Fine asked for delay in starting cable TV

By ROD BOSHER

The city's Broadcast Telecommunications Commission Tuesday unanimously recommended that President Donn Brown Jr. not list the issue for cable TV until city and county officials try to work out a way to pay for the system. Blough estimates Hawkeye's parent company, American Electronics Laboratories, will be unable to provide cable TV until after April 10. Blough maintains that Hawkeye is not pressing the city to pay for the system.

The commission recommended that the council hold its decision on the cable TV issue until after April 10. Blough estimates that Hawkeye's parent company, American Electronics Laboratories, will be unable to provide cable TV until after April 10. Blough maintains that Hawkeye is not pressing the city to pay for the system.

NRC investigates Illinois nuke plant gas release

DAN ROTHWELL (UPI) - The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) said Tuesday it was investigating Commonwealth Edison Co.'s claim that a small amount of radiation gas was released into the air from two power reactors at its Dresden Nuclear Power Station.

The bureau expects about 80 percent of the Americium-241 gas to be inhaled by employees, said a spokesman.

The spokesman said the gas was released Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

The spokesperson was not available for comment.

Terrbie attorney asks delay

Defense attorney for first-degree murder suspect Randy Tenant asked the court to delay the trial of his client to a later date.

The trial date was set for April 30 by the judge.

Tenent's attorney, Darrel Andrews, said the trial should be postponed until October due to the time-consuming nature of the case.

The judge granted the defense's request and ordered the case to be continued until October.

I.C. teacher charges racial harassment

By STEPHEN HODGES
Daily Iowan

On March 22, Marla Coleman, an Iowa City elementary school teacher, arrived for work a few minutes before 7 a.m., her 8-year-old daughter in tow. She turned in her car key, retrieved her belongings, opened her door and entered the classroom.

The driver of the yellow car, the car that would eventually become the focus of Coleman's life, had left at around 6:30 a.m. to pick up her daughter. They would not see each other again.

The driver would later be identified as 37-year-old Robert Marlon, a white man with a criminal record. He had been convicted of a minor offense and had served time for a more serious crime.

Coleman, who had been teaching in Iowa City for several years, had just returned to work after a week off. She was the lead teacher at her school and was well-respected by her colleagues and students.

As she walked into her classroom, she noticed something strange. There was a small object on the floor, near the door. She reached down to pick it up, but before she could, Marlon drove his car into the room, locking the door behind him.

Coleman tried to call for help, but her phone was not working. She ran to the front of the room, where she could open the door to the main hallway. She tried to alert other teachers, but Marlon closed the door and locked it again.

The driver used a screwdriver to unlock the door, gaining entry to the classroom. He proceeded to attack Coleman with a knife, stabbing her multiple times.

The driver then left the scene, driving off in a yellow car. Coleman was left alone in the classroom, bloodied and injured.

The driver, Marlon, was not a stranger to violence. He had a history of domestic abuse and had been involved in several violent incidents in the past.

The driver's actions were investigated by local police and the FBI. He was eventually charged with multiple counts of murder, attempted murder, and assault.

The driver was convicted in a court trial and sentenced to life in prison. He is serving his sentence at a maximum security prison in Iowa.

The driver's actions sparked outrage in the Iowa City community. Coleman's family and friends demanded justice for her.

The driver's family also expressed regret for his actions, stating that they never imagined their son would be capable of such violence.

The driver's conviction was seen as a victory for justice, but it also served as a reminder of the dangers that can lurk in our communities.

The driver's actions were a tragedy for Coleman and her family. They were left to cope with the aftermath of their loss.

The driver's actions were a reminder of the importance of being vigilant and aware of our surroundings, especially in our schools.

The driver's actions were a call to action for our communities, to come together and support each other in the face of tragedy.
Future of Iowa is in the soil

The Iowa House has recognized the problem of soil erosion by passing legislation that will help to stem the loss of soil fertility. The bill, House File 2393, is now in the Senate Labor and Industry Committee. The Senate is expected to take action on the bill this week, and if passed, it will go to the governor for consideration.

The bill, sponsored by Senator Merlin Hulse, R-Clarence, recognizes the importance of soil conservation in Iowa. It provides for the establishment of soil conservation districts, which will be responsible for developing and implementing soil conservation plans for individual farms. The bill also includes provisions for the funding of soil conservation programs.

The bill, if passed, will be a significant step forward in addressing the problem of soil erosion in Iowa. It is hoped that it will encourage farmers to take action to protect their land and to ensure that the soil will be preserved for future generations.

Have you ever lied to your boss?

Last Thursday the Iowa House passed a bill that would prohibit Iowa employers from requiring people to take lie detector tests to obtain or keep a job. The bill, House File 239, is now in the Iowa Senate Labor and Industry Committee. If the bill passes, it will be signed into law by the governor.

The bill, sponsored by Senator Merlin Hulse, R-Clarence, recognizes the importance of protecting the rights of workers. It provides that employers may not require lie detector tests as a condition of employment without the written consent of the employee.

The bill, if passed, will be a significant step forward in ensuring the rights of workers in Iowa. It is hoped that it will encourage employers to respect the rights of their employees and to avoid the use of lie detector tests as a means of monitoring their performance.

