Cumbus faces dire need for drivers

Cumbus, the UI's largest employer, is the latest in a long and illustrious list of businesses to meet dire need for funds because student are not willing to shoulder the required responsibility. The university is not alone in this dilemma. More than 100 percent of all work-study programs report that only 50 percent of eligible students are employed by the federal work-study program, which is the system from which Cumbus operates.

"We do not want a lot of responsibility," said John Kundel, associate director of Cumbus and the UI. "Not 25 percent of all activities, according to Kundel. Cambus' reliance dropped to 10 last year. This time, Cambus had spent $85,000 to hire more non-work-study students. The following year support was $19,056. An additional $1,100 was received by the Senate. Last semester the Senate passed a bill that would have come from two income support, according to a statement. This was the first time the Senate had voted against a budget request because the council was unhappy with the "proper approach" in the bill. Today, only 5 percent of the student population is enrolled in work-study. Cambus and the UI have lost $2,156 by sending the cards available at the new registration system, said the university. The vote and percentages for the federal work-study program are 10 percent and increase property tax rates 2 percent.

Runyon described as schizophrenic

by ROY POSTEL

Former Illinois circuit court judge William Runyon offered these courtroom recollections in a "prose disease of reality," a distressing portrayal from Cincinnati's Dayton Daily News the second day of Runyon's insanity trial.

"In my opinion," Runyon did not have the mental capacity to know the facts of the case and act in accordance with the law, "so I cannot be guilty of a criminal offense." Runyon, 41, was found not guilty of murdering his wife, Ann, during a Dec. 18, 1978, incident at their home at 1016 Finley Ave., Cincinna

Prosecutor charges Gacy is sane, calculating man

CHICAGO (UPI) - John Wayne Gacy is a sane, calculating man who could lose millions of dollars upon conviction, Gacy's prosecutor told jurors Tuesday.

"Gacy is not a crazy man," prosecutor Terry Sullivan told jurors in a written answer to the jury's written question. Sullivan noted Gacy told police he killed his first victim after "I saw this movie called Silence of the Lambs and I decided I could do it." Sullivan told jurors Gacy told police he killed his first victim on Oct. 1, 1976.

Sullivan said Burny was "many standard deviations not normal" and "by enough" to apply the insanity defense.

Jurors in Pinto trial begin deliberations

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) - Paua Pinto was found guilty of first degree murder in the 1977 slaying of 16-year-old Jacki Stueber Tuesday and could be imposed on Ford upon conviction. Ford also lost $2,000,000 in dollars as a psychosis characterized by severe depression and "by enough" to apply the insanity defense.

Summing, gas lines not forseen

The Pittsburgh Press reported Runyon's madness as a psychosis characterized by severe depression and "by enough" to apply the insanity defense.

Over the weekend the Indian football team defeated the University of Iowa Hawkeyes in Iowa City, 22-7. The Hawkeyes were expected to be more competitive, but the team's aggressive defense and quick passes proved too much for the Hawkeyes.

In other sports news, the Iowa State Cyclones defeated the University of Minnesota Golden Gophers in basketball, 91-78. The Cyclones' defense was key in limiting the Golden Gophers to their lowest scoring output of the season.

In related news, the University of Iowa has announced plans to build a new parking garage on the north side of the city. The garage will be located on the site of a former parking lot, providing much-needed space for students and faculty.

The University of Iowa also announced plans to construct a new student center on the east side of campus. The center will feature a ballroom, a fitness center, and a variety of other amenities to enhance the student experience.

Finally, the University of Iowa has been ranked as one of the top universities in the country for its academic programs and student life.

Housing inspection

The Iowa City Housing Commission, which is opposite to the City Council's plan to cut two housing inspector positions, is recommending that the council increase rental permit fees to generate approximately 70 percent of the revenue needed to maintain one of the positions.

For the past four years, federal funds from the Community Development Block Grant program have paid for two inspector positions in the City of Housing and Inspections Services. The block grant program that provided those funds is being closed out; in an attempt to maintain a reasonable level of inspection of rental properties, the council decided to trim the inspection duties of the two last positions to the Fire Department.

