Carter: 'Billygate' affair is not illegal

WASHINGTON (UPI) President Carter told jittery Democrats Tuesday there was nothing illegal or improper in brother Billy's dealings with the Libyan government, and sought to assure them there will be no shocking revelations.

At a breakfast meeting with congressional leaders, Carter said he is "prepared to lay the full record before Congress and the American people," according to House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas.

"He said there was absolutely no illegality involved or impropriety," Wright said. "And, if there were any mistakes in judgment by his brother, so be it.

"He said nobody need have any fear about any revelations that might come out."

Meanwhile, inquiries into what Republicans call "Billygate" mushroomed. Junior Democratic congressmen fearful the affair could sink the president's re-election campaign against Ronald Reagan and perhaps their own futures as well - kept looking for an alternative candidate.

THE HOUSE Foreign Affairs Committee gingerly moved ahead and approved a resolution of inquiry directing the White House and Justice Department to provide full details.

But a House vote was put off until after the Democratic National Convention and will not be acted on if the White House voluntarily complies with terms of the resolution. The Justice Department already has done so.

The investigation centers on whether Billy Carter had any influence on U.S. policy after accepting $220,000 in loans from the Libyan government.

Questions also have been raised about Billy's contacts with Zbigniew Brzezinski, the president's foreign policy adviser, and the circumstances that led Billy to declare he had acted as an agent of the Libyan government.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chairman of a special Senate panel investigating Billy Carter, and Sen., Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., ranking Republican on the committee, both said President Carter would be called to testify.

THURMOND, in an interview with Cable News Network, said the committee would subpoena the president if necessary.

"It may be necessary to do it," Thurmond said. "All I want is to get at the truth, and if I feel it's necessary to subpoena anyone, including the president, I will favor doing it.

At a breakfast session, Bayh said Carter would not be called until after the Democratic National Convention, which ends Aug. 15, because the panel has "to do a lot of homework" first. He also said that if the panel does not complete its work by Oct. 4 when an interim or final report is due, the investigation will be suspended until after the Nov. 4 elections

Bayh said his panel is sending a letter to Carter asking for "all the information he has on the See Billy, page 6

I.C. police seek fuel-efficient cars

by Kevin Kane

The Iowa City Police Department is currently seeking bids from area car dealers to replace 10 full-sized patrol cars with more fuel-efficient, midsized cars this fall, Police Chief Harvey Miller said Tuesday.

But bid specifications, which call for a maximum engine size of 350 cubic inches, do not necessarily exclude the purchase of full-sized cars, Miller said.

"I'm in favor of getting the best possible equipment for the money," he said. "If a mid-size car provides that for us, then I'm all in favor of downsizing our automobiles.'

Despite the fact that mid-sized cars purchased by the department in 1975 'did not effect any appreciable savings in fuel costs," Miller said he was confident the lighter 1981 models could provide those savings.

MILLER said he ruled out the possibility of purchasing compact cars because they lack adequate interior

"They're somebody's office for eight hours a day and they're just too damned crowded," he said.

Despite a sharp decline in national corporate sales for the third quarter of fiscal 1980, Sheller-Globe Corp. in Iowa City is "now hiring right off the street," Sheller-Globe's Iowa City general manager Max Hays said Mon-

Hays said the current hiring wave is in response to the growing demand for automobile parts and accessories created by the production of new car ment, thus bringing about the open hir-models scheduled to begin this fall. Sheller-Globe - a manufacturer of automobile accessories such as armrests, steering wheels and dash boards — laid off 250 of its employees in April, and had shut down production for two weeks at the end of June, Hays

ALL OF the employees laid off during both periods were eligible to return to their former jobs, Hays said, but a number decided to seek other employ-

Hays said he had "no idea" how many employees his company will hire now because, "It's rather unpredictable at this time.'

Hayes was skeptical, however, about future employment opportunities at Sheller-Globe, which are dependent upon the success of domestic automobile manufacturers.

'No, I don't feel the auto industry is beginning to come around," he said. 'This (current hiring) is just a 'fill the pipe' type of thing.'

heaviest before the opening of the new car season, he said. Hays declined speculation of how long the positions currently being filled would last.

NATIONAL sales statistics released last week by Sheller-Globe's corporate headquarters in Toledo, Ohio, would seem to corroborate Hay's cautious assessment of the company's future.

