even for last-ditch defenders of the CIA's spookiest character, James Angleton. The test is this: Will you admit, finally, that the Russians and the Chinese are at odds?

We fought our first disastrous modern war, in Korea, on the assumption that such a split could never occur — and, in the process, we slowed its occurrence.

At length the truth seeped into even the cold warrior's cranium, that least permeable substance — so that Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger (of all people) exploited, late in the game, what was always exploitable, the clash of Chinese and Russian interests.

THIS HARD-WON gain for realism is the first thing Solzhenitsyn would have us give up. Up there among his many indictments of the West is this infamy: "In expectation of World War III the West again seeks cover, and finds Communist China as an ally!"

For Solzhenitsyn, communism is a mystical entity, always the same, wherever encountered, always unredeemable. It is the same in Cuba, in Yugoslavia, in China, and perhaps in America. The only morally permissible response is total opposition. No alliance with Communist China (even when that weakens Communist Russia) is allowed. Total war with all manifestations of communism must be uniform and automatic.

I HAVE HEARD this monomaniacal raving in other contexts, where I could judge its silliness. As a Catholic, I first met it in anti-Catholic tirades (an old tradition in America, since much of our colonial culture and revolutionary effort was based on anti-Catholicism.) Anti-Catholics thought that the church was always the same, Irish or Spanish, Italian or Polish. After all, the pope made a total claim on man's ascent to the most important truths, and mobilized all energies to ecclesiastical goals.

A good case could be made, on paper, for this vision of a monolithic church. But insiders could only laugh, even in the "old days" when there was a great deal of Catholic discipline. The paper monster dissolved, on a view from inside, into competing peoples to fallible sorts not noble enough to be monstrous in their self-abnegation.

SOLZHENITSYN IS a fundamentalist who believes not only in the devil, but in the embodiment of diabolic drives in whole peoples. His hysterical rhetoric of fascination and exorcism takes him outside the range of rational thinking on politics: "There is no help to be found in the illusion that certain countries possess an immunity to communism. Any country that is free today can be reduced to prostration and complete submission." There you have it, the old '50s fear that communists were going to take over any free country, since none is immune. Look under your bed. The communists are there.

This is a cry from Salem — a cry of angry petition to be diabolically raped. Solzhenitsyn first deprives the West of allies like China, then calls the West "spiritually impotent", then bids the West go fight an invincible Force. This is not talk for the pages of political journalists. These are scribbles from a spiritual loony bin.

Letters: Pencil sharpeners bring joy; lax campus security brings losses

Music

To the editor:

As a student at the School of Music, I would like to thank the General Services department for finally getting it together. They have realized that we, as students, use pencils, and that you cannot use pencils without pencil sharpeners. I would like to thank them for finally placing Easy-To-Get-To-Pencil-Sharpener in the halls, thereby adding a little excitement in our drab, "dull" lives.

Security

To the editor:

As one of the scientists whose work has been affected by the most recent addition to the two-year series of thefts of equipment from UI research laboratories, I feel entitled to offer some other buildings from which equipment is being stolen. Research laboratories, which also house faculty offices, are open during working hours, and anyone can walk in and case the joint. Medical centers in high-crime areas have armed guards at the doors 24 hours a day, but we don't — a fact for which I'm glad, all things considered. After-hours and on weekends (which is when the thefts that I know about occurred), the labs are supposed to be locked, and most of the time they are. But on our floor alone, I estimate that there are about 60 people working, and once in awhile one of them will forget, or thinking that someone else is still inside, leave the door unlocked.

(2) Even though the labs are in fact locked regularly, we still have a problem: every person with a legitimate need to enter the laboratories after-hours has a key. This includes undergraduate students who may need to be in the lab for special projects or part-time jobs. All too often, these keys are not returned when the student in question leaves. The UI has no way of enforcing the return of these keys, and so we have a lot of stray keys around.

(3) Realizing the security risk posed by the many keys in circulation, our department replaced all the locks to its research labs just last summer at a cost of $700.

(4) The morning after the theft described in your article, Dec. 30, 1979, we found two fire escape doors propped open — one leading from our floor to a stairwell, the other at the bottom of the stairwell leading outside. In all likelihood, therefore, the thieves did not walk in through a regular entrance to a lab carelessly left unlocked by one of the workers, nor did they get in by using a key they might have obtained in some way, but through the fire escape doors which had evidently been opened earlier in the day, either by one of the thieves themselves or by a confederate. These particular doors are not used by any one of us as exits.

The shocking fact, therefore, is that these fire doors were open all night, and what we optimistically refer to as Campus Security didn't know about it! After two years of unsolved thefts, would it not be reasonable for them to check that sort of thing? To blame the thefts on carelessness on the part of researchers is one easy way out, but it won't wash. I have worked in the Basic Sciences Building since it was built, and I go back frequently at night and on weekends because of the requirements of my research. At no time on all those trips back to the lab have I encountered a security officer in or anywhere near the building — except in the parking lot, ticketing cars. I think we have a right to question the priorities of a security department that patrols parking meters more aggressively than buildings containing thousands of dollars worth of equipment.

Military

To the editor:

With the anti-draft issue becoming a major political issue, our elected representatives may do well to consider alternatives to conscription as a means of upgrading our defense capabilities.

The most obvious means by which our military could be strengthened would be the reinstatement of the GI Bill. Two years of free education at a state college including tuition, books and a sizeable allotment for living expenses would be a valuable lure for recruitment.

For those who cannot or will not serve in the military, some form of federal aid could be made available to those who are willing to work two years in a government related job at minimum wage. Whether it be in the form of a grant or a loan, this money would be given to those who had prior government service with some exceptions being made for the handicapped or disabled.

The current practice of giving away money to prospective college students who have no other claim to it than a low income or a disadvantaged, ethnic background should be re-evaluated. This would involve a massive overhaul of the present system so that no one could get anything out of our government without first putting something into it.

The late John F. Kennedy once said, "Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country."

It would seem that the former president was saying that the government owed no one a living. Those who are unwilling to support the necessary functions of the government should not reap the benefits it provides.

Granted, it may involve a major shake-up of the entire system for these changes to be effected. Scores of politicians, sociologists, concerned citizens and liberal military thinkers will have to work together to bring this about. It may, however, be necessary for its own survival that the military adapt to meet the needs of a free America.

Birthing rooms offer mothers homelike setting for delivery

By LIZ ISHAM
Staff Writer

Expectant mothers who shy away from a hospital delivery because they feel the traditional atmosphere is impersonal, cold or unfeeling now may choose to use the UI Hospitals birthing rooms.

The three birthing rooms, which were opened Saturday, are designed to offer the patient and her family or friends the comfort of a homelike setting within steps of high-level emergency equipment. Natural childbirth methods are emphasized in a setting in which a woman can labor and deliver her baby in the same room, according to Dr. Frank Zlatnik, chief of obstetrics services.

Decorated to look like bedrooms, the new rooms feature beds with colorful spreads and a wicker bassinet for the baby. The room includes a table, two chairs, television and radio for the comfort of the mother and the two other people allowed to stay with her.

THE ROOMS are part of a new unit that also includes five labor rooms, three traditional delivery rooms, a recovery room and a maternal-fetal intensive care area. Part of a $1.5 million project that included the construction of a renal dialysis facility, the unit had been slated for completion last fall. Because of construction delays the unit was not opened until Saturday.

