Tobin says voting poorly run and rules violated

By ROB BOSWORTH

In his two terms as Iowa Senate majority leader, Tom Tobin has become one of the state’s most articulate politicians. He has been a vocal critic of a number of the state’s most controversial issues, including the state’s public schools and the state’s public universities.

But now that he is running for a third term, Tobin appears to be having a change of heart. He has been critical of the way the state’s schools are being run, and he has been critical of the way the state’s universities are being run.

In a recent speech, Tobin said that the state’s schools are poorly run and that the state’s universities are poorly run. He said that the state’s schools are not doing a good job of preparing students for college, and he said that the state’s universities are not doing a good job of preparing students for the workforce.

Tobin also said that the state’s schools are not doing a good job of preparing students for life in general. He said that the state’s schools are not teaching students how to think critically, and he said that the state’s universities are not teaching students how to think critically.

Tobin also said that the state’s schools are not doing a good job of teaching students how to be good citizens. He said that the state’s schools are not teaching students how to be good citizens, and he said that the state’s universities are not teaching students how to be good citizens.

Tobin also said that the state’s schools are not doing a good job of teaching students how to be good workers. He said that the state’s schools are not teaching students how to be good workers, and he said that the state’s universities are not teaching students how to be good workers.

Tobin also said that the state’s schools are not doing a good job of teaching students how to be good leaders. He said that the state’s schools are not teaching students how to be good leaders, and he said that the state’s universities are not teaching students how to be good leaders.

Tito slips closer to death

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) - President Josip Broz Tito's already damaged heart is weaker than ever and the 87-year-old leader slipped even further into his sickbed Tuesday, a medical bulletin said. The bulletin, distributed by Tito's official medical bulletin said:

"The Yugoslav leader is still in a critical state." The bulletin said Tito was being given certain medications that stabilize vital body functions but are also responsible for the"wearing down" of Tito's heart. The bulletin confirmed the news that Tito is in a "semi-coma state" and that he is going through a phase of"natural respiration." The bulletin said Tito is moving less and less, and his heartbeat is very weak. However, his condition is stable and he is being watched over by many doctors.

Quiet lifestyle’ reactions mixed

Jill said Friday’s selection was perceived by a number of people as a positive move. Because of the new program, students were able to choose the recruiter that best suited their needs. Jill added that the recruiter seemed to be very understandible and that he would not mind having to live in a quiet lifestyle floor.

However, some students were not as happy with the selection. Joe, a junior, said that he was not satisfied with the recruiter chosen for Friday’s floor. He mentioned that he was concerned about the recruiter’s ability to handle any potential problems that may arise.

Despite the mixed reactions, many students were pleased with the new program. Paul, a sophomore, said that he was excited about the opportunity to choose his own recruiter. He added that he felt more comfortable with the recruiter chosen for Friday’s floor.

In general, students seemed to be content with the new program. They were pleased with the opportunity to choose their own recruiter and felt that the recruiters were well qualified to handle any potential problems. While there were some mixed reactions, the program was generally well received.
Honing another great athlete

Iowa fans paid tribute to another great Iowa star Saturday by honoring Cindy Haugjorde, who scored over 30,000 points during her career. The tribute extended into the game where Lester scored 15 points before the season. As Olson hugged Lester it was hard to believe that there could ever be a more moving moment on a basketball court.

We're looking forward to the next season when the Zephyr's Iowa ridership would increase to 81,000 near one million persons by including the Quad Cities, Iowa City, and then reached for Ronnie. As Olson hugged Lester it was hard to believe that there could ever be a more moving moment on a basketball court.

Budget proposal cuts staff, raises taxes

By ROBERT BOSMAN

The city's final 65.5 million budget proposal was unveiled last week, enacting a 10 percent reduction in staff and a 6 percent increase in property taxes.

A budget hearing Tuesday, a department director will present staff cuts for each department, including the Police and Fire Departments. The police department is proposing a 12 percent reduction in staff, while the fire department is proposing a 20 percent reduction.

Sen. Arthur Boshart (D -Iowa City) said he was concerned about the proposal to cut three levels of seniority for firefighters.

