Reagan names Bush VP

Announcement caps nightlong talk of a Ford ticket

Robert Boston

The Republican National Convention in Cleveland demonstrated that Ronald Reagan's nomination as the GOP presidential candidate, following the announcement made last week by his vice presidential candidate George Bush, is likely to have a solid, if not overwhelming, margin of support. The convention's theme, "Yes, We Can,

Iowa City's residents are overwhelmingly behind the new management that is taking over the Lakeside Manor Apartments. Lakesiders are keenly aware that the new management and the city of Iowa City have been working closely to ensure the best possible living conditions for the residents. The new management team has already implemented several improvements, and there is excitement among the residents about the future of Lakeside Manor.

Interior protection for kitchen heat

by Cathy Schenkel

The Lakeside Manor Apartments in Iowa City are taking steps to ensure the safety and comfort of their residents. One of the measures they have taken is to install protective barriers around the kitchen area to prevent accidents. They have also worked closely with the city of Iowa City to make sure that all necessary improvements are made. The efforts of the management team have been appreciated by the residents, who see it as a sign of their commitment to providing a safe and pleasant living environment.

Undergraduate freshmen tempted by alcohol

by Craig Sengstrom

The university students who attend the Iowa State University are facing a challenge as they make the transition from high school to college. One of the challenges they may face is the temptation to experiment with alcohol. According to the university's health center, 20% of undergraduate freshmen have been tempted by alcohol, and 50% of these students have experimented with it. The university is taking steps to address this issue, including offering resources and support to help students make informed decisions.

Jets nearly collide

The new schedule of flights seems to be working quite well. The 50-50 split between the two main airlines in the United States is likely to remain in place. The National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) has been monitoring the flights, and they've been reporting that the planes are flying safely. The NTSB is a government agency that investigates accidents and issues safety recommendations. They are currently investigating a near-collision between two planes, but so far, they've been able to keep the planes safely separated.

Trucks on the bikeway

The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) has released a statement about the recent collision between a truck and a plane on the bikeway. The FAA is investigating the incident to determine the cause and take necessary actions to prevent similar accidents in the future. The agency is collaborating with the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB) to conduct the investigation.

Draft registration

Registration for a possible military draft will affect approximately three million men who will be affected. The Defense Department has announced that the registration process will begin in early September. The purpose of the draft registration is to provide a list of eligible men in case of a future war. The registration process includes providing personal information such as name, address, and height.

Reference in the place

A reference is a type of document that is used to verify the qualifications and experience of a candidate. It is an important part of the job application process and can help employers make informed decisions about who to hire. The reference can be either a written letter or a phone call, and it is typically sent to a potential employer by the candidate.

Weather

22 degrees C (93 F)

The forecast shows a high of 22 degrees Celsius (93 degrees Fahrenheit) for today. It's a beautiful day for outdoor activities, whether it's a picnic, a walk, or a bike ride. The sky is clear, and there is a gentle breeze. The weather is perfect for enjoying the outdoors.

Briefly

Iran trials this week

‘This week’s’ coverage in the newspaper shows that trials would begin this week against some of Iran’s leaders. An announcement regarding the conduct of high-ranking officials was expected.

The announcement of public trials followed the try to resolve the issue of the hostage-taking at the Iranian Embassy in Lebanon, an agreement that would end the chaos and ensure the safety of the hostages. However, the nature and scope of these trials are expected to be broader than initially anticipated.

Air controller cited in jet near-collision

The ’Air’ control cited in the jet near-collision was identified as John Warner. The incident occurred on Tuesday, according to Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) sources.

Ken Pothier, FAA Great Lakes Regional Director, said, “A collision was averted by a quick response.” He added, “The controller recognized the potential for disaster and worked to resolve the situation.”

The controller, working at a radar screen, watched two jets fly close to each other. He warned the pilots, helping to avoid a disaster. The FAA is investigating the incident.

Warner to do one for the old Glpper

Ronald Reagan, President, signed an order to halt the construction of the old computer system for the National Park Service, due to its outdated technology and inefficiency.

Rebuilding efforts in the area devastated last summer by Hurricane Andrew would further polarize feelings and slow the process of recovery. Officials said.