"The birth of a child can be a natural, trouble-free experience or can involve a variety of complications—some serious enough to threaten the lives of both mother and child," Zlatnik said. "Our new unit is set up to address this entire range of childbirth situations."

Zlatnik said the birthing rooms are designed for the use by a patient who probably will not experience complications in childbirth.

Top: Three birthing rooms were put into use Saturday for expectant mothers at the UI Hospitals. The birthing rooms feature an oak, break-away bed, a colorful rug, a wicker bassinet, two chairs, plants, a television and radio. The birthing room provides a more home-like, comfortable atmosphere for the mother than the conventional delivery room, bottom, according to Dr. Frank Zlatnik, chief of obstetric services.

Patients will be assigned to the rooms on a first-come, first-served basis.

WOMEN who are expected to encounter complications in delivery will be assigned to more traditional labor and delivery rooms, he said.

"We hope that about half our patients can have this experience," Zlatnik said. Last year 3,000 babies were delivered at the UI Hospitals, which attracts patients from all over the state.

Costs for using the birthing rooms are comparable to those for using the more traditional labor and delivery rooms, he said.

The mother and child will stay in the birthing room two to six hours following delivery. The mother then will be moved to another room on the hospitals' maternity floor. Zlatnik said. The baby will be assigned to the nursery, but may be brought to the mother's room as frequently as the mother wishes, he added.

A $400,000 project, to be funded with hospital revenues, will transform the old labor and delivery area into a "well-baby" unit by December, according to Mark Mathis, director of the hospitals' environmental engineering services.

Dorms offer strict quiet-hours floors

By WENDY BARR
Staff Writer

Dormitory housing contracts mailed to residents next week will include an option for living on floors where quiet hours will be strictly enforced, according to Mitchel Livingston, director of UI Residence Services.

Livingston said students wishing to live on "quiet lifestyle" floors next year must agree to special terms for which any violation of quiet hours will be a violation of the housing contract. Students with repeated violations may be transferred to another floor, he said.

Three or four floors within the dormitory system will be set aside for the new program. Contract agreements for living on quiet lifestyle floors require that noise not go beyond an individual's room between 7 p.m. and 10 a.m. every day, said Carol Epling, coordinator of student development for Residence Services.

THE ENTIRE dormitory system has quiet hours now, Epling said, but "noise" was never so "clearly defined."

After the first violation, a student must speak with the head resident of the dormitory, Epling said. If found not to be living up to the guidelines, the student will be given a disciplinary warning. "Students who continue to violate will be asked to move to another floor. If they do not want to move, a formal disciplinary hearing will be held," Epling said.

Kim Cox, president of the Associated Residence Halls, said she participated in an exchange with Western Illinois University, which has a successful quiet lifestyle program. At that school, she said, students are on waiting lists to be assigned to quiet floors. "ARH unanimously approves, supports and endorses this option," Cox said.

LIVINGSTON and Epling say they are optimistic about providing the option. "The only problem would be if we don't have enough students to fill the space set aside," Epling said. "In that case we would have to re-evaluate and condense the program."

"We want to experiment now, and we will allow the program to grow in direct proportion with demand," Livingston said. "In the future we could see entire lifestyle dorms."

Levin's 'Deathtrap' plays despite flaws

By JUDITH GREEN
Staff Writer

"Deathtrap. A thriller in two acts. One set, five characters. A juicy murder in Act 1, unexpected developments in Act 2. Sound construction, good dialogue, laughs in the right places. Highly commercial."

—Deathtrap's opening lines

The problem with Deathtrap, which played Friday evening to a sold-out Hancher house, is that playwright Ira Levin knows very well that the script is flawed — tells us so quite candidly, in fact — yet lets it merrily run its course without doing one blessed thing about it. He presumes, arrogantly, that we, having been let in on the secret, will not only forgive his flagrant cop-out but even become willing accomplices to it.

Deathtrap is a lightweight thriller about a once-famous playwright of thrillers, Sidney Bruhl (Donald Barton), who receives the manuscript of a play called Deathtrap by a former student, Clifford Anderson (Michael McBride). The play is so good that Sidney embarks on a scheme to steal it — with or without its writer's consent — to make a professional comeback. Since the program pleads, "We hope Deathtrap holds a few surprises for you and if it does, that you'll help us keep them a surprise for future audiences," I'll divulge no more of the plot, not even to say who, if anyone, murders whom.

THE LINES quoted above are Sidney's assessment of Clifford's play; Levin's play is all these things, too — we know some of it from the program, the rest from the flavor of the first five minutes of dialogue.

But "Act 2 is liable to be a letdown," as Clifford all too aptly observes after intermission. Not only does more of the fun and suspense occur in Act 1, but much of what there is in Act 2 is inferior, tinged with an uglier humor and a whole lot more gore. "The problem was," says Clifford-Levin, "I had this terrific first act, and I couldn't think of a second act. Very frustrating."

Levin is so all-fired perceptive about his script that he can't see the forest for the trees. The real challenge would have been to twist the ending in such a way that all those predictions would have come absolutely true yet still surprised the socks off the audience. Instead we were shocked — rather cheaply and superficially, with eerie lighting and two needlessly brutal peripeteia — but deep down inside, was anyone really astonished? Tacking on a gratuitous and meaningless final scene — for the sake of symmetry, as Clifford explains — further spoiled the end.

STILL, the play, for all of the first act and enough of the second to make us regret its weaknesses, is a terrific piece of theater, wickedly funny, tricks hidden neatly up its sleeve. It's full of snappy one-liners like "Nothing recedes like success," and its show business gibes are surgically accurate: Clifford's play is so good, says Sidney, that "a gifted director couldn't even hurt it"; and when his wife suggests that he produce Deathtrap instead of steal it, he replies, "Darling, I may be devious and underhanded enough to be a successful murderer, but not, I think, a Broadway producer."

The production, as we have come to expect from Tom Mallow (who toured Eubie!, Da and Chapter Two this season), was top-notch — a beautiful colonial farmhouse set with a beamed ceiling and an air of expensive antique clutter, wonderful natural-looking lighting coming through its skylight and French doors.

The acting was a little lackluster. Barton and McBride seemed stagey and artificial despite some fine individual moments. They chose not to be miked, which is laudable, except that neither knows the difference between projecting and bellowing. Patricia Guinan was nondescript and colorless as Sidney's wife.

MARIAN BAER stole the show, actually, as Helga ten Dorp, a Dutch psychic who keeps stumbling into Sidney's plot — short and dumpy, dressed in a marvelously frowzy orange sweater, magenta skirt and sensible shoes.

Hancher's curtains refused to rise on one scene, adding some extra suspense to the production. The cause, I'm told, was a freak air pressure accident.

Blake's work presented in slide-lecture seminar

By JUDITH GREEN
Staff Writer

I strove to seize the inmost Form
With ardor fierce & hands of flame.
— William Blake

Alfred Kazin called William Blake (1757-1827) "one of the most prophetic and gifted rebels in the history of Western man." He was a poet and philosopher, painter and engraver, bookmaker and bookseller, essayist and critic. Regrettably, only specialists today know more of his poetry than "The Lamb" and "The Tyger"; and the art world has long regarded his paintings, prints and drawings — over 2,000 in all — as quaintly primitive and reactionary.

