Native American culture, law to be presented here

By LEONARD WILLIAMS

A Native American Law Symposium and Powwow, sponsored by the Department of American Indian studies and the Law School, will offer a forum to discuss some of the traditional legal issues of the Native American law. The conference, which is free and open to the public, will be held on Saturday, March 26.

Speakers on the panel will discuss contemporary Indian law. The idea of the law of the land versus the law of the tribe is addressed in one of the sessions. The law of the land pertains to the law of the state or federal government, whereas the law of the tribe pertains to the law that the tribe has in order to regulate the internal affairs of the tribe. The law of the land is also referred to as the government's law, whereas the law of the tribe is referred to as the tribal law. The law of the land is the law that the state or federal government enforces, whereas the law of the tribe is the law that the tribe enforces.

The symposium will also include sessions on the history of Indian law, both local and national. The three sessions will be given by three different groups of Native American lawyers and practitioners. The sessions will be given by the National Indian Law Alliance, the Native American Rights Fund, and the Native American Legal Services.

The purpose of the symposium is to provide a forum for Native American law students and practitioners to discuss the issues of Native American law and to provide a setting for the exchange of ideas and information. The symposium will also provide a setting for the discussion of the history of Indian law and the issues of Native American law and to provide a setting for the exchange of ideas and information. Food price freeze is garbage

The Carter administration is asking the nation's supermarkets to help fight inflation by freezing some food prices for 30 days. Several chains have said they will participate in the freeze, raising the hopes of many that food bills will not increase. Even if stores don't make up the difference now, most won't want to do so later, they say.

People in this city have all watched with amazement as the prices of goods and services have soared. Yet, somehow, Carter administration spokesmen have argued that this problem is not the concern of the government. Instead, they have said that it is a matter for the individual consumer to solve. This is unacceptable to many people. The government must take a more active role in controlling inflation. It is not enough to simply allow the market to operate without any intervention. The government has a responsibility to protect its citizens from the harmful effects of inflation.

To the editor:

I read with interest the recent article about the impact of the Vietnam War on our society. The author provides a detailed analysis of how the war affected different aspects of life, such as economic, social, and political. However, I believe that the article could have included more information about the psychological impact of the war on veterans and their families. The war had a profound effect on the mental health of those who served, and this aspect of the war deserves further exploration.

Injustice

To the editor:

I was saddened to read about the injustice that occurred in the case of Mr. Smith. The judge failed to adequately consider the evidence presented by the defense and instead chose to convict the defendant based on his personal biases. This is a clear violation of the principles of due process and fair trial.

Carver's rocket is on its way down

Going on the nationwide proclamation of a "Day of the Dead" celebration in 1979, a group of people gathered outside the White House to demand that President Carter stop the construction of the Skylab. The protest was led by Juanita Brown, a leader in the anti-war movement. She held a sign reading, "Skylab is not a warship. It is a symbol of our failure in space." The demonstration attracted national attention, and the administration eventually closed down the project.

"If I were a woman, I would not be happy with the status quo, as I believe that it is not only an issue of personal rights, but also a question of social justice. Women deserve to have the same opportunities as men, and to be treated with respect and dignity."

Grassley, Stoner want debate but can't set details

by STEPHEN HARRIS

"It sounds like everybody is passing the buck around," Robert Bradsell, manager for 3rd District Rep. Chuck Grassley's Senate campaign, said last night. Grassley, however, has repeatedly challenged Senator Alan Cranston and President Carter to debates. But no one has negotiated the when, where and how of a debate, and it may be some time before a decision is reached.

SAD TO REVIEW THIS UI CONCERT

BY JUDITH GREEN

This review should be handled in black. Rarely is there an occasion when a review can be written in a manner that obviously embarrassed all its participants as thoroughly as did the audience for the University of Iowa Symphony, orderly my favorite performing group on this campus, makes the task doubly anachronistic.

Begun in 1873, the Orchestra witnessed the arrival of the first train on the main line of the Central Pacific Railroad and the completion of the nation's Great Western Railroad. It set the pace for Iowa City's annual 4th of July celebration, bringing in the spirit of the Fourth. The music was traditional, with a touch of the Men's Choral Society on the program. It was a fitting prelude.

TACTFUL ABORTION has been the topic of debate in recent years, but I had the impression that I was keeping you in the dark about it. The impression is well grounded. A thing to note is that VISTA specializes in "short" services, serving for five months or less.

WHEN THOSE people left that particular event, they had not been able to use the facilities or to receive any sort of help. VISTA organizes a wide range of services and the tenor of their work can be very different.

"Mostly, VISTA works with women, but I have also worked with men and with people with a medical degree or a background in law or the environment. I was at a VISTA program in Kansas City,

But it is not always the case that "We don't have anything better."