"We've already made some personnel reductions, and we're cutting down even more," a spokesman for the police department said.

"We are concerned about what we're going to be forced into," the city's finance director said.

The city's final budget proposal contains a provision to eliminate fire insurance rates, which will cost the city approximately $12.52 per year.

"We're concerned about the cost of the bill and creation of a separate insurance rating, which will increase local government costs," the finance director said.

The department's ability to enforce local and state fire and police laws will be hampered. The city has already cut staff from its fire and police departments, and it is possible that the city may have to cut more.

The city will receive a lower fire fee if the bills are not enacted.

Small introduces bill requiring competency exams for teachers

By REX GRAHAM

The objections of local officials, Sen. Boshart, Dale Hibbs (D -Iowa City), and a legislative branch that teachers, the legislature, and others involved are not in agreement on a bill to require competency exams for teachers.

In the future, sponsored by the League of Women Voters in Jordan, the bill is expected to be introduced. The bill would require certification, at the recommendation of the Education Department and the Board of Education.

The underlying issue is whether one test would work and what the test should contain, a spokesperson said.

"We don't know what the test should contain," the spokesperson said. "If we find out, we'll let you know."

Culver urges Carter to convene conference on national problems

By TOM DolIN

St. Louis Post Dispatch

Sen. John Culver has written President Carter urging him to immediately call a bipartisan "national summit conference." The request was made at a Democratic workshop last weekend.

And Culver said that both his constituents and the political leaders he is in contact with believe that Carter is "too isolated" for the task that lies ahead as the nation faces the "most critical economic decisions in our history." Culver acknowledged that the request is not an "easy task." But he said, "I am at a point where I feel that the survival of our country depends on it," and he added, "I urge President Carter to convene this conference at his earliest possible convenience." Culver said he had heard from his constituents that they wanted to see a "face-to-face meeting" among top political leaders to discuss the country's problems. "I believe that only such a meeting can bring about the kind of solutions that are needed," he said.

County Democrats to consider platform opposing Carter policies

By TOM DolIN

St. Louis Post Dispatch

A substantial number of local Democratic Party officials said Monday that they would not support the proposed platform for the Democratic National Convention if it is approved by the national convention. The officials, who included several county chairmen, said they would not vote for the platform if it includes provisions that they believe are critical to the national party's platform.

Leach to run for re-election

Calling for "fundamental changes" in Congress, a 3rd District congressman, Rep. James L. Leach, announced his candidacy for re-election Monday.

A Democrat, Mr. Leach has long been a vocal opponent of the Vietnam War and has been a strong supporter of civil rights legislation.

Convention

"COMMITTEE LISTS" circulated at the annual meeting of the Rochester, N.Y., County Democratic Party yesterday.

The convention met at the Rochester High School to hear the report of the convention and to consider the nomination of candidates for county offices.

The convention also approved a resolution calling for the immediate removal of all Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam and for the establishment of a "dialogue" between the United States and the Vietnamese government.

Culver considers governor candidate

REESE DAVIS (SF)

Culver said Monday that he is "seriously considering" running for governor.

"I am, indeed, seriously considering the possibility of running for governor," Culver said. "That's where I am." Culver said he is not making a firm decision yet, but he added that he is "very interested" in the possibility of running.

Group's workshops, classes help foreign women learn about U.S.

Women's job status made priority

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nearly 12 million foreign women lived in the U.S. in 1970, and the number has grown, but too many still find their husbands and children in the U.S. and often enter the labor force in the U.S. But many are frustrated and angry about their job status.

A study by the Women's Research and Education Institute found that nearly 30 percent of foreign women in the U.S. were employed in 1970, compared with 17 percent of native-born women. The study also found that foreign women were less likely to be married and more likely to be single or divorced.

According to the study, foreign women are more likely to be paid lower wages and be in lower paid jobs. They are also more likely to be in part-time employment and less likely to have health insurance.

The study also found that foreign women are more likely to be in low-skilled jobs and less likely to have access to education and training.