In the spring of 1978, the Tate Gallery in London put together an exhibition of Blake's work that brought, for the first time, pieces from private and museum collections in Australia and the United States to supplement the Tate's own splendid collection. This afternoon, two distinguished Blake scholars, John Grant of the UI English Department, and his wife, Mary Lynn Johnson, will discuss Blake the artist and show as many of their Tate slides as they can include in an hour.

THE GRANTS are the editors of the new Norton Critical Edition of Blake's Poetry and Designs, which includes authoritative texts and drafts, Blake's criticism and related prose, and his illuminations in color and monochrome. Johnson is the co-author (with Brian Wilkie) of Blake's Four Zoas: The Design of a Dream. Grant edited Discussions of William Blake, a volume of criticism, and co-edited (with David Erdman) Blake's Visionary Forms Dramatic. He is currently one of four editors preparing a three-volume (two of plates and one of commentary) edition of Blake's 537 watercolor designs to accompany Edward Young's 1745 mystic poem "Night Thoughts."

The Tate exhibit, said the Grants, succeeded in representing Blake's work without overwhelming the viewer in material. About 300 pieces were selected to show the range of his vision and technique; the show included paintings, prints and drawings, early and late works. The exhibit catalogue was written by art historian and Blake specialist Martin Butlin.

BLAKE, trained as a reproductive engraver (apprenticed at 15 to James Basire) and a painting student for several years at the Royal Academy, was a sophisticated artist who could, had he chosen, have made a conventional career for himself. He deliberately turned his back, however, on the heavy academic style favored by critics and the public, working instead in more delicate media — watercolors, line drawings, engravings — with a "rural pen" that freed him to deal with abstractions and subjective problems.

His work emphasizes outline at the expense of modeling; his palette is, by and large, subtle, restrained and translucent, though some pieces are very boldly executed. He disliked chiaroscuro, which he considered a murky technique, and the Venetian school's blurred outlines and stress on color and light, which he thought superficial and dishonest. He admired Michelangelo and Raphael for their emotional and technical integrity; but, oddly enough, he could not see beyond the dark surface of Rembrandt's paintings and thought him as murky as Caravaggio.

HE DISAPPROVED, in other words, of every development in art that we consider progressive. As Kazin says, "Blake's isolation may be likened to that of the revolutionary who sits in his grubby room writing manifestos against a society that pays him no attention, with footnotes against other revolutionaries who think him mad."

He was primarily an illustrator. "Everything of his pictorial work is at least remotely connected with a text," Johnson said.

The Grants' slide-lecture, jointly sponsored by the 19th Century Society and the English Department, is at 3:30 p.m. in 304 EPB.

California gets sunny respite

By United Press International

Sunshine Sunday splashed across Southern California, deluged with more than five inches of rain that caused widespread flooding and forced hundreds of residents to flee their homes, but forecasters warned it was the calm before yet another storm.

Further east, relief was in sight in the flood-ravaged Phoenix, Ariz., area, where the latest storm dropped only about one-third of an inch of rain. The forecast called for only a few more rain showers, and some of the estimated 2,000 evacuees were returning to their homes.

At least seven deaths, five in California, resulted from the onslaught of storms that have swept in from the Pacific and east into the Arizona desert.

Bush wins big in Puerto Rico, takes lead in GOP delegate race

By United Press International

George Bush became the official Republican front-runner Sunday when he defeated Senate GOP leader Howard Baker in the Puerto Rican primary and picked up all 14 of the commonwealth's national convention delegates.

The only other Republican delegates chosen so far are 19 from Arkansas and two of those were for Bush, the former ambassador to the United Nations.

So the delegate count now stands: Bush, 16; former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, seven; Baker, four; former Texas Gov. John Connally, one, and five uncommitted. Two of the five uncommitted lean toward Baker.

Bush claimed victory when one-third of the votes had been tabulated and he held a 2-1 lead over Baker, who shortly afterward conceded defeat.

With 68 percent of the vote in, Bush had 89,089 votes or 62 percent, to Baker's 50,806 votes or 36 percent.

FIVE OTHER Republicans were on the ballot, but none tabulated more than 2 percent of the vote.

Reagan was not on the ballot, and later told reporters in New Hampshire the results were "expected" and didn't surprise him.

"Obviously, Bush has won," said Baker campaign manager Antonio Monroig, congratulating the candidate's son, Jeb Bush, who spent months in Puerto Rico organizing the campaign, and other Bush workers.

But Monroig said Baker's second-place finish was encouraging because it was much better than his 13 percent showing in the Iowa caucuses.

In a statement issued in Washington, Bush said: "I have stressed that mine is a national campaign, not a regional effort, and the results today support that. In addition, the 14 delegates that this victory provides us at the national convention is very significant."

Bush said he was "delighted" with the results, which he said would give him momentum for New Hampshire Feb. 26.

WITH THE Puerto Rican results, Bush, who likes to note he started the 1980 campaign as an "asterisk" with little name recognition, became the official Republican front-runner.

Puerto Rico, like California, has a winner-take-all system, so the winner of the primary wins all 14 commonwealth delegates to the GOP convention next July in Detroit.

I.C. man charged with terrorism

By KEVIN WYMORE
Staff Writer

A Sunday morning ordeal-at-gunpoint for an Iowa City woman has resulted in terrorism charges against a man who reportedly is her ex-boyfriend, police said.

Charged in the incident, which began at approximately 11 a.m. on and near the UI campus, is Benjamin W. Hewat, 25, of 621 S. Dodge St. He was being held Sunday night in the Johnson County Jail pending arraignment. Police said the man broke into the UI building housing the art studio where the woman had been working, then forced her to accompany him to an Iowa City restaurant.

While the two were at the restaurant, a friend of the woman's recognized that she needed help and called Iowa City police, according to Sgt. David Harris. Apparently because of the number of people at the restaurant, the woman was not compelled to leave the restaurant, and the man fled, Harris said.

HARRIS said Hewat was arrested about 45 minutes later when an Iowa state patrolman and an Iowa City police officer found him hiding in a restroom in East Hall.

Police said the incident began when Hewat allegedly crawled through an unlocked window in the old Music Building on Jefferson and Linn Streets, where the woman was at work in an art studio.

The building now houses about 15 to 20 art studios, Harris said.

The man, wielding a pellet-gun type handgun, then confronted the woman, who had been alone in the building, Harris said.

After a period of time, Hewat allegedly forced the woman to go with him to the Hamburg Inn, 214 N. Linn St., about two blocks from the art studio, Harris said.

THE MAN had threatened suicide and displayed a handgun, according to the complaint telephoned from the restaurant at about 11:39 a.m.

The terrorism charge stems from the entire incident, which lasted about 30 minutes, Harris said.

Iowa Code Section 708.6 defines terrorism in part as an act with "intent to injure or provoke fear or anger in another," in which the subject "shoots, throws, launches, or discharges a dangerous weapon at or into any building...occupied by another person, and thereby places the occupant thereof in reasonable apprehension of serious injury," or "threatens to commit a forcible felony under circumstances raising a reasonable expectation that the threat will be carried out."