On July 22, the corporation reported sales that declined by $46.4 million in

UI will have waiting list of 700 for dorm rooms

by Cecily Tobin

All UI dormitory housing will be allocated by Aug. 1, and 700 students who applied for rooms will be on a waiting list, according to George Droll, acting director of UI Residence

Droll said all incoming freshmen and all previous dormitory residents who applied during the March reapplication period will receive room assignments. But transfer students and upperclassmen who did not live in the dormitories last year will be assigned to rooms only as cancellations are received after Aug. 1, Droll said.

"We will be totally dependent on cancellations that come in," Droll said. 'We will be assessing daily our ability to make assignments to those on the waiting list and will do so as quickly as

STUDENTS on the waiting list are ranked according to the date their housing applications were received. Those who applied after May 20 will not receive assignments until all other applicants are assigned to rooms,

Droll said Margaret Van Oel, Residence Services housing assigment manager, said the UI will house the maximum number of students this fall - 5,600 in dormitories, 448 in temporary housing and 72 in the Mayflower Apartment

Rooms in the Mayflower were offered to students who lived in the dorms before and reapplied for housing last March, Droll said, But only half of the 72 have accepted the assignments so far, he added. If there are still openings in the apartment building after Aug. 1, they will be offered to students on the waiting list, Droll said. "OUR INTENT is that there will be no freshmen assigned rooms at Mayflower" because it is important that they receive all of the benefits of dormitory living, Droll said. The UI leased one floor in the Mayflower Apartment building, located at 1110 N. Dubuque St., in June because of the increased demand for dormitory housing. The number of freshmen admitted to the UI for the coming academic year is 23.5 percent above what it was a year ago, said John Cox, associate director of admissions.

Cox said 2,800 freshmen attended UI summer orientation this year, which indicates that about 3,200-3,300 will begin school here this fall. Bruce Michaels, coordinator of the UI Housing Information Clearinghouse, said it has been an "extremely busy"

Few mourn shah CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) - Shah Mohammed

Reza Pahlavi, who once proclaimed himself the king of kings, went to an exile's grave Tuesday, mourned by just a handful of former leaders and by only one of the nations that had called him a friend. Spectators were sparse and appeared unmoved.

Briefly

Ex-President Richard Nixon and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, the only world leader to stand by the shah during 18 months of sickness and scorn, led the former imperial family in a solemn procession past curious but undemonstrative Cairo crowds.

The shah was taken to the 19th century Al-Rifaie Mosque and laid to rest in a perfumed grave with full military honors.

Nixon and deposed King Constantine of Greece were among the few foreign mourners. Notably absent were the heads of state of the shah's one-time allies, who Sadat bluntly told not to come. The United States was represented by its ambassasdor to Egypt, Alfred Atherton

6 local Clark gas stations closed abrubtly after losses

by Jodi Park Staff Writer

Six Clark gas stations in Linn and Johnson counties were abruptly closed Monday by company officials because it was not "economically feasible" to operate them, Clark company officials said Tuesday.

Company representatives met station managers at the six Clark stations in Cedar Rapids, Coralville and Marion when they arrived to open for business Monday morning and told them the stations had been closed. The company's regional office in Cedar Rapids was also closed Monday.

According to W. J. LaBadie, vice president for administration at Clark corporate headquarters in Milwaukee, Wis., the company has been evaluating the company-owned stations for the past 11/2 years on a district-by-district basis, analyzing which stations were profitable and which of those losing money could be made profitable.

"WE DO THIS periodically," LaBadie said. "If the station is not profitable, we analyze the station to see what is causing the problem. If it is something that can't be helped, we close it."

Although the analysis has been going on for the last 11/2 years, LaBady said the stations were not officially notified until yesterday morning that they would be closing.

Gary Ruppert, manager of Chuck's Clark station at 504 E. Burlington St. in Iowa City, said his station was not ordered closed because he leased the station from the company and the lease does not expire until Ruppert said he expects to operate the station until the lease expires, but he added, "It's pretty much up in the air right now. We're still not sure what's going to happen." He said the company must give him 90 days notice if they attempt to terminate the lease before it expires.

A CLARK sales representative who notified Coralville Manager Craig Christensen of the closing Monday said he arrived at the station about 5:30 a.m. Monday and the station was officially closed at

The representative, who asked not to be identified, said he "didn't know much more in advance than they did," but added that the station manager didn't seem surprised at the news.