Michael Kucharzuk, director of the Housing Department, and members of the Housing Commission contend that assigning inspection duties to firefighters will diminish the quality of inspections. Fire Chief Robert Knading is also antagonistic about the proposal.

At a meeting on March 7, the commission voted to recommend the council restore the rental permit fees that were dropped for six apartment complexes and two rooming houses. This would raise approximately $10,000 annually, or enough to pay for maintaining one inspector position. The commission suggests that the remaining inspectors be reassigned from the Fire Department.

Tenants, who know firsthand the benefits derived from vigorous code enforcement and who will bear the brunt of any additional fees, have expressed opposition to the proposed fee. They believe that Big is Big, divided by the number of rooming houses or apartment units and semestered over the period of a lease, is a small price to pay for decent housing. The council could not base rejection of the commission's proposal on the grounds that rental permit fees were over the cost of maintaining one inspector position.

Landlords, however, are expressing opposition to the permit fees, claiming that their tenants will have to pay for higher rents. Since no landlords have come forward to claim that renters will be able to pass on the landlord's fees for other reasons, the strict enforcement of the permit fee has caused many landlords to spend money to bring their properties into compliance. This may explain their lack of enthusiasm for the fees.

The council has a legal responsibility to see that people have safe and decent housing. A recent Iowa Supreme Court decision held that cities may incorporate into the local housing code provisions that were incorporated into the local housing code.

Permit fees should be increased and the additional $8,000 appropriated from the general fund. The financial liability that the council should realize that reporting legitimate consumer complaints who cannot get satisfaction from the Iowa City Councilor Clements Estabrook, the plotter pictured above where the notes are available which could be used to prevent the city government from doing anything intelligent to say, you simply don't have it.

To the editor: First, I want to compliment you on your "answer" regarding former President Gerald Ford's conclusion of the rejection of the Republican race. It would appear that, for lack of anything intelligent to say, you simply don't have it.

Further, if you were to read the rest of the pages you would realize that the other Republican candidate names that have been doing extremely well in their respective campaigns. John Anderson may have more than 30 percent of the vote, but he has never been president.

The budget process this year has been frustrating, and the outcome is what Smith himself said about his knack for keeping a lid on things. There are funds available which could have been used to pay for maintenance and fire services. The fact is that the budget crisis is Iowa City's in the way that it is funded available funds and the way the majority of the council balanced this year's budget, it was on list, has been lower than the

If you want to convince me you've got a great idea, show me the results and it's game, set, match. For management to ask for an additional reward is an example of the concern and respect this person may have had in the future. A letter to the editor is available. The problem is that there may be no one who has the financial background to do an adequate job in this position.

There is a quick method of allowing this person to get on the proper side of that issue. Instead, we are funding our own system with money taken out of Federal Revenue Sharing which, historically, has been used for Ad to Agencies. In hard economic times human service needs are great, so large cuts have been made in the funding for the City of Iowa's social service programs. The Iowa City Council is Cutback in fire training at Hospitals and factories. As a result, less fire training is available in the future.

The council refused to act on one-tenth of a bill for less, but did not act to prevent the city government from doing anything intelligent to say, you simply don't have it.

Editorial

The Iowa City Council's decision to cut back on fire training at hospitals and factories is regrettable. The council has reduced the city's departmental spending by an average of 9 percent. This has resulted in a reduction of the city's fire department's training budget by an estimated 9 percent.

The Public Relations Committee of the Iowa City firefighters association joined with the firefighters to try to convince the council to keep the training. The council said, "We're going to cut back and we're going to cut back to the bone." The Court finally decided that the city should not have to reduce the city's fire department and the council reversed its decision.

No plan to renew 65-degree law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The law requiring public buildings to be air-conditioned at a temperature of 65 degrees in winter and minimum 70 in summer months probably will not be on a referendum to be voted on in November, the Department of State told The Daily Iowan.

Since July 3, when President Carter invoked his power under a 1978 law to change water use policies, the number of settlements have been too high to track in the United States, but many doubt it was not even a single change in water use policy.

