Balmer, legislators clash over bias issue

By STEPHEN HEDGES

Iowa City Mayor John Balmer and state legislators clash over the city's appeal of the state education board's decision to deny a meeting that Balmer said was "time-sensitive." Public employees attitude is not what the percent have been thought to be," Balmer told colleagues Thursday. "There's a silent battle going on."

Since the Convention Center is already under construction, the city will be able to lease the hotel rooms to the State Fair. The city has been negotiating with the State Fair for the past year about the hotel's future use.

When asked why the city did not take action sooner, Balmer said, "I don't know why they didn't do it. I know they didn't do it, but I don't know why they didn't do it.

"I think it has definitely, as far as I know, cost us in the city a lot of money," Balmer said. "I think I could have saved the city a lot of money if I had taken this seriously right away." He said, "I'm a little disappointed about the way the city has handled this."
Trial date reset in Treiber case

by ROY POSTEL

The defense motion filed by C.D. Barksdale, Jr., the man accused of murdering New York City police officer A.L. Crossman earlier this year, was denied yesterday by District Judge William V. Sheehan, who set a trial date of June 3.

In his motion, Barksdale said that the trial should be held in Ohio rather than New York City, where the crime occurred.

Prosecutors have charged Barksdale with murder in the first degree.

Koch calls union demands outrageous, unreasonable

NEW YORK (UPI) - Mayor Edward Koch said Friday that he would not accede to the demands of striking transit workers as they prepare for possible legal action.

"We will not give in to the unreasonable, outrageous and unreasonable demands of the transit workers," Koch said.

The workers have been striking since April 1, and the union has threatened to file a lawsuit if the workers are not returned to work.

Land settlement not final

AUSTIN, Texas (UPI) - The Austin City Council last night granted approval to a $1 million land settlement agreement that will allow the city to acquire land for the new Austin Convention Center.

The agreement calls for the city to purchase 10 acres of land for $1 million and pay the owner, the Austin Convention and Visitors Bureau, an additional $1 million over the next five years.

The city will use the land for the new convention center, which is scheduled to open in 1986.

Independents campaigning on wide range of issues

By NICKY BARMAN

Independent candidates are the freestanding voices on campus. They are a Mayoral critical to any student government and are engaging issues ranging from the role of the Union to whether student senate elections should be "non-partisan".

Storing poisons

Every year the United States produces hundreds of toxic materials, either directly, such as chemicals, or as by-products of various industrial processes. These materials are produced in different facilities and then transported to other locations for safe disposal. The problem is that the toxic materials are often stored in facilities that are not designed to safely store them, and the facilities are often located in areas where they are not readily visible.

In recent years, the government has taken steps to address the issue of toxic material storage. For example, the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA), also known as Superfund, was enacted in 1980 to provide federal funding for the cleanup of hazardous waste sites. However, the fund has not been sufficient to address all the problems, and many sites remain contaminated.

The issue of toxic material storage is not just a matter of environmental policy, but also a matter of public safety. In recent years, there have been several incidents where toxic materials have leaked or spilled, leading to serious health risks for people living near the sites.

The problem of toxic material storage is complex and multifaceted. It requires a combination of policy solutions, such as better regulation of the facilities and better funding for cleanup, as well as public education and outreach to inform people about the risks.

The issue of toxic material storage is also a matter of social justice, as it disproportionately affects communities of color and low-income communities. These communities are more likely to live near sites that store hazardous materials, and they are also less likely to have the political power to advocate for change.

The issue of toxic material storage is a difficult one that requires a long-term commitment to address. It is not a problem that can be solved quickly, but it is a problem that must be addressed if we are to protect the health and safety of all Americans.

HEC budget runs in the red

The Hocking Educational Commission is currently operating with an $8,050 deficit. Currently, Superintendent Steve Kallock and the Hocking Educational Commission have been working hard to reduce the deficit to make sure that the district is running smoothly.

In order to meet the challenge of running the district on a limited budget, the Hocking Educational Commission is looking at ways to reduce costs. This includes reviewing staffing levels, reducing the amount of travel for staff members, and looking for ways to reduce the cost of supplies.

Despite the challenges, the Hocking Educational Commission is committed to providing a quality education to all students. The district has a long history of success, and the staff are dedicated to ensuring that all students have the opportunity to succeed.

The district has been working hard to reduce the deficit, and it is hopeful that the district will be able to eliminate the deficit in the near future.

HEC's budget situation is not unique, as many school districts across the country are facing similar challenges. However, the Hocking Educational Commission is committed to doing everything it can to ensure that all students have the opportunity to succeed.

The district is grateful for the support of the community, and it is counting on the community to help it meet the challenge of running the district on a limited budget.

Cleveland schools in trouble for bus snafu

CLEVELAND (UPI) - A group of Cleveland high schools, upset over the difficulties they have experienced with the school bus transportation program, will ask the school board to consider hiring an executive who will be responsible for the bus system.

The group of about 10 Cleveland high school students met with board members earlier this week to discuss their concerns.

"We have been very frustrated with the bus service," said one of the students.