Christensen could not be reached for comment. LaBadie said that station managers were aware of the district-by-district analysis, and therefore were prepared for the closing. But he did say the company had a reason for giving the official word so sud-

'If you tell people about it in advance, they might not care what happens at the station and profits would go down even more," LaBadie observed.

LaBadie said that the station managers, who are employees of Clark, would receive severance pay and be offered available positions at Clark stations

Area housing allows kids, despite national trend

by Ann Mittman

Special to The Daily Iowan

The number of Iowa City and Coralville apartment complexes that exclude families with children has not increased in the past few years - defying national trends, a UI study has Almost half of Iowa City and Coralville's apartment complexes do not rent to families with children, according to a UI Housing Information Clearinghouse study — no change from figures for the last few years, Iowa City housing officials say,

But a recent study by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development found that nationwide the number had increased 9 percent since

The clearinghouse gathered information from 116 apartment complexes in Iowa City and Coralville in July, and of the 116 surveyed, 52 reported they would not rent to families with

OF THOSE complexes not renting to families with children, 29 have two or more bedrooms, according to the sur-

Lyle Seydel, Iowa City housing coordinator, said, "The availability of rental units for families is no more a problem than it has been in the past."

Seydel said that the availability of children, he or she considers several units that rent to families follows the law of "supply and demand."

"Contractors in this area check the market before building and they know there is a demand for two- and threebedroom apartments," he said.

Because of the demand, Seydel said that he does not think there has been a decline in the number of family rental units in the last few years.

Bruce Michaels, coordinator of the clearinghouse, said he has not seen a decline in the number of apartments in Iowa City that will rent to families with children in the past year.

SEYDEL said that when a landlord

"Many of the efficiency and onebedroom units are just too small for a family," he said. Seydel added that landlords may be reluctant to lease units to families with children because of the noise the children may cause.

Edith Scott, manager of the Iowa City Berkeley Apartments, said, "Although we do not rent to families with children, we welcome children as visitors and have rented to families in Goldie Haendel, an apartment manager and a member of the Iowa City Housing Commission, said she feels families are "getting wiser" and are purchasing or renting homes instead of renting apartments.

"RENTING is not a good deal at the prices being charged today. It's a better deal for a family to buy or rent a house" instead of an apartment, she

Mary Nugent, a staff member of the Protective Associaton for Tenants who lives with her two children at Hawkeye Court Apartments, said she would like to move closer to downtown Iowa City.

But, she said, she has been unable to find housing in a price range she can "Personally, I have not seen a decline in the availability of family rental units. What we do need is more housing for lower-income families,"

Haendel, who owns the Westwood-Westside Apartments, said she rents to families with children, but thinks that the number of families renting may decline this fall.

"I've always had a great number of student tenants with children, but those students are graduating this year and the incoming fall tenants just do not have children," she said.

Committee approves plan for construction of new arts facility

by Lisa Garrett

Plans for the construction of a new $5.5 million communications facility were finalized Tuesday by a 3-1 vote of the Campus Planning Committee, said Virginia Myers, chairman of the committee.

Plans for the facility and the funding will go to the state Board of Regents for approval in August,

If the board approves the plans, the state legislature must decide whether to appropriate the funds for the new communication facility, which will be located on the corner of Madison and Washington streets where tennis courts are presently located.

"There is no assurance that the legislature will fund this," Myers said. "I really hold my breath." The new facility will house the video, film and audio facilities now located in Old Armory and the Department of Communication and Theater Arts

THE KEY issue of disagreement among committee members, Myers said, was whether to tear down Old Armory before the communications facility is constructed and build the new facility where the Old Armory is now located, or build adjacent to it. "If I would have voted, it would have been 3-2, but since there wasn't a tie, as chairperson, I didn't have to vote," Myers said. Myers said, the building "turns its back on the campus with a hard edge wall facing Madison and

"It did not seem the most gracious kind of facade to face the street," she said.

But Myers said some committee members feel it is impossible to tear down Old Armory before constructing the new communications facility - which will take three or four years to complete - because video, film and audio classes now conducted in the Old Armory will have no place to go.

LAST WEEK the architectural firm for the communication facility - Thorson, Brom, Broshar and Snyder from Waterloo - showed the committee schematic plans for the building, Myers said.

