Peek pressure could be reason for fewer false alarms at UI

By Ulysses Aviles

The number of false fire alarms and resulting fires at the University of Iowa has dropped in the past year. The decline may partly be due to a fire prevention campaign at the UI and local Iowa City officials.

The number of false alarms from the UI system declined from 286 in 1979 to 197 in 1980. In 1979, 76 of the 286 false alarms were incorrect, and 21 were forwarded to the hospital. In 1980, 58 of the 197 false alarms were incorrect, and 17 were forwarded to the hospital.

In 1980, the UI and local officials began a fire prevention campaign with the goal of reducing false alarms and improving the accuracy of alarms.

"In 1980, we started a fire prevention program," said Hauserman. "We made sure everyone knew the importance of the emergency phone number and the importance of being accurate with the information you give."
How past GOP candidates fared

A group of Whig, Democratic and Free Democrats — all opposed to slavery — vied against each other in the 1850s to become the party of the Union. After the Civil War, Republicans dominated the political scene until the 1960s, when the party was divided over the Vietnam War. Since then, the party has been in and out of power, with the most recent victory coming in 2016 under Donald Trump.

The U.S. press and Afghanistan

By PAUL DOUGLASS

The American press has long been biased in its coverage of Afghanistan. However, the "partial" resolution of this supposedly irreparable problem may be positively resolved. The "free press" has deliberately and consistently lied to the American people about the situation in Afghanistan. We have made the mistake of believing the American people are marksmen, and that they will act accordingly. We have done this, in part, because we believe that the American people are marksmen, and that they will act accordingly. We have made the mistake of believing that the American people are marksmen, and that they will act accordingly. We have made the mistake of believing that the American people are marksmen, and that they will act accordingly. We have made the mistake of believing that the American people are marksmen, and that they will act accordingly.

Reorganization of planning agency may save money

Early reports indicate Johnson County may save at least $60,000 on planning this fiscal year after the adoption of the Johnson County Regional Planning Commission.

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors is considering a reorganization of the county's planning department and is expected to make a decision in an early meeting. The board is looking at the possibility of forming a Regional Planning Commission and the city council is expected to make a decision in a meeting in early February to consider the cost of creating a Regional Planning Commission.

The commission would be responsible for overseeing the development of the Johnson County Regional Planning Commission and serving as a regional planning agency, according to a tentative budget proposal. The money would be allocated for planning in fiscal year 1981, only if the commission is formed, and would be used to support the planning effort.

The Iowa City Council and the Coralville City Council have yet to be consulted on the matter, according to a tentative budget proposal. A meeting was held on Tuesday to discuss the issue, and the commission would be expected to make a decision in a meeting in early February.