"People need to go through the process of understanding whether abortion is something they believe in, or whether it's something that they feel is necessary."

"I prefer to think of going through that process in the context of the community."

Wang mixes China, West in art

By DAME DAVIDSON

"Mother art is hundreds of new ideas, very few good, a few bad. Art, like every human thing has a beginning, a middle and an end, but humanity can't go on for too long from tradition."--Wang, born in 1929 and educated in Taiwan, now an art professor at Old Brick in Boston.

"I was born on an island. I was brought up on an island. I was not raised on the mainland, but raised on an island."--Wang, born in 1929 in Taiwan.

Wang was one of the few Chinese artists who were not trained in art schools in China. His art has always been a mixture of traditional and Western elements.

Wang's work ranges from traditional Chinese painting to abstract modern art. He is known for his use of landscape and seascapes, and his ability to combine traditional Chinese techniques with Western styles.

Wang has lived in the United States for over 30 years, and has exhibited his work all over the world. His work is represented in major museums and collections around the world.

"My work is a combination of traditional Chinese painting and Western art," Wang said. "I want to create a new art that is Chinese and Western at the same time."
The Last Wave (1978) is a study of the police-murray's work in modern British-Atlantic, Australian, and the moments of Carribean influence. In one of the movie's finest scenes, Quinlan is doing is about this film. What is it? It is rare today.

But it's not possible to say the severity of the criminal system, they rate the moral ability of the person that is arrested as very important, with a bond, the ability to get to jail, the bond, and it costs extra money. The bond money will be refunded if the prisoner and then make a bond for each person.

Hawks meet Syracuse in Eastern Regional tilt

PHILADELPHIA — A roar from Blue Knightvill'ers which packed the Convention Center side of the Spectrum Thursday night as they looked across to the New York State team and their motorists.

The New York Times: March 9, 1979

Boeheim has been an Eastern Regional tilt

We're going to have to play very well tonight, Boeheim said. "First of all, we're going to have to surprise him with anything you can.

"Unfortunately, it will be the first time since the last year we've played against the Orangemen in the NCAA tournaments. Boeheim has been an Eastern Regional tilt since beating the Orangemen in 1978.

The Orangemen are led by their big men, Bob and Bouie as well as Coach Jim Boeheim's and Bouie's guards. They need to work together to get a win.

Lester's as good a guard as we've ever had this year. But we're going to have to try and beat him in some way because he's the Orangemen's "big men" of the year.

"It's going to have to be well planned, Boeheim commented on the 1978 Gagarian Cup team.

Lester scored 22 points in both of the previous NCAA tournament games and has been successful, it will turn out to be the greatest things about having Ronnie Woodfleld, a 6-2 junior, averages 12.5 points for the Orangemen.

"I think it should be a very good game," Boeheim said. "We're not going to be a team that stands around and looks at each other."

Although Coach Jim Boeheim's team has been led by their big men, Bob and Bouie, it will turn out to be a very good game, Bob and Bouie's guards.

Lester said the team has been working on their defenses, particularly in the backcourt.

"There are a few things that we're working on today," Lester said. "We're not going to be a team that stands around and looks at each other."
OKLAHOMA State threatened Iowa at nationals

By CLAUDIA RAYMOND

After six weeks of intensified training, the dream was realized in Thursday night's national championship matches. With Iowa leading, 17-16, Oklahoma State would have to rely on its depth to force a third match, and did so with a 22-17 victory.

The dual meet was held at the Shrine Auditorium, with both teams competing hard and taking the overall match by two points. Oklahoma State took the lead after the second period, with a big-time win at 195 pounds, where Mark Stevenson outscored Kareem Tunis, 15-8.

The final match was a battle for the third place, with Oklahoma State winning, 3-2. Oklahoma State's win came as a surprise to many, as the team had been ranked 21st in the nation for several weeks.

The national meet continued with the Women's Division, and the University of Iowa defeated the University of Michigan, 19-5, in the semifinal match. Iowa's continued their dominance in the women's division, and are one step closer to winning the national title.

In the men's division, Oklahoma State was able to upset the University of Minnesota, 22-17, in the semifinals. The team went on to win the championship, defeating the University of California, 31-28. Oklahoma State's win was a surprise to many, as the team had not been ranked in the top 10 for several weeks.

Dick Blum Lowers Himself in Public!
When asked what crazed compulsion drove him to make the pilgrimage to Cork, Dick Blum of Henry Louis, Inc. was quick in his response: "It's wise and thoughtful question for you to have asked! I surmised from your bearing that I could expect as much, and I haven't been disappointed in the least. Quite the contrary in fact. Rarely in casual discourse with a new acquaintance have I beheld such restraint, such dignity, yet such obvious compassion." In short Dick's still full of blarney, but he means every word of it when he says, "Welcome to Henry Louis!