Harris said the gun was not fired during the incident.

HE SAID many details of the ordeal are not complete, as the woman was in a "distracted" condition following the incident, and the police questioned the woman as little as possible. He said the woman would be questioned further Monday.

Police would not comment on whether the woman had been assaulted.

UI Campus Security said the incident, even though it occurred on campus, was handled by Iowa City police because it involved firearms.

Under Iowa law, terrorism is felony with a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

cent level.
Berlin said the council probably won't make a final decision on the bus fares until Feb. 26 since a resolution was not included on this week's council agenda. But, he said the issue could be decided Tuesday if the council decides to amend its agenda at today's informal meeting.

BERLIN NOTED that the projections used to formulate the recommendations were based on the city receiving $200,000 in state transit operating assistance in fiscal 1981.

State Department of Transportation officials last week said that approximately $144,000 in transit assistance is targeted for Iowa City. Berlin said he is still hopeful that the city will be able to receive additional transit operating assistance.

Budget

BERLIN SAID this updated projection is designed to give the council an indication where it stands in its budgeting process. It is contingent on the council's approval of Berlin's transit recommendations and combination of the city's planning department with the Johnson County Regional Planning Commission.

The latter proposal includes an estimated appropriation of $45,000 for regional planning services and $7,000 for human services planning and a $15,000 reduction in the proposed budget for the city's Planning and Program Development Department.

It was also decided last week that Senior City Planner Donald Schmeiser will become the acting director of the Planning and Program Development Department Feb. 19 and assume that position until a new director is named. Dennis Kraft resigned the position last month.

Stevenson leads Iowa to win

By DOUG BEAN
Sports Editor

A hero always seems to emerge after every Iowa-Iowa State wrestling confrontation. In the first battle at Ames, the Banach brothers salvaged the win for the Hawkeyes. In the Field House Saturday night, it was Mark Stevenson.

The Iowa 158-pounder was the underdog against the Cyclones' Tom Pickard. But Stevenson, who has lost to Pickard twice this year, defied the form chart and escaped with a hard-fought 5-2 decision. That victory helped Iowa to a 22-12 victory over fourth-ranked Iowa State.

Pickard had won a 5-1 decision at Iowa State in the first meeting of the national wrestling powers and controlled Stevenson from start to finish. Their battle was much different this time around.

"I was more aware of what he could do this time," Stevenson said. "He rode me for a long time in our last match so I've been working from the down position a lot."

"I really felt good today," he added. "I thought this would be the night for me to do it."

COACH DAN GABLE admitted that the victory at 158 made a significant effect on the meet's outcome.

"That was one match they were favored to win," he said.

"Stevenson did a good job." Iowa State Coach Harold Nichols was understandably upset with his team's loss and especially at 158.

"I was surprised he lost," Nichols said. "I thought we'd get points out of Pickard."

Stevenson, of course, had a lot of help from his teammates in helping Iowa to its 16th win this season against one loss. Iowa State dropped to 18-4 on the year and now trails in series victories, 12-11. The Hawkeyes have won five straight with the last Cyclone win coming in 1978 in Ames.

"We were more ready to wrestle tonight," Gable said. "We weren't ready to wrestle up there. But tonight we were consistent weight after weight."

"We were in position to win at every weight but we came out on the losing side of a couple rolls."

SENIOR DAN GLENN, who wrestled his last match in the Field House, put up a gallant effort after a knee injury has sidelined the 118-pounder for several weeks and beat Iowa State's Mike Picozzi, 17-11.

Glenn was questionable up until the starting time and In-tramural recruit Devon Goetz was on hand for the introductions of the line-ups. But he did wrestle and put the Hawkeyes in command with an early 3-0 lead.

Picozzi started quickly and took a 4-0 lead midway through the first period with a takedown and two near fall points. However, Glenn was aggressive despite the heavily taped knee and fought back to gain a 10-10 tie at the end of the second period.

The third period was all Glenn. He scored two takedowns and rode out Picozzi to gain his 21st triumph against three losses.

"The way things started out, we should have gotten points of 118," Nichols commented. "But he was just hanging on and looking at the clock."

Glenn escaped several pin attempts in the early going but Gable said those were a result of Glenn's determination and hustle.

"He was going for the fall every time the guy got a reversal," Gable explained. "He was really wrestling aggressive."

IOWA STATE TIED the match at 3-all when Steve Carr escaped with a 7-6 victory over Jeff Kerber at 126. The Iowa freshman rallied for six final-period points but it was not enough to overcome the four-time state champ from Minnesota. Carr's winning point came on riding time.

National champion Randy Lewis (134) did everything possible but pin the Cyclones' Ed Banach handed Iowa State's John Forshee a 12-4 setback at 177 as the freshman won his 31st match of the season. Banach was able to score at will against Forshee but was unable to record any near fall points.

With Lou Banach's decision to quit the team Friday, many thought Iowa didn't have a prayer at 190 against top-rated Mike Mann. But freshman Pete Bush proved the experts wrong and gave Mann a real scare before losing, 11-8.

Heavyweight Dean Phinney clinched Iowa's second win over the Cyclones this year with a 10-2 whipping of Dave Osenbaugh.

The top-ranked Hawkeyes will travel to Oklahoma State Friday night for their last dual meet of the year before the Big Ten Championships in East Lansing, Mich., March 1-2.

AFTER STEVENSON'S upset at 158, top-ranked Perry Hummel of Iowa State took a 3-2 lead into the final period but escaped with a 6-3 win over Doug Anderson. Hummel easily defeated Anderson, 14-4, in Ames but the Hawkeye senior has been coming on in recent matches. The closeness of the match didn't surprise Gable.

"He needs about two weeks more progression and he'll be there," Gable said. "He needs to improve his defense on his feet and he needs a little bit more continuity in his wrestling."

Iowa State climbed to within six points of the lead at that point but would get no closer.

Wildkittens dominate cagers

By CLAUDIA RAYMOND
Staff Writer

The Iowa women's basketball team, fresh from a win over Minnesota, shot poorly Saturday and dropped a 71-50 decision at Northwest Missouri State.

The Bearkittens, who Coach Judy McMullen expected to be a quick team going into the contest, used a tough press to force numerous Iowa turnovers and poor shot selection.

"Our inability to hang onto our composure is what hurt us in the game," Coach Judy McMullen said. "Northwest Missouri was just ready to go. They were fired up."

Cindy Haugejorde, the Hawkeyes' leading scorer, fouled out late in the game with six points, her lowest scoring output of the season. Kim Howard led the Iowa women with 10 points while reserve Kris Wistrom came off the bench to contribute eight.

The Hawkeyes got off to a poor start and were unable to battle back. Iowa outscored Northwest Missouri in the second half but that was not enough. To make matters worse, McMullen's club hit only 4-of-11 free throws while the Bearkittens made 11-of-17 from the line.

"We didn't act like we came to play ball at all," McMullen said. "They jumped out on us in the first half with a 12-4 lead and they never looked back."

The Daily Iowan/Steve Zavodny

Iowa's Jeff Kerber is caught in a tough predicament but the 126-pounder was able to escape Steve Carr's hold and nearly pull out a victory Saturday night. The Iowa State freshman held on to a 7-6 decision. His teammates, however, lost to the top-ranked Hawkeyes Saturday night in the Field House, 22-12, before 12,200 fans.