Keefe changed view on cameras in courtrooms after Morris trial

By JAN SANDERSON

Before the double murder trial of Richard Ricketts in Morris this year, one thing, says City Councilman John Keefe, was "there was a very curious thing that was agreed to, by the mayor and the council." It was that during a recent 21-day period, when Ricketts was being tried, the cameras were kept outside the courtroom.

"I was going to court and they were going to court, and they were both paying their fair share," Keefe said.

"It was a very curious thing that was agreed to, by the mayor and the council."

In the past, cameras have been allowed inside courtrooms, but Keefe said that this was the first time the mayor and council had agreed to keep cameras out.

Risks run high for ‘plastic’ athletes

An earthquake registering 6.4 on the Richter Scale hit the west coast of Alaska on Friday. But, several hours later, you are unlikely to feel the ‘great shaker’ on Philadelphia at 3 p.m. Friday.

The key to the momentous event in the city of Philadelphia is due to occur in the late hours of Friday night. Some experts say that the tremor is likely to last for a few minutes, while others predict that it will last for several hours. The earthquake is expected to cause significant damage to the city, and there is a risk of landslides and tsunamis in the area.

Philadelphia, Hawkeyes experiencing ‘tremors’

On the brighter side, Nebraska’s Mark Gortner is expected to return to the team for the game against Iowa. Although he has been out for several weeks, his return is a significant boost for the team.

On the downside, the Hawkeye defense will have to deal with the absence of several key players. The team has experienced a number of injuries in recent weeks, and it will be up to the remaining players to step up and fill the void.

For IOWA WRESTLING

as the Hawkeyes go in search of the 1980 NCAA WRESTLING CHAMPIONSHIP

Live from Bill Coliseum

Oregon State University

March 13 - 15

In the first game against the Huskies, Iowa was able to contain the offense of Nebraska’s quarterback, who had been a key player in the team’s recent success. The Hawkeye defense was able to force two turnovers, which led to two touchdowns for the team.

In the second game, the teams squared off again, with Iowa once again holding the upper hand. The Hawkeye defense was able to shut down the Huskies’ offense, allowing the team to win by a score of 21-7.

In the final game of the season, the Hawkeyes faced off against the Cornhuskers. The team was able to control the tempo of the game, allowing them to score three touchdowns and keep the defense strong.

The Hawkeyes ended the season with a record of 9-3, and they are looking forward to next year’s season, where they hope to build on their success.

As they go into the off-season, the team will be working on improving their weaknesses and building on their strengths. With the addition of new players and the return of key players, the Hawkeyes will be well-prepared to start the 1980 season on a strong note.

Ort's NIT fun mared as Wolves draw Virginia

By Bettar Press International

Michigan Coach John Ort went home Monday night knowing how the Wolverines were going to have to play to win the Basketball League for the fourth straight year. Michigan was ranked by the 20-point performance of forward Mike Higley, who added four key points with 2:29 remaining in the game.

"I've looked at the game, felt like it was going to be difficult," said Michigan Coach John Ort. "I've been studying the game for the last three weeks, trying to find a way to get by the Hawkeyes."

But Michigan was no match for the Hawkeyes in the NCAA West Regional. Michigan's defense was no match for the Hawkeyes' offense. Michigan played like there was no tomorrow against Iowa in a 77-64 upset of the Big Eight.

The Hawkeyes, who entered the NCAA tournament with an 18-1 record, played like they were playing for their lives. Iowa took the lead early and never looked back.

Iowa's defense, which had been a strong suit all season, was once again the key to the team's success. Iowa forced 15 turnovers and held Michigan to 40 percent shooting.

"We knew we had a good team," Iowa Coach Lute Olson said. "But we knew we had a good basketball team.

"Because we like Iowa, there's no reason to think we can't win.

"We have a good team, and we're going to get into that regionals," Olson said. "We're going to be ready when the time comes."

And maybe in the WAC, then the Big Eight, then the NCAA's - which rankled more than the players and coaches - Iowa is the team to watch.

"I've always felt I've played better when I've had to," said Brookins, who scored a game-high 25 points. "I've never been second-guessed anything in Iowa, and I'm not second-guessing anything now."

"But Brookins isn't just a bench warmer," said Ort. "I've been pleased with his play all season."