In the drawings presented last week Old Armory was depicted adjacent to the new facility. But the drawings this week showed how the new facility will ook after Old Armory is torn down, said Randall Bezanson, UI vice president for finance.

"There were differences of opinions in terms of the siting and direction the building faces," Bezanson said. The meetings were "very productive and everybody feels very good about the plans," he said.

Most nations that are economically that health is not a commodity to be bought and sold on the open market, but a right to which everyone should have access. Here, the freedom of physicians to make money seems to be valued above the people's freedom

I have talked with some Americans who find it hard to believe that in many other countries people can simply walk into a doctor's office for a check-up, or enter hospital for an operation without having to account for the cost. All the private insurance schemes here leave people risk the gamble of not paying.

With a national health system, the

THE WORKING of the free market in health care has several important consequences that operate against the best interests of the consumer. First, it is far more lucrative to be a ludicrous position when general and preventive care is the basis for good health. Many forms of cancer are curable if detected early; in Britain, mass units are set up to test women for

Plans to construct Freeway 518, which would pass through southwestern Iowa City, have hit another snag. The uncertainty of funding for F-518 and the surety of an even longer delay in construction makes this an opportune time for the state to scrap the 10-year-old project.

The state Department of Transportation, which is funding F-518, is suffering a lack of revenue because of the decrease in revenues from road use taxes and the rising cost of highway construction.

President Carter, in his efforts to balance the federal budget, has also imposed a freeze on all federal road funds - $85 million worth - to reassess the funding and plan possible cuts.

The state DOT staff is currently reviewing its five-year plan for funding road projects, and a preliminary draft of the budget recommends awarding only about half of the money budgeted previously. The project may even be delayed until 1986.

If state DOT officials have to choose between funds for maintaining the state's existing road system, which is rapidly deteriorating, and new road projects such as F-518, they should choose the former.

It would not be fair to the public if F-518 were constructed on a piecemeal basis while existing state roads deteriorate.

Taking it slow

Earlier this week Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt charged that Republicans have taken steps against saving lives and conserving fuel in their call for elimination of the national 55 mph speed limit. He made the statement at a news conference to announce, for the first time, more than half of America's motorists are observing the speed limit.

Political bickering aside, Goldschmidt is correct to criticize the move. The national speed limit increases fuel economy and helps reduce the number of traffic fatalities.

The 55 mph limit was imposed in January 1974, shortly after the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries embargoed oil exports to the United States. Some Americans did less traveling; those on the road traveled slower. At the end of the year fuel had been conserved and the annual highway death toll dropped 16.4 percent: 8,856 fewer people died in highway accidents.

Without the long lines at gas stations to serve as a reminder, Americans have not been so cautious in recent years. But Goldschmidt says the law is saving nearly 5,000 lives and 3.4 billion gallons of gasoline per year.

The 55 mph limit is worth keeping.

Open the convention

President Carter's continued rejection of proposals to open the Democratic National Convention is an unwise and unnecessary exhibition of fear.

The investigation into Billy Carter's involvement with Libya has provided a motive for some prominent Democrats to seriously consider opening the nomination to candidates other than Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy.

But Carter has ordered his aides to cooperate with the investigators, and he may even testify himself. It has been reported that he has advised Billy Carter to disclose the facts. At this point it seems that Carter's opposition to the open convention proposal could have a more adverse effect on his campaign than his brother's ties to Libya.

The move to open the convention has been supported by such prominent Democrats as Sens. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, Patrick Movnihan of New York and George McGovern of South Dakota. A group of House Democrats has even raised $200,000 for a crash campaign to change the rule.

If Carter succeeds in maintaining the rule, it will be at the expense of two weeks of bitter and destructive in-party fighting.