Men's track team silences Bulldogs

By HEIDI McNEIL
Staff Writer

The Iowa men's track squad capped its home dual indoor meet season with an 89-41 shellacking of Northeast Missouri State Saturday.

The win upped the Hawkeyes' dual record to 2-0 on the year while the Bulldogs fell to 0-2. Iowa won 13 of the 15 events.

One building mark fell during the meet when the mile relay team erased the old record of 3 minutes, 17.4 seconds set in 1974. The foursome of Andy Jensen, Jeff Brown, William McCalister and Craig Stanowski blazed to a speedy 3:16.7 clocking.

Iowa running back Dennis Mosley was a double winner for the Hawks with blue-ribbon finishes in the 60-yard dash (6.3) and the 300 (30.8). Brown, another Iowa griddler, earned runner-up honors behind Mosley in the 300 (31.3) and third in the 60 (6.4).

CHARLES JONES, who holds a share in the 60 school and building records with a 6.1 time set earlier this year, bypassed the race Saturday to concentrate on the long jump, his field-event specialty.

"I wanted to put my all into the long jump," Jones said. "I was really trying hard for national qualification." The junior's 24-foot-3½ leap fell short, however, of the NCAA standard of 25-1. Jones holds the Iowa record in that event with a 24-8½ effort earlier this season.

Mile relay members Stanowski and McCalister also captured individual victories.

Canadian Stanowski cruised to the 440 honors in 49.4 while McCalister outdistanced the 600 field in 1:11.1, only one-tenth of a second off the building mark. Kent Ellis captured second in 1:14.4.

Distance runner Brad Brown was another double winner with triumphs in the mile (4:17.3) and 1,000 (2:16.2). Rob Sametz was second in the mile with 4:22.2.

IOWA SWEEPED THE 60 high hurdles with junior college transfer Corneal Milloy leading the charge in 7.6. Right on Milloy's heels were Chris Williams (7.7) and Ed Gilpin (7.8).

Veteran Tom Ferree garnered the top honors in the two-mile with a 9:15.8 clocking followed by Matt Trimble (9:21.9).

John Boyer grabbed the shot put crown with a 51-3½ heave and Pat O'Connor took third (49-10½). Iowa also swept the high jump with Pete Hlavin and Andy Knoedel sharing the top spot with 6-9 leaps. Craig Smith also cleared 6-9 but had more misses. Tom Kelso recorded a 14-0 effort in the pole vault to win that event.

The Bulldogs earned one of their two victories with a sweep in the 880 led by Jim Riding in 1:56.3. Their only other win came in the triple jump with Jim Driscoll's 47-6¾ leap.

The Hawks travel to Champaign, Ill. this weekend for the prestigious Illinois Invitational with the Big Ten Indoor Championships the following weekend in Madison, Wis.

Iowa swimmers perfect following 61-52 decision

By HOWIE BEARDSLEY
Staff Writer

AMES — Coach Glenn Patton and the Iowa Hawkeyes put the finishing touches on this year's Cinderella season Friday night at Beyer Hall Pool — eluding an Iowa State ambush and scoring a 61-52 dual meet decision in the season finale.

The Hawks, in winning their first swim meet since 1917 in Cyclone country, close out the season with their first unblemished campaign (8-0) in 24 years.

Although Iowa was considered the overwhelming favorite against a Cyclone squad sporting a 2-2 record, it was evident from the outset Coach Bob Groseth and his Big Eight crew were not about to take this intrastate clash lying down.

And it didn't take long to find out why.

THE SETTING was the running of the 400-yard medley relay. On one side stood Tom Roemer, Ted Rychlik, Charlie Roberts and Jim Marshall, an Iowa foursome that had helped the Hawks to an undefeated season in relay competition. Their counterparts were Cyclones Gary DeRoos, Jim Barron, Jay Leigh and Jeff Henry. And in the end, it was Iowa State winning hands down with a time of 3 minutes, 29.24 seconds.

"We didn't expect to lose a relay event," Patton would later say. "But Iowa State was sky-high and rested up for us. After the opening relay, we had to scrap for everything we got."

"We were lucky to get out of here alive." Iowa State was alive and well with a 13-3 lead after Rolf Meyer outdistanced Scott Wisner with a 9:34.28 effort in the 1,000 freestyle. That, however, was before the Hawks buckled down with Charlie Kennedy (1:42.5), Bent Brask and Brett Naylor sweeping the 200 free and cutting the Cyclone deficit to 14-11.

Beyer Hall came alive in the 50 free when Marshall and Henry battled to a 21.35 photo finish before Roemer rewrote the pool record book with a 1:55 pace in the 200 individual medley.

A great deal of excitement occurred during one-meter diving where Iowa State's George Sakellar overshadowed Tom Fostick (296.70-296) in an event marred with disagreement between Iowa diving Coach Bob Rydze and meet official Mike Wittmer, a neutral judge from Ames.

"WE FELT HE (Wittmer) did a terrible job," Patton said. "On Tom's reverse one-and-a-half, Bob and (Iowa State diving Coach) Jerry Symons gave him a seven. Wittmer gave him a five."

"We felt the guy was either very biased or very incompetent as a diving judge."

Following the diving controversy, Roberts claimed a top finish swimming the 200 butterfly in a time of 1:54.74 before Brask and Wood combined for a one-two sweep in the 100 free, giving Brask a pool record time of 46.74 and the Hawks their initial lead at 37-33.

Steve Harrison and Roemer got together for one of their classic match-ups in the 200 backstroke with Harrison earning the blue-ribbon in a pool record time of 1:54.04 while Doug Connors (272.90) and Sakellaris swept the three-meter diving to close the gap to 50-47.

The stage was now set for what would become a wild dual meet finish thanks to Barron's first-place honors (2:09.75) ahead of Mike Hurley and Rychlik in the 200 breaststroke. Those results had the scoreboard showing Iowa with a 54-52 lead and the 400 freestyle relay the only event left on the agenda.

"WE FIGURED the only way we could have a chance to win was to load up the relays," Groseth said. "It worked in the medley but Iowa was just too strong in the free."

That observation came about when Ian Bullock, Marshall, Kennedy and Brask splashed their way to a 3:06.30 pace and a pool record to go along with the Big Ten's only undefeated dual meet mark.

Although being named junior college Coach of the Year on three separate occasions to go along with four consecutive juco national crowns at Alfred Tech (New York), a lot of folks might wonder if this year's undefeated season might be Patton's most memorable.

"This is my 16th season of coaching and my first undefeated team," Patton said. "So this year has to rank among my best."

Following the March 6-8 Big Ten Championships at Ann Arbor, Mich., 1980 may be Patton's best year yet.

Women smash records

By HEIDI McNEIL
Staff Writer

The song remains the same with the Iowa women tracksters as they merrily continued with their record-smashing spree at Saturday's Golden Track Shoe Invitational in Madison, Wis.

The meet was a non-scoring affair, but the host Badgers managed to rack up 11 firsts out of 15 events.

The 4x220 relay and distance runner Sue Marshall recorded school marks while Diane Emmons broke a meet record with a 25.0-second clocking in the 200-meter dash.