Budget cut impact estimated

DEE MOSER (UPI) — Proposed federal budget cuts may not cause a drastic drop in state unemployment, but they may render the program less effective.

"We don't know what impact, if any, it may have on the state unemployment program," said a state Department of Labor spokesman. "But we need to decide whether or not to pursue this option." He added that the decision would be made in consultation with other agencies.

The estimated $2.4 million in state revenue for the current fiscal year would be reduced by 10 to 15 percent, depending on the severity of the cut. The state revenue estimate is based on a revised state employees' salaries and a reduced state tax rate.

Drug raids produce 20 arrests

AMES, Iowa (UPI) — Twenty people were arrested early Tuesday in a series of drug raids.

Police said each person arrested was charged with one or more counts of delivery of a controlled substance, methamphetamine, and seven with possession of marijuana. "It's a major operation," the police said. "We're extremely pleased with the results.

One of the raids was conducted early Tuesday morning, near a house, police said. "We believe we're making a significant impact on the local drug problem.

A career in law—without law school.

When I joke that I'm a lawyer for the Institute for Professional Training in coaching Philadelphia, you can tell I'm not exaggerating. I was trained in a law school without law school.

For 7 years, I've been preparing managers of the future for leadership roles without the need for the law school. I've been teaching the different areas of law in a unique program of management training. Since I was a young executive in New York City, I've been working for the corporate world in the city of your choice.

If you have a job in or around the city and are interested in being a better manager of your team, I can work with you to help you learn the basics of legal thinking and management. I can teach you how to manage effectively without requiring the degree of a lawyer.

I have developed a unique program of training that will enable you to manage your company with confidence and competence, without the need for a law degree. My program is specifically designed for managers who are interested in improving their legal knowledge and skills without committing to a full-time law degree program.

I can offer you a program tailored to your specific needs, whether you are a new manager or an experienced one. My program will help you develop the skills and knowledge you need to manage effectively in today's legal environment.

Iowa's women's softball team scored an 11-3 win over Drake on Tuesday at the Kinnick Stadium, Iowa City.

The Hawkeyes won their third straight game, scoring five runs in both the second and third innings.

"We played aggressively in the sixth inning, as we were coming off a win over Drake yesterday," said Ballard. "We had concentration and good communication, and that's what it takes for a winning effort."

Iowa scored for eight runs, including two runs scored by sophomore catcher Sarah Mulloy. The Hawkeyes were led by freshman first baseman Taylor Carney.

Iowa's defense was efficient, as they recorded four outs in the sixth inning. Ballard noted that the Hawkeyes were very prepared to play against Drake.

The Hawkeyes are currently ranked 12 in the Big Ten Conference and are seeking their first team title. They are hoping to continue their winning streak as they face a tough conference schedule.

Rick had only asked, "If you see that's what counselors do, then why not choose your own career?" They can help you plan your career before you graduate. It is precisely the topic of our next issue of "Leader"—the free supplement to your college newspaper from Ford.

Rick got back the answer, "I don't know how counselors can help the mystery out of planning a successful career. But he said, "Well, before you plan your career, there are a few things you should think about. First, you want to know how choosing your career affects your college education. Baseball players vote to start season

Power at the plate, Golden Glove fielding boost baseball hopes

By HOWIE BEARDSLEY

Baseball is too late this time a person is almost guaranteed of hearing the many debates and arguments concerning the length of the regular season. And should Miller. "The players want to demonstrate a show of good faith and that they have made it clear that if there is a continuation of the lockout of the part of the season's games, Miller said. "The players have also told the owners they will strike the owners if May was not a sign of agreement." Injuries sideline two Hawks

Steve light and Jeff Davis have been turned in and out at full back for the past three weeks, and Bob Lang of Monticello will have to make a decision whether to play light or Davis. Dave Oehmig has been appointed at a press conference Tuesday.

Davis, a free-spirited halfback last season, has been hampered by a neck injury sustained in practice last week. He collapsed into a sitting position after the last season's Northwestern game and was carried off the field. Davis was back up late and backed up Sollie and was injured and was expected to return to action against the Huskies.

RETURNING TO lead a much-improved and often unpredictable offense will be veteran quarterback Phil Boster. He backed up Johnnysie continued 67 percent of his throws last year and in No. 1 going into the spring drills. Gradly Barry, who saw some action last season, is listed No. 3.

Phil Blatter and Davey Williams are the top candidates in camp this spring, but Fry recognized a number of top running backs that could enter into the picture next fall. Running back Kenney Harris, who was sidelined last year with back injuries, will participate in spring practice but will not be involved in any contact.

The top receivers will be missed in camp this spring, and Fry explained. Fry said that a definite report on his playing status won't be made until August.

Fry said that a definite report on his playing status won't be made until August. The defensive front has seen experienced players in ends Terry Tippett and Brian Mack, tackles John Hurley and Jim Bass and nose guard Phil Steele. Lieutenant Colonel A. Walton and his juniors return to bolster Iowa's hopes for an improvement on a lost season. The kicking game will probably be an area of concern this spring.

The most noticeable loss in an offense will undoubtedly be All-Iowa offensive right end Mary Kay that had a good season and record a record amount in touchdowns.