The students said they have been forced to miss classes and other activities because of the unreliable bus service.

They want the school board to hire a new director who will be responsible for the bus system.

Historian Nye says photography provides most realistic memory

By GORDY SCHROEDER

"The invention of photography, which brought into existence a new, permanent type of record, was almost certainly the most important single event in the history of modern civilization," according to cultural historian Ralph Nye. "Photography, almost literally lit up the world. It brought a public notice to the art that I last week. Since that time, man's mind has been altered in such a manner that it will never be the same."

The book written more than 10 books, including Beyond Realism, Ralph Nye, for which he received the 1992 Pulitzer Prize for biography. During his visit to the state he spoke to classes and gave two press conferences.

"There are more cameras and cameras in commerce in this country than there are in all the world combined, that are in operation today," said Nye. "And it's interesting to note that the number of photographs that are being made each year in the United States is the equivalent of the total number of all the poems that have ever been written in the history of Western civilization." During his visit to the state he spoke to classes and gave two press conferences.

Study: Tobacco use lowest since 1898

WASHINGTOH (AP) - U.S. adults consumed 7.9 percent fewer cigarettes in 2007 than they have in the past three decades when the smoking rate was highest. Tobacco consumption last year was calculated for the Agriculture Statistics Board by the National Center for Health Statistics, which released the figures, said that the rate of cigarette smoking dropped by 7 percent in the last three decades from about 42 percent to about 35 percent.

The last time adult smoking rates were as low as this was in 1965, according to the National Cancer Institute.

The report is the latest in a series of reports on smoking in the United States from the National Cancer Institute, which is part of the National Institutes of Health. The institute said that the smoking rate has dropped by about 50 percent since the late 1960s, when smoking was more popular than it is today.

The latest report, which is based on data from the National Health Interview Survey, found that the smoking rate among adults dropped from about 42 percent in 1965 to about 35 percent in 2007.

The report also found that the smoking rate among children dropped from about 30 percent in 1965 to about 12 percent in 2007.

Budget head stresses gravity of recession

WASHINGTON (AP) Congress Budget Director Alan Greenspan said Friday in a news conference that America will have a "serious recession" this year.

Greenspan, who heads the Congressional Budget Office, said he does not expect the situation to be as bad as it was in 1981—when the nation was in recession—and 1986—when the economy was in a deep recession.

But, he said on the CBC's "The National" program, "If we're going to have a recession, it will probably be a very short, shallow recession, but the risk is that it might be a little bit deeper than that." He added that the economy's "resilience is not as strong as it used to be when it was growing at 4 percent per year."

In a separate interview on ABC's "This Week," President Ronald Reagan said the country was "in a recession" and that the economy was "in a mess." He added that he was "very concerned" about the economy.

The Iowa baseball team's victory over the Penn State Nittany Lions was a welcome relief for the Hawkeyes after a tough 0-5 road trip. Starting pitcher Randy Hood struck out five and walked two in six innings of work.

The Hawkeyes took the first game of the doubleheader 3-2, giving them a 2-1 lead in the series. With the win, the Hawkeyes improved to 18-12 overall and 6-7 in the Big Ten.

In the first game, the Hawkeyes scored all three runs in the fifth inning on a two-run home run by first baseman Bill Wilson and a sacrifice fly by left fielder Ken Taylor. The Nittany Lions couldn't逆转 the momentum, as they scored only one run in the fourth inning on a sacrifice fly by center fielder Lantz.

In the second game, the Hawkeyes took control early, leading 3-0 after the first inning. They added another run in the third on a RBI single by catcher Ken Taylor. The Nittany Lions scored their only run of the game in the fourth inning on a solo home run by first baseman Bob Elde.

The Hawkeyes secured the victory with a three-run fifth inning, highlighted by a three-run home run by first baseman Bill Wilson. This home run clinched the series for the Hawkeyes and gave them a commanding lead in the Big Ten standings.

The Hawkeyes are now 6-7 in conference play, and they will look to continue their winning ways as they gear up for the remainder of the season.
Defense pleases Silas as Seattle series over scappy Blazers

HOUSTON (AP) - Center Dennis Johnson scored 20 points and added 20 rebounds as the Houston Rockets outscored the Kansas City Kings 114-99 Sunday, April 12 to give good pressure anytime a Blazers coach went back and forth to the bench.

The Kings went into the series with their best record of any playoff series. But with Atlanta playing 8-9 in two points, it just took control as Johnson, who had 21 points in the first half, set aside the series, and Seattle's Alcindor was victorious.

students: On Wednesday, April 9, you will find a ballot in your Daily Iowan. This simple clip-out ballot will give you the opportunity to voice yourself on the proposed changes in general education (core and skills) requirements. This ballot will be presented to the faculty by the Liberal Arts Student Association at the faculty discussions of the proposed changes next Thursday. Your student input will be used to determine if a ballot for the students will be held. We're asking for your help to promote ballot voting. If you decide to fill out and return your ballot, you will have the only chance to change these requirements. Here's why: Most of the classes you have to take in your degree are required.