The 4x220 relay of Diane Steinhart, Colleen Gaupp, Maureen Abel and Emmons shattered the old Iowa mark of 1:43.83 with their 1:43.6 time. The foursome won by nearly two seconds en route to one of only two top finishes. Emmons' 200 performance, which was the first time the sophomore ran the event all season, was the Hawkeyes' other first-place finish.

DESPITE LOWERING the old Iowa record in the 1,500-meter run, Marshall's 4:34.0 effort was only good enough for fourth. Her time was off national qualification by two seconds. Rose Drapcho, who took fifth, had a personal best with 4:47.9.

Cindy Bremser of the Wisconsin United Athletic Club, who recently ran the third best 1,500 ever by an American indoors, garnered the event's top honors in 4:10.9. Big Ten cross country champion Rose Thomson of Wisconsin was second.

Freshman Julie Williams blazed to a 2:18.0 in the 800 meters for runner-up honors while Wisconsin's Suzie Houston captured first in 2:16.1. Iowa's Diana Schlader was fourth in 2:21.5.

Williams came back to anchor the two-mile relay in a strong 2:15.8 but the Wisconsin quartet edged the Hawks at the tape for the top spot. The Badgers' final time was 9:19.7 compared to Iowa's 9:20.6.

Senior Maureen Abel continued to demonstrate her versatility with a second place in the pentathlon with a 33.95 point total. Emmons also captured a second for Iowa in the 60 with a 7.6 clocking.

IN THE 600, Chris Davenport settled for third with 1:36.2 while Steinhart secured fourth in the 60 hurdles with a 9.1 showing.

Ann Schneider and Michele DeJarnatt enjoyed personal bests indoors in the 400. Schneider won her heat in 58.9 while DeJarnatt finished in 59.4.

In the field events, Terri Soldan had a second-place showing with a 11.55-meter throw plus a personal best. Iowa shotputters Judy Cerven and Cathy Brennan also turned in personal bests.

Hassard noted that the non-scoring system took the pressure off his runners and allowed them to save energy for the Big Ten meet this weekend.

"We're not in perfect physical health right now with a few people questionable for this weekend," Hassard said. "We made some changes Saturday and didn't really worry about things like stacking the relays. We hope our questions and problems can be solved before the Big Tens."

Baker wins Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Buddy Baker, breaking a jinx that had him winless in 34 races since 1959 at Daytona International Speedway, led through most of the race Sunday to capture the $660,000 Daytona 500 in record speed.

Baker, who started in the pole position for the fifth time in the Daytona 500, set a record of 177.602 mph for 500-mile stock car races.

Baker fought off a surprising challenge by 1979 Rookie of the Year Dale Earnhardt. Both Baker and Earnhardt, who finished fourth, were driving Oldsmobiles.

Earnhardt faded when he had to make two time-consuming pit stops on the 181st and 182nd laps of the 200-lap race.

Baker then stretched his lead over second-place finisher Bobby Allison, in a Mercury and finished seconds ahead of Allison.

Baker's record speed broke the previous record for 500-mile races of 174.700 mph set by Lennie Pond in an Oldsmobile at the 1978 Talladega 500.

The Toshiko Akiyoshi Low Tabackin Big Band

Out of the seven decades of jazz, female pianist-composer Toshiko Akiyoshi is the first member of an Oriental race to contribute something vitally original and exciting to what has essentially been an Afro-American art form. Toshiko is not one of those foreign musicians who try to be an ultra-American. Through her attitude, she achieves a very special kind of oneness, husband Lew Tabackin said.

Ms. Magazine, Nov. 1978

The band has just won, for the first time, the Down Beat reader's poll as No. 1 band—the runners up included Thad Jones-Mel Lewis, Count Basie, Maynard Ferguson, and Buddy Rich.

Brookins' shot lifts Hawkeyes

By SHARI ROAN
Associate Sports Editor

EVANSTON, Ill. — Vince Brookins is the sixth man. A bridesmaid in Iowa basketball. During several games in the last few weeks, he has spent the full 40 minutes doing nothing but sliding farther and farther down the bench.

His role as a Hawkeye, in his own words is: "I'm willing to do whatever it takes to win."

He is very true to his word. Brookins did exactly what it took to win by swishing a 17-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining Saturday night to allow Iowa a 60-58 escape over a confident Northwestern team in McGaw Hall.

With 11 seconds left, Brookins replaced Steve Krafscin who went to the bench with his fifth foul. Despite two Iowa timeouts, Northwestern 7-foot center Brian Jung, hit both ends of a one-and-bonus to pull the Wildcats into a 58-58 tie.

THE HAWKS inbounded the ball and moved it to the top of the key where Kenny Arnold met the Wildcats' three big men, who were positioned at the outside perimeter. The ball finally came around to Brookins on the left wing and he shot from the baseline. The shot was sweet and an estatic Iowa bench poured on the court to swarm Brookins at the buzzer. Coach Lute Olson could hardly herd his team from the court.

The shot also left the near sellout crowd of 6,679 on their feet screaming as they had done through much of the exciting contest. Iowa drew a heavy following with five of the Hawkeyes being from the Chicago area.

"We wanted the shot a couple, three seconds earlier than when we got it, obviously, but we'll take it," Olson said. "He (Olson) just said 'take a good shot,'" Brookins added. "There was no designated shooter. He said he wanted the shot with five seconds left. The last time I saw the clock it was five."

Actually, as someone informed

Brookins later, it was more like two or three seconds. But what really matters is that the Hawkeyes pulled out a win on the first leg of a three-game road trip.

IT WAS NOT a stellar Iowa performance with the Hawks — shooting 42 percent for the game, well below their average while the Wildcats hit 44 percent. Northwestern, after upsetting Purdue here Thursday night, played authoritatively led by Jung's 16 points in his best game as a Wildcat.

The Hawkeyes, by contrast, could have played under a pseudonym, "the poor and destitute." Almost half of Olson's 13-man roster was listed as injured at game time.

Kevin Boyle, who led Iowa with 15 points, played with a bandage tightly over his right eye after collecting 12 stitches and a sprained ankle in the Hawkeyes' battle with Indiana Thursday.

Bob Hansen, who entered the game after picking up four stitches on his chin Thursday night, injured his left hand, a probable finger fracture, five minutes into the game and played cautiously with the hand wrapped the remaining time.

Finally, Arnold, who has been playing most of the season with a chipped bone in his hand, sprained his ankle in practice Friday evening but appeared unaffected.

There just might have been a feeling of luck in the air as the Hawks were iced, rubbed down and x-rayed after the game. "It was a good one to win," Olson admitted. "We've lost some like that too. But once in a while you deserve to get one."

NORTHWESTERN Coach Rick Falk, meanwhile, had begged for the same mercy. A win Saturday would have marked the first time since the 1976 season the Wildcats had won two straight at home.

The lead changed hands 20 times in the physical, fast-paced game, 17 times in the first half with Northwestern on the upswing at halftime, leading 31-30.

"We felt coming out in the second half that we had Iowa right where we wanted them," Falk said. "We had at least six easy running-game opportunities (early in the second half) where we got absolutely nothing out of them. "I thought we had some really key defensive board lapses in the second half," he said. Iowa outrebounded the Wildcats 35-29 despite Jung's 15 boards.