Forcing his delegates to vote for him on the first ballot will render those votes meaningless in the minds of the public. It will also give the impression that the president feels his support is dwindl-

It is obvious that Kennedy, who failed to muster enough support in the primaries to be seriously considered as the nominee, would not gain the nationwide support needed to beat Ronald Reagan. Washington Sen. Henry Jackson and Vice President Walter Mondale, two other proposed alternatives, both disclaim any aspirations to the presidency. Whatever their intentions, it is simply too

Carter is the Democratic Party's only hope of winning the presidency, a fact the delegates will certainly consider before the

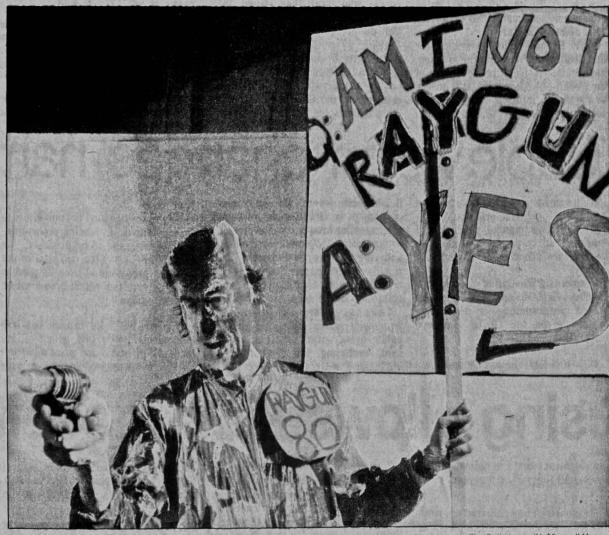

Supporting the move to open the Democratic convention would be an excellent opportunity for Carter to regain the party unity he needs if he hopes to win in November.

Summer Repertory audiences merit more than musical parody

by Chris Drobny

To what can we attribute the Summer Repertory directors' continuing obsession with musical parody? Since 1977, audiences have been subjected to Dames at Sea, a parody of Ruby Keeler musicals; Little Mary Sunshine, a parody of Nelson Eddy-Jeanette MacDonald operettas; and The Boy Friend, a parody of British musicals of the '20s. Interestingly, the 1978 summer season, which spared audiences a musical parody, featured three plays instead of the customary one musical and two plays.

It is especially unfortunate that the smaller musical productions of the summer are artless, thoughtless pieces of froth when the fall theater season contains only warhorse musicals lavishly over-produced and under-coordinated in Hancher

One would think the summer directors would seize the opportunity to offer local audiences a fresh alternative to the Hancher musical. Instead, we receive a miniaturized Hancher musical with an overworked, imbecilic sense of sarcasm imposed upon it.

The audiences who attended last summer's production of The Shadow Box proved that repertory audiences will support a "serious" theater piece. That summer theatergoers flocked to an unsettling, often depressing play exploring the process of death suggests they are certainly capable of supporting a musical that has intelligence,

An underlying assumption of Liz Bird's "Cameras should be barred from the courts" (The Daily Iowan, July 23) is that the American judicial system is at present a fair and effective means of dispensing justice. Ergo, the introduction of television cameras into the courtroom somehow represents the defilement of a just and noble American institution.

In reality the American court system leaves much to be desired. Many correctly view the courts as institutionalized bastions of racism, class bias and economic privilege. The"pro-camera lobby" (Bird's curious appellation) is undoubtedly correct in saying that serious broadcast-journalistic examination of the court system would indeed have "educational value" for an underinformed public.

Bird's distrust of the broadcast medium is as amusing as is her disingenuous claim that "newspapers can report the whole procedure for those unable to attend." If Bird is speaking of the demographically-tiny Iowa City-Cedar Rapids "news market," is she seriously postulating that the DI/Press Citizen/Gazette troika is somehow more responsible or insightful in its DOONESBURY trial reportage than are our area radio and television stations? If Bird is speaking more generally (as she must be to begin a paragraph with "Media people argue..."), is she aware that in arger markets than ours, complete 'gavel-to-gallows' trial coverage has been broadcast over the public airwaves? Perhaps, with the introduction of cable TV to our community, similar efforts can be undertaken here as well. I agree that "whatever television touches, it transforms," but having experienced our judicial system both as journalist and defendant I can testify that the adversarial trial system (especially in cases involving a jury) is often little more than crude improvisatory theater. The histrionics of attorneys, the image-mongering of defendants and the posturing of judges all have been with us since biblical times. Is Bird trying to tell us that Solomon, Roy Bean and Julius Hoffman would have behaved substantially differently had someone been pointing a portapack at them? How about Clarence Darrow, Caryl

Chessman or Bartolemo Vanzetti? And Pontius Pilate?