The study recommended that foreign women be given more access to education and training, as well as support and guidance to help them find jobs and improve their job status.

Guthrie retains delicate beauty of 'Menagerie'

By JUDY GREEN

MINNEAPOLIS — Tennessee Williams' semi-autobiographical drama, 'Menagerie,' experienced a remarkable rebirth last week at the Guthrie Theater. The production, under the direction of Joseph Hardy, is a sensitive and moving portrayal of family life in the Wingfield household.

The play opens with a succession of scenes in the Wingfield apartment, each taking on a dreamlike quality. The lighting, devoid of harshness, allows the characters to emerge in a clear, almost ethereal way. The Wingfields, a family torn apart by the loss of their youngest daughter, are depicted with a blend of realism and idealism that keeps the audience engaged.

The play's central character, Laura Wingfield, is played by Barbara Bryne, who convincingly captures the vulnerability and innocence of Laura. The performances of the rest of the cast are equally strong, with each actor bringing depth and complexity to their roles.

As the play progresses, the Wingfields' lives are examined with a blend of tenderness and honesty. The character of Laura, in particular, is depicted as a gentle soul who is often misunderstood by her family. The play's final scene, in which Laura makes her famous speech about the 'glass menagerie,' is a powerful and moving moment.

The production of 'Menagerie' at the Guthrie is a testament to the enduring power of Tennessee Williams' work. The play's themes of family, loss, and the struggle to find meaning in a chaotic world are as relevant today as they were when the play was first performed.

Music

New York — The magic of rag time has taken on substantiality: The musical 'Tin Pan Alley,' presented by the Gotham Symphony Orchestra, is a wondrous concert imaginative, true exercise of its form for the entertainment.

The play was carefully timed with the Pulitzer Prize-winning score of George Gershwin and Ira Gershwin. The orchestrations, under the baton of Norman Gapski, are marvelously developed, providing a musical backdrop that enhances the drama without overwhelming it.

The opening scene, in which the characters sing 'The Man I Love,' sets the tone for the rest of the show. The music is both elegant and rollicking, perfectly capturing the spirit of the era. The orchestra, under the direction of Gapski, is a marvel of precision and emotion. Each instrument is allowed its moment to shine, creating a rich tapestry of sound.

The first scene of the play, in which the characters gather in the Wingfield living room, is particularly powerful. The music, a rich blend of jazz and classical elements, underscores the characters' emotions and heightens the drama. The orchestrations, under the direction of Gapski, are a marvel of precision and emotion.

Senators can't support. Two of the three candidates for president have been declared as such, and the third declaration is expected by tonight. The resolution calls for a new position to be taken on the issue of the embargo of Cuba.

Sen. John Kerry, of Massachusetts, and Sen. Joe Biden, of Delaware, were among the eight senators who signed the resolution calling for a new position on Cuba. The resolution was introduced by Sen. Jim Jeffords, of Vermont, who has been an outspoken critic of the embargo.

Sweeping changes have been made to the resolution, which was originally introduced by Sen. Edward Kennedy, of Massachusetts. The new version calls for a new position to be taken on Cuba, and for the embargo to be lifted.

The Iowa men's swimming and diving team broke seven conference records and came home with three victories to place second at the Big Ten Championships at Minneapolis State.

Early swimming races for the season were the 50 and 100 breaststroke, won by Rommel Wilkins in both events, and the 200 backstroke, won by Stewart Carver.

Peterson also won the 500 freestyle, in the Big Ten meet.

Gymnasts nearly pull off upset

By DANN O'CONNOR

The Iowa women's gymnastics team almost did it. Were it not for sub par performance in two events, the Hawks would have pulled off an upset of powerful Oklahoma at the Field House Saturday. It was, however, not to be. The final tally showed a 132-129.9 victory for the Sooners. "Iowa's win was a possibility," said Coach Cathy Ballard. "The loss was a surprise."

However, Said Ballard, "Iowa's drama was on the floor exercise, where O.11y snared all-around honors with a 33.30 score and tied for second. Kemper also scored 8.65 on the beam for first place. The first round match was played the regular two against Vanderbilt, but con-}