Northwestern came out of the locker room and made a major threat — out-scoring Iowa 9-2 for a 42-36 lead with 14:02 remaining. But the Hawks countered with a 13-point spurt in the next seven minutes while the Wildcats, bothered by Iowa's man-to-man defense, hit one basket.

Iowa took the lead 50-48 on Krafscin's lay-up at 5:57 and went up by five 57-52 on the strength of Arnold's four-straight free throws. Two buckets by Jim Stack, who scored 14 points despite an ankle sprain suffered Thursday, and one by Rod Roberson (10 points) brought the Cats within one. Steve Waite hit the front end of a one-and-bonus for a 58-56 edge before Krafscin fouled out which sent Jung to the line.

"We made some good plays in the final minutes and we made some plays that were not so good," Olson said. "We got a couple of turnovers because of the four corners but we got a lot of points off it too because Arnold got a lot of one-and-bonus situations out of it."

Referees called 37 fouls in the game with Stack also going to the bench with five personals. However, the Hawkeyes stepped to the line 25 times, converting 18 while Northwestern was 12-of-14. Both teams turned the ball over charitably with Iowa making 14 errors to the Wildcats' 10.

Arnold was six-for-six at the line and finished with 14 points while Krafscin added 13 and Brookins nine.

in practice," Rogers said. "We broke down the (beam) routine and worked on each pass one at a time.

"THIS WAS MY best meet all season," Rogers said. "I wish I could have done it for the Big Tens, but now I know what I can do and hopefully I can put it together for the regional."

Mary Hamilton tied for second with teammate Sue Woods on the bars (7.95), took third on the floor (8.1), tied with Iowa's Lyra Black for third in the vault (8.25) and finished third all-around (31.65).

Freshman Heidi DeBoer was first on the bars and second on the beam.

Women gymnasts glide by Illinois State

By DAN O'CONNOR
Staff Writer

The roller coaster ride which has characterized Iowa women gymnasts' season the past several weeks was at its highest point Friday evening.

The Hawkeyes rolled up a season-high point total en route to a 129.1-124.65 dual meet win over Illinois State in the Field House.

And they did it with the confidence which had been building two weeks ago but vanished in last week's Big Ten meet.

"It goes to show how well we can do when we hit our routines," Coach

Diane Chapela said. "Still, not everyone hit, mind you, but we finally had a majority."

INDEED, THE HAWKS won every event, swept the top three spots in the floor exercise and Illinois State's all-around winner Gina Chiavini was the only Redbird to finish in the top three of any event.

Chapela said last week she was working in practice on the mental attitude of several of her gymnasts. After Friday's meet, Chapela may get a job offer this week from Norman Vincent Peale.

Freshman Eileen Flynn won the vault with an 8.6, then survived a fall on the balance beam to take floor exercise honors with an 8.4. The Willingboro, N.J. native slipped on the beam and landed on the left side of her face, but apparently did not suffer serious injury.

Flynn's 7.85 on the uneven bars tied her for third place there.

Geri Rogers was also a bright spot for Iowa. The sophomore had a season high on her specialty, the beam (8.4), was second on the floor (8.3), and second all-around with a 32.25, only .15 behind Chiavini and close to Iowa's season best.

"Diane (Chapela) really helped me

The Daily Iowan/Bill Paxson

Iowa's Geri Rogers won top honors in her specialty, the balance beam, with a 8.4 score as the Hawkeyes beat Illinois State Friday night in the Field House. Rogers was also second in the floor exercise and all-around competition.

Kentucky whips UNLV

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Freshman Sam Bowie scored 23 points Sunday to lead fifth-ranked Kentucky to a 74-69 victory over the University of Nevada-Las Vegas in a nationally-televised nonconference basketball game.

UNLV led 51-50 with 16 minutes remaining in the contest when Kentucky scored six straight points on jumpers by Bowie, Kyle Macy and Jay Shidler.

The Rebels then drew within 61-59 on three Sid Green layups and a Richard Box jumper at 13:45, but UNLV could draw no closer as the Wildcats spread out the court and UNLV was forced to foul.

Gymnasts capture first

Taking advantage of a low-key meet, the men's gymnastics team competed with an experimental line-up this past weekend and defeated Northern Michigan and Wisconsin-LaCrosse.

Although the Hawks did not record their highest point total of the season, there were several highlights in the victory. Iowa accumulated 246.15 points to Northern Michigan's 211 and Wisconsin's 193.29.

Iowa's Mohamad Tavakoli placed first in vaulting with a 9.30 and teammate Tim McGee was second with 8.65. Tavakoli, who has been sidelined with back problems, also won the high bar event with a 9.35.

Iowa's other top competitor was Chuck Graham, who finished second in the meet as an all-arounder. Graham placed second overall in the floor exercise with Iowa's highest score of 9.05. This event was the only round that the Hawks did not win as a team.

"We were trying some of our other team members in various events, to attempt to come up with our strongest line-up," Assistant Coach Tom Dunn said. "Unfortunately the people I wanted to look at didn't do that well."

Other changes in Iowa's lineup were due to health reasons as specialist Terry Heffron did not compete. All-arounder Ali Tavakoli was also entered in only one event due to injury.

Dunn's concerns for a sound Iowa contingency may be reflective of the Hawks' upcoming meet with Michigan and Wisconsin this Saturday at home.

Women swimmers fall to Wisconsin

By KATHY RADOWICZ
Staff Writer

A strong Wisconsin women's swimming team took 12-of-15 first place finishes and sank Iowa, 97-34, in the Hawks' last dual meet of the season Saturday in Madison.

"The atmosphere was not conducive for a good meet," Coach Deborah Woodside explained. "There wasn't much enthusiasm present in the few spectators that were there, or in either team for that matter. It was a dull, drab environment. "We were primarily interested in getting people to perform around their averages," she added. "There weren't any outstanding races for either team. Most of the swimmers are beginning to taper which has changed their swimming schedules, so everyone was pretty low-key for this meet."

Iowa's top finishes went to Kerry Stewart in the 100-yard breaststroke with a time of 1:09.53 and Martha Donovan in the 200-yard individual medley with a 2:19.09 clocking. Stewart also placed third in the 100-yard butterfly, while Donovan also took seconds in the 100-yard backstroke and the 100-yard freestyle events. Double winners for Wisconsin were: Laurie Otsby, who took the 200 freestyle with a 1:57.76 and the 100 freestyle in 55.54; Jane Fox in the 200 butterfly (2:10.10) and the 200 back (2:19.48); and Janice Hebert who took the one-meter required dive and the one-meter optional events.

Other point getters for Iowa included Adrienne Steger, seconds in the 200 butterfly and the 200 backstroke, and a third in the 200 freestyle; Kay Kirkland, a second in the 1,000 free and a third in the 200 backstroke; Karen Wilcox, third-place finishes in the 50 and 100 freestyle events; Jane Oberheide placed third in the 1,000 freestyle, and Laura Kalb took a third in the 200 breaststroke event. In diving, Pieper Murphy placed third in the one-meter required and optional events.

Iowa now prepares for the Big Ten Championship Feb. 28-Mar. 2 at Michigan State.