Bird's final paragraph, invoking images of TV watchers electronically voting "thumbs down" on innocent defendants, is just plain silly. Are we to assume that people are so venal and perverse that we must continue to shield them from the knowledge of how our judicial system really works?

Reader raps driving of patrol officers

I am writing because of certain reoccurring incidents that I have observed that seem to be routine procedure for Iowa City patrol officers. I'm just afraid that someone might get seriously injured because of the reckless driving techniques displayed by these officers.

When I first came here two years ago I was amazed at how many ignorant drivers there were in Iowa City. But from the examples set by certain patrol cars I can see how this came to be.

When I was learning how to drive I was taught the twirling warning lights on the top of a patrol car were to be used for emergencies only - not just because an officer is too damn impatient to wait at a stop light. Consistently I have seen patrol cars turn on their warning lights right before a red light and turn them off again after they have gotten through the intersection, misusing their lights as a cheap excuse not to stop. But more importantly, a patrol car going through these intersections will turn into blind corners having no idea what lies ahead. Some unexpecting citizen, obeying the law and crossing the street when he is supposed to have the right of way, could be hit by a patrol car disobeying the simple law of stopping at a red light. It would be over before either one could realize what would be happening, especially at night (when) it's hard enough to see a few safe feet straight ahead of the car, much less around some dark corner. Why does someone have to get killed before anything can be done about this type of inexcusable behavior?

If they do stop, the split second the light turns green officers will take off with their Buicks at excessive speeds. What I want to know is: Where's the fire? How does that look to an impressionable teenager who is just about to get his license? If a police officer is doing something, it must be legal. I'm sure that if the car could talk, it would explain to the officer there are more than just the two settings of idle and wide open for the Certainly a lot of good taxpayers' money has been wasted through the tailpipe of a patrol car just so an officer can test the acceleration performance of his car. It's no wonder Iowa City has to get new patrol cars every other year. But I suppose if someone gave me a brand new car that I didn't have to pay the gas or repair bills on I would abuse it. too.

I thought an officer was supposed to constantly be on the alert for law violators. How can an officer watch for anything when all his attention has to be directed on keeping his speeding that one can find more law violators by driving around slower or even stopping and staying in one place than one can driving around recklessly and without a certain destination — not to mention the money that could be saved on gas.

In general, I think the police department does an adequate job, but some of their actions just don't make the nut. What I am saying is — maybe if patrol officers would slow down and obey all of the traffic laws all of the time, like any other citizen, they could obtain more respect and cooperation from the public. I'd just hate to pick up the paper someday and read where someone was hit by a speeding car who was in too much of a hurry to get to the Coralville Donutland to even slow

Volleyball coverage

To the editor:

The DI's coverage of the coed volleyball tournament finals was inaccurate and misleading, but most of all sexist. Who cares if you get the teams' records wrong (they are 10-2 and 18-6) or if you say Spikers 'beat PEK earlier in the season' (we didn't)? Who cares if you place major offensive significance on the serve? Ridiculous! They were underhanded.

But when you interview two men, picture two men and mention five men while complimenting exactly one woman for her 'serving prowess' (Ha!), something has to be said. Spikers, for one, made it into the finals and played a tough match there mostly on the merits of our women players -Jane Pendergast, Linda Silk and consensus MVP Margi Stangl.

Afghanistan

To the editor:

In a "Guest Opinion" article entitled

"The U.S. Press and Afghanistan" which appeared in The Daily Iowan July 16, the author states, "Our 'free press' has deliberately, cynically, and systematically lied to us about the 'invasion' of Afghanistan."

Since the author refers to our free press in quotation marks, one is forced to conclude that it is his opinion that our press is controlled and is not free. Since he also refers to invasion of Afghanistan in quotation marks, the reader is also led to conclude that he believes that the Soviets did not invade

However, if our "free press" has systematically lied to us, how is it possible that the writer was able to find refutations in leading American newspapers for allegations he had seen in others? If this is "systematically" lying, why the direct refutation?

Since the writer does not believe the U.S. press on Afghanistan, he can find very similar reports of Soviet excesses there in eyewitness accounts appearing in such responsible foreign publications as Le Monde and Die Zeit.

Or perhaps he should have a look at that great example of free and unfettered journalism, Pravda, the shining beacon of light emanating from the Soviet Union. Since one can find none of its statements contradicted in any of the other major Soviet publications, one is forced to conclude that their press must be telling the truth.

