Steps taken to cut heat at Oakdale

By Cindy Schneidmiller

The 22 Oakdale Hospital dietary employees who filed a grievance with their employer over high temperatures in their working area received a response Tuesday that everything possible had been done to make their working area comfortable.

"We have maintained the department, checked out cool systems," Ira Rines, AFSCME Local 12, said that citing the article and notice is sufficient. "We usually respond at the hearing as opposed to going through the grievance process."

Article 12, Section 2 of the AFSCME contract lists the rights of workers to make changes in the workplace that they feel are necessary to improve conditions.

Rines said that dietary employees have grievances concerning their working environment at Oakdale Hospital.

But Swain said, "That's basically accurate. Now I don't think they have documentation on that."

"We keep having a thermostat fight over one of the grills, and they've been taking temperatures from that," she said. "I think they might not even have one there, it's not a representation of reality.

"We consider air conditioning to the area," she said. "Oakdale Direct Ray appoints a new regent before that and they are trying to make us resubmit the grievance." She said the proposals are to get extra fans which have been set up in the area, "We ordered extra fans which have been set up in the area," she said. "If the temperature in the kitchen and dining area continues to be uncomfortable, we will be taking action.

The board has since been governed by the same residency policy, he said. "Any time you have a new employee, they have seven days to decide whether to continue to work at Oakdale."

"It looks like the infusion is having a positive effect -- even the most senior employee has gone from 90 to a comfort level of 85," he said.

By Craig Gentzler

UI Registrar W. A. Cox said that changes with regard to residency being considered by state officials could mean that UI students could make the same changes to their residency that UI instructors have made.

The new UI policy, he said, "If a person coming to the University of Iowa has some other state residency and we do that, it looks like the infusion is having a positive effect -- even the most senior employee has gone from 90 to a comfort level of 85," he said.

No role for doctors

The death penalty is enjoying a new surge of popularity as the death rate of executions escalates. However, doctors are asking whether their role should be of state executor. The death of victims is always seen as an act of retribution, and doctors are increasingly question if they should act as doctors or executioners. The medical profession must value its own code of ethics above the vague and shifting stances of government. The death penalty is a decision made by state government, and doctors are rightfully asking whether their role should be to execute or to care for the victims.

The caesarean choice

A mother's choice of labour is a personal one, and doctors should respect the woman's decision. The choice of caesarean section must be made by the woman and her doctor, and not by doctors overseeing the medical profession. The medical profession must value its own code of ethics above the vague and shifting stances of government. The death penalty is a decision made by state government, and doctors are rightfully asking whether their role should be to execute or to care for the victims.

Countering reader's criticism of media coverage of Afghanistan

Letters

It could well be only a handful, I Rather reported.

The intrusion of cameras is an "unwanted" intrusion that would be better spent on changing and improving the system. Television cameras are strapped to the hands of the Mujahideen (the rebels.) The parallel is often drawn to My President Carter had not yet established an "unwanted" parallel. Perhaps the only thing that is intolerable is that the Mujahideen are supposed to have. There are two big problems with the Mujahideen. First, he test us of discrepancies that he would not allow were Reagan himself to be incompetent every time he spoke. The officials in the State Department may have been "unwanted" in Afghanistan, but they were not the only ones involved in the process as a whole.

Local Republican conventions delayed
by Stephen Plogoff

The Republican candidates were not, as expected, the most popular choice for many local Republican conventions over the weekend.

Democratic Representative Johnnie Towle, who was in attendance at the convention in Coralville, said, "I am happy to see the level of interest in the upcoming Republican primary." Towle added, "I hope that this level of interest will continue throughout the campaign season." Towle also expressed his support for his opponent, Republican Representative Jim McMillan, stating, "I believe that we can work together to ensure a strong Republican presence in the upcoming elections." Towle emphasized the importance of unity within the Republican Party, stating, "We must work together to ensure a strong Republican presence in the upcoming elections." Towle concluded by urging the delegates to "vote their conscience and support the candidate of their choice." Towle was joined by his running mate, Republican Representative Jerry McManus, who also expressed his support for the primary candidates.

Although the delegates expressed their support for the primary candidates, the convention was marked by a high level of interest and enthusiasm, with many attendees expressing their desire to see a strong Republican presence in the upcoming elections. The convention concluded with a round of applause for Towle and McManus, who were both elected to represent the fourth district in the upcoming elections.

Coralville Council postpones vote to put hotel-motel tax on ballot by Joel Park

The Coralville City Council postponed a vote on Tuesday to put a hotel-motel tax on the ballot in November, according to City Manager Bob Wheeler.

Wheeler said the council postponed the vote to allow more time for discussion and to ensure that all members of the council are fully informed about the tax.

"We need more time to consider the implications of this tax," Wheeler said.

The tax, if approved, would generate revenue for the city to fund a new hotel-motel, which would be used to accommodate guests of the hotel-motel.

The council's vote to postpone the tax vote was not unanimous, with some members expressing concern about the potential impact on local businesses.

"I think this tax is a good idea," Wheeler said.

The postponed vote means that the council will likely continue to discuss the tax at future meetings, with a final vote expected in the coming weeks.

Swimmer shatters 1,500-meter mark

Moscow (UPI)-- Vladimir Salnikov became the first person to swim 1,500 meters inside Moscow Sunday when he hit the pool in 14 minutes and 58.21 seconds off American Brian Goodell's hour-old record.

Salnikov's record -- the equivalent of an American's hour-mile -- was easily within reach of the lifetime mark he set when he broke it 11 days ago.

In the eighth minute Salnikov reached the Soviet Union's milestone against his own record with 1,185.68 meters to go. He had been training for 14 days and was determined to bring his mark to 1,600 meters.

Twice before Salnikov had swum the pool in Moscow, once in 1974 and once in 1977, the second time with a 1,498.27 record. It was a 50 meters shorter 1,500-meter test.

Salnikov, 19, who trains in the morning and swims 14 times a day, said he was not used to swimming 1,500 meters but he was now or never, and he decided to give it a try.

The time was among the best recorded for the world's top swimmers in that event.

The pool in Moscow is 25 meters wide and 1.5 meters deep.

In light of the recent heat wave that has hit the Midwest, athletes should be warned of the possibility of heat exhaustion. The National Weather Service has issued a heat advisory for the region, and athletes should take precautions to avoid heat-related injuries.

The advisory is in effect until further notice, and the National Weather Service recommends that athletes take the following steps to stay safe in the heat:

1. Stay hydrated: Drink plenty of fluids before, during, and after exercise.
2. Wear appropriate clothing: Light, loose-fitting, and breathable clothing is best.
3. Avoid strenuous activity during the hottest parts of the day.
4. Take breaks in the shade: If possible, take breaks in the shade or air conditioning.

By following these guidelines, athletes can stay safe and avoid the risks associated with heat exhaustion.

In the heat, athletes should be aware of the signs of heat exhaustion, which include:

- Headache
- Dizziness
- Nausea
- Fatigue
- Fast heartbeat

If an athlete experiences any of these symptoms, they should stop exercising and seek medical attention immediately.

In addition, athletes should be aware of the dangers of heat illness, which can range from mild to severe.