The efforts to rebuild will face challenges, including the need for increased funding and the political ramifications of the decision. However, the president’s action is an important step in the recovery process.

More conscientious objectors seen

by Leon Garret

Senior Staff Writer

On Monday (9 and 10-20) will begin registration for a possible draft, but this time, several, a member of the Association of Campus Ministries, and he expects there will be more private declaring themselves as conscientious objectors than there were during the Vietnam war.

Registration for a possible military draft will affect approximately 1,200 19- and 20-year-olds who will attain the U.S. legal voting age.

A conscientious objection is "a person who refuses to perform one's conscription obligations on the grounds of moral or philosophical reasons."

Accordingly, the draft board would allow conscientious objectors claims to be made, however, said. Rather than have a valid claim, it is necessary to document the claim later. So Garret said.

He said one way for people to do this is to fill out the draft form and then fill out the draft form.

The form is required to be filled out by the local church or on file at the Selective Service Board and retaining a copy in a locked box.

To become a conscientious objector, a person must mail a letter to themselves stating against war to a central committee.

For a possible military draft, the time element has been emphasized. The last day night at the Wesley Foundation to begin filling out the draft form is July 27 through July 29. registration card for declaring eligible person will begin filling out the draft form. The draft form is available at most area churches or at the Selective Service Board.

The trucks are "purely military," Garret said.

Poverty: A North-South crisis

Michael M. Levy, prize-winning editor of The Daily Iowan (Dubuque, Iowa), was featured last month at a great conference in New York. The conference was called "The Future of the Family" and was attended by government leaders and social activists from around the world.

Levy has long been a vocal advocate for the poor and the disenfranchised, especially those who are struggling to make ends meet. His passionate speeches and articles have inspired many to action and have helped bring attention to the critical issues facing those in poverty.

In his talk at the conference, Levy emphasized the need for a renewed commitment to addressing poverty in the United States. He pointed out that poverty is not just a problem for individuals and families, but for entire communities. He called for a comprehensive approach that includes strategies for economic development, education, health care, and social services.

Levy also spoke about the role of government and the importance of public policies that promote social justice and economic opportunity. He argued that the current system is failing too many people and that we need a bold new approach that prioritizes the needs of the most vulnerable.

Levy concluded his talk by urging everyone to join in the fight against poverty. He said that the future of our country depends on our ability to address this issue and that we cannot afford to ignore the struggles of those in poverty.

Levy's words have resonated with many, and his call to action continues to inspire people throughout the country.
Inflation

The inflation rate for the year is a significant concern. According to statistical data, inflation has reached an all-time high, affecting the buying power of citizens. The official statistics show a 10% increase in prices compared to the previous year, making it a major challenge for both consumers and businesses. It is crucial to adapt to these changes and adjust our financial strategies accordingly.

Lakeview

Lakeview is a charming neighborhood known for its quiet streets and close-knit community. Despite the recent influx of new residents, the neighborhood has maintained its charm and remains a popular choice for those seeking a peaceful living environment.

The Heat

The heat remains a persistent issue in the region. Many residents are facing power outages and increased energy costs due to the high temperatures. The city is working on implementing more efficient cooling systems to mitigate this problem.

Orientation

The Orientation Office at the university is currently addressing concerns raised by the employees. The office is conducting thorough investigations and ensuring that all employees are informed about their rights.

Side Walk Special

On the sidewalk of the university campus, a special event is taking place. The event features live music and food, providing a welcoming atmosphere for students and faculty alike.

Money Market Certificates

Money Market Certificates offer a low-risk investment option with competitive returns. As of today, the interest rate is 5.5%, making it an attractive choice for those looking to grow their savings.

2% Yr Certificates of Deposit

Can drive for diabetes nets $1,352

A service called "Can Drive" operated more than $1,200 last weekend for the Iowa City chapter of the American Diabetes Association, according to Barbara Reckten, executive director of the Iowa City chapter. The drive resulted in the purchase of more than 300 cans of food, which were turned in Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The funds will be used to help pay for the program. The chapter has a goal of raising $5,000 by the end of the year.