In the Dec. 23, 1979 issue, Pravda carried an article which states, 'Recently Western, especially American mass media, have been spreading deliberately inspired rumors about some type of 'interference' by the Soviet Union in the internal affairs of Afghanistan. These even go so far as to have assertions that Soviet combat units are on Afghan territory. All of this is, of course, pure

"The chairman of the revolutionary council of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan, H. Amin stated, 'From that quarter (the U.S.S.R) there is no, and can be no infringement on our national sovereignty and honor."

That was in Pravda on December 23. On December 27, it was reported that Soviet forces had seized key positions throughout Afghanistan and it was announced that H. Amin had been

The Soviets justified their intervention in Afghanistan, the scope of which they downplayed, by declaring they were acting at the request of the Afghan government. However, the "government" at whose request the Soviets had moved into Afghanistan was pretty much eliminated the same day and Amin and other leaders executed. Amin, praised so highly only a few days earlier, has since been castigated as an enemy of the people.

Undoubtedly, some of the stories which appear in some articles published in the U.S. press are based on inaccurate information. Perhaps some are deliberate lies.

However, insofar as Afghanistan is concerned, the U.S. press is dependent upon second-hand reports, since the Soviets have not allowed representatives of the American press in that

It is also unfortunate that a number of our columnists do tend to sensationalize some of their reporting. However, the "sensationalist" reporting has often been against the United States and the policies of the United States

During the Vietnamese War, for example, many events were taken out of context and widely-publicized to the detriment of official U.S. policy. A good example of this would be the famous photograph of the South Vietnamese police chief executing a helpless prisoner. The background of that incident, which puts it in an entirely different light, was never, to the best of my knowledge, explained at the

There is an unwise tendency among many would-be "intellectuals" to equate free-thinking with criticism of the United States and its institutions. Free institutions and a free press have many faults; however, the alternatives are certainly not attractive.

Postal clerk refuses to do registration

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) - Diana McGinnis, a postal clerk for 10 years, faces losing her job because she won't register young men for the draft.

"My grandmother was a Quaker, and her thinking has influenced me," she says. "My decision not to register was a personal thing. I work for the post office, not the military."

McGinnis avoided registering anyone last week by directing men to a specially designated window, but on Monday that window was closed.

"This gentleman at my window was insistent," she said. "I told him to go to another clerk, but he didn't. The postmaster was standing behind the counter, and he heard the whole thing."

McGinnis was suspended for the day and told that the next time she refused to register a man for the draft she would be fired.

FAA investigation confirms controller erred in near-miss

The Federal Aviation Administration said Tuesday the near-collision of two jets over Iowa City two weeks ago was due to an error by an air traffic controller.

FAA spokesman Neal Callahan said the July 15 near-miss between a Chicago-to-Denver TWA Boeing 727 passenger jet and a CT-39 military training jet occurred when the controller "cleared the eastbound military aircraft to the wrong altitude and then failed to maintain awareness of the situation." A Flying Tigers DC-8 cargo jet was also in the area of the incident, which occurred 15 miles west of Iowa City at about 2:30 p.m. July 15.

According to radio transcripts between the pilots and air traffic controllers, the pilot of the CT-39, en route from Omaha to Andrews Air Force Base in Washington D.C. sighted the TWA 727 jet flying towards it at the same altitude - 31,000 feet.

The pilot of the military jet forced his plane into a "nose dive" to avoid hitting the airliner. One minute later, the radio transcript indicates the military pilot sighted the DC-8 at the same altitude. Patterson said the CT-39 came within 200 feet of both the TWA jet and the transport plane. There were 57 persons on board the TWA flight en route from Chicago to Denver.

Fair attraction

The vintage John Deeres and Farmalls just don't seem to have quite the pull anymore compared to the attraction that Randy Sleichter and Robin Svoboda have for each other at the Johnson County 4-H/FFA fair Monday evening.

Tests of pregnancy move from folklore to kits used at home

by Lee Chiavetta

Pregnancy tests have a history as old as civilization and almost as confused.

An Egyptian papyrus (c. 1350 B.C.) prescribed "a watermelon pounded, mixed with the milk of a woman who has borne a son and given to the patient to drink; if she vomits, she is pregnant." In 400 B.C. Hippocrates, father of medicine, advised that a woman was pregnant whose stomach swelled during the night after she had drunk honey and water at bedtime. Thirteenth and 14th-century physicians looked for pregnancy if a woman's urine covered an iron needle with black spots.