Mueller fights off cold winds; wins silver medal

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (UPI) — Leah Poulos Mueller fought her way through painful, bone-chilling winds and saved the United States from embarrassment in the medal chase at the Winter Olympics Sunday by finishing second in the women's 1,000-meter speed skating event.

On the coldest day of the winter games, with temperatures near zero, Mueller made her last Olympic race a memorable one by winning her second silver medal in three days and her third in Olympic competition.

Despite the winds which left several athletes and spectators crying with pain, Mueller clocked 1:25.41 around the speed skating oval to finish behind Russia's Natalia Petruseva.

"I noticed the wind a little bit but when you have one race, you try not to think about it and put out all you have," said Mueller.

Speed skaters have provided the U.S. with its only medals in the games thus far. Eric Heiden of Madison, Wis., has won gold medals in the men's 500 and 5,000 meters.

The 28-year-old Mueller, whose husband, Peter, is a member of the men's speed skating squad, got a break by being paired with Petruseva but despite the urgings of the freezing pro-American crowd, she couldn't overcome her Soviet opponent in the stretch run.

"My 1,000 meters has not been my most consistent race," Mueller said. "I did very well. I knew coming in that this was her (Petruseva) distance. So I just tried to maintain my technique and do my best."

Petruseva, a bronze medalist in the 500 meters Friday, finished in 1:24.10, easily an Olympic record but not even approaching her best time of 1:23.80 or the world mark of 1:23.46 — both owned by countrywoman Tatiana Averina.

Silvia Albrecht of East Germany won the bronze medal.

Beth Heiden of Madison, Wis., who finished a disappointing seventh in both the 1,500 and 500, managed no better than fifth this time.

Mueller, a three-time Olympian from Dousman, Wis., who also took the silver in the 1,000 meters in the 1976 Olympics at Innsbruck, had said after her second place finish in the 500 Friday that Sunday's race would be her final one in Olympic competition.

"This is my last Olympics but I will finish out the season," said Mueller. "I'll then either go back to work or back to school."

Later Sunday night, the gold medal in figure skating pairs was to be decided. Americans Tai Babilonia and Randy Garner has been expected to duel former champion Irina Rodnina and Aleksandr Zaitsev of the Soviet Union for the gold medal but the U.S. pair had to withdraw Friday night because of an injury to Gardner and the Russians now are expected to win the event handily.

The U.S. had only one other respectable showing in the overall competition Sunday, that by teenager Heidi Preuss of Lakeport, N.H., in the women's downhill ski race. Preuss, 18, barely missed out on a bronze medal, finishing fourth behind Austrian winner, Annemarie Moser-Proell, with a time of 1:39.51.

"I was satisfied with my results but I was unhappy that I didn't get a medal," said Preuss. "I would have rather had something to take home besides the memories." Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., a bronze medalist at Innsbruck, finished in a tie for seventh at 1:39.69.

Student health policy improved

By JAN SANDERSON
Staff Writer

Changes in the UI Student Health Insurance plan have been approved to provide increased coverage, clearer policy language and more efficient service, according to Bill Farrell, a member of the UI Student Senate committee that helped revise the plan.

An increased cost of $10 for the single student, and the addition of a $10 deductible clause, made possible increased surgery coverage, more out-patient accident benefits and out-patient illness coverage, Farrell said.

The changes were ironed out last week by representatives of the senate, the UI administration and the Guarantee Trust Life Insurance Co., of Wheeling, Ill., which underwrites the plan.

Interest in changing the plan was triggered by complaints from UI students about the benefits and claim-filing procedure, according to Duane Allison, UI assistant treasurer.

THE SENATE sponsors the program and approves the policy each spring. Senate profits of $1 per policy support Student Legal Services, a commission of the senate. About 3,700 policies are sold annually to UI students.

The cost of the 12-month student health plan will increase from $95 to $105 for single students, from $261 to $286 for a student and spouse, and from $416 to $461 for a student, spouse and all children, according to Pat Harkins, consultant to Guarantee Trust.

Under the current insurance plan, students may receive up to $500 in coverage for surgery, with the percentage of total cost paid for each type of surgery varying according to a schedule set by the insurance company.

The 1980-81 plan will pay up to $1,000 in surgical expenses. A flat 80 percent of surgery costs will be paid, replacing the surgical schedule.

Out-patient accident benefits have been increased from a maximum of $125 to $250. Under the 1979-80 policy, students who were injured in accidents had to initially be treated within 72 hours of the accident to receive the benefits. Farrell said students complained that they might not discover their injuries until a few days later or that they simply might not be able to receive minor treatment right away.

NEXT YEAR'S plan allows the claimant 90 days to receive initial treatment for injuries incurred in the accident, Farrell said.

Farrell said the changes in surgical coverage amount to $8 of the increased premium cost. The additional $2 increase takes care of changes in out-patient benefits. Farrell said no inflationary increase was added, although the policy has typically increased $10 each year due to inflation.

The addition of $10 deductible coverage for out-patient care helped to keep the premium increase minimal, Farrell said. The deductible clause not only will help keep the policy cost down, but

Weather

Day 22 — Weather held hostage
We know some of you will think today's highs near 40 and clouds mean that the release of the weather staff is so near that we're giddy. Not so, Kurt Waldheim-breath. It's just that, with the Roy Carver Pavilion aggressors threatening to overrun the Pharmacy College and seize control of Melrose Avenue, we realize that some compromises that at first look stupid may in fact be good ideas. That's life in the real world, kids.

Council

The Iowa City Council gave informal approval Monday to a 10-cent transit fare increase effective April 1 through fiscal 1981 coupled with a transit property tax of 10 cents per $1,000 valuation for that fiscal year.

Mayor John Balmer and Councilors Clemens Erdahl, David Perret, Lawrence Lynch and Mary Neuhauser supported the fare hike and tax levy along with three other recommendations made to the council Feb. 15 by City Manager Neal Berlin.

They are: raising monthly bus passes to $12, retaining the current 25-cent bus fares on Saturdays only and increasing special off-peak rates to 25 cents. The council will take formal action on this package Feb. 26, according to Berlin.

Councilors Glenn Roberts and Robert Vevera opposed the transit levy, saying

Trudeau o

TORONTO (UPI) — Pierre Trudeau was elected prime minister again Monday night ousting Prime Minister Joe Clark's 9-month-old Conservative government in the greatest election comeback in Canadian history.

Trudeau's Liberal Party candidates were elected or leading in 148 of the 282 seats as votes flowed in from voter-rich Ontario. Only 141 seats were needed for an absolute majority.

Clark's Conservatives, who had ended Trudeau's 11-year tenure in Canada's last election May 22, was elected or leading in 48 and Ed Broadbent's socialist New Democratic Party had five.

Canada is divided by population into 282 electoral districts, each represented by a "seat" in the House of Commons. The candidate receiving the most votes

Metalworking rising cost of Rising costs of precious metals such as silver have prompted UI metalworking students to use other metals and methods to produce art works.

Students must buy their own materials for metalworking classes, which produces a substantial economic burden if silver is used. In one year silver prices have jumped from $7 per ounce to almost $35 per ounce. Comparatively, a pound of copper costs $1.50.

"I think the students find it a challenge to experiment with many types of metals. I have always stressed