After 1930, the familiar "rabbit test" (frogs and rats were used as well) became a popular pregnancy determinant. The animals, inoculated with the urine of women who suspected pregnancy, were killed after 48 hours and autopsied. An excessive amount of blood in the vessels of the animals' ovaries indicated pregnancy. In the 1960s, a faster method of pregnancy testing was developed, in which the woman's urine was mixed with animal antiserum and hormones. Both methods required an appointment with a physician.

THEN IN 1978, an extensive promotional campaign advised women to diagnose pregnancy themselves, "in the privacy of your own home...in just a few hours...without waiting for a doctor's appointment," using an over-the-counter pregnancy test kit advertised as 95 percent to 98 percent accurate.

All at-home pregnancy test kits base their chemical workings on the fact that a pregnant woman's urine contains a hormone called human chorionic gonadotrophin. When HCG is exposed to rabbit-derived anti-HCG serum, the two form a bond. When an antigen (the red blood cells of sheep coated with HCG) is added, it finds no free cells to bond with and settles in the solution. The resultant ring at the bottom of the container indicates pregnancy.

If no HCG is present in the urine, the antiserum, unable to bond, forms a smooth, milky fluid without a ring when the antigen is added, indicating no

THESE KITS have never been directly approved by the Food and Drug Administration because the original product pre-dated the Medical Device Amendments of the 1976 Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. After reviewing effectiveness data from all pregnancy test kit manufacturers to verify labeling claims, however, the FDA determined that the reliability claims seemed to be true.

The FDA warns women using the products to keep the following points in mind:

The high accuracy claims are based on the use of sterile equipment and controlled conditions in manufacturer's laboratories. Though the home user follows directions exactly, inaccurate readings can result from the slightest amount of dirt in the container or from placing the solution in direct sunlight. False readings are also possible from the slightest movement of the solution - even from the vibrations of a refrigerator or air conditioner. Furthermore, accurate readings can only be obtained from urine that is perfectly clear and straw-colored.

Women using a pregnancy test kit should also remember that the test is only a method of preliminary diagnosis, that instructions must be strictly followed and that false readings may disguise other medical problems.

In all circumstances, women receiving a positive reading should visit a doctor for authentication and early medical supervision. They should also consult a physician if pregnancy symptoms continue after a negative reading.

Major league ball long way off for lowan

The major leagues are only three steps away for former Iowa baseball player Jeff Jones. But they are a long three steps

Jones plays right field for the Cedar Rapids Reds, Class A farm club of Cincinnati. Cedar Rapids belongs to the Midwest League.

Jones knows moving up to Double A and then to Triple A will be a slow process, but he has accepted

"I've given myself three or four years to make it to Triple A ball," Jones said. "I'll see what happens

The going's been tough in his initial year of pro ball. He came to Cedar Rapids after building a .297 batting average with the Red's rookie league in Billings, Mont., last year. He had a .306 average as a

JONES DIDN'T hit a home run this year until the 35th game. His average hovered below the .200 mark and he was a league leader in strikeouts.

As the weather warmed up, however, so did Jones' bat. He became the hottest hitter in the league with seven home runs in 12 games. His streak attracted attention and earned him a berth on the league's All-

But then things went sour for Jones. On June 24 he tore ligaments in his right foot during a game.

Jones' recovery took four weeks and he finally returned to the starting lineup Saturday night, getting a hit his first two trips to the plate. The Haddon Heights, N.J., native now hopes to get back on track and start sending the ball out of the park again.

JONES ADMITS playing in the pros is much different than college ball.

"We play every night and it gets to be tough physically," Jones said. "My swing tends to slow down and injuries don't always get time to heal

Life in the minors isn't as plush as in the majors. The Reds must bus back and forth from their games with Waterloo, Clinton, Burlington and Davenport in the same night. They only stay overnight when playing the Wisconsin teams - Appleton, Wausau and Wisconsin Rapids.

"It's really hard to stick to a good diet," Jones said. "It's not easy to eat well when we're staying overnight, but it's harder when we commute. We don't eat until after the game and then we end up going to McDonald's.'

JONES IS PROUD to be part of the Cincinnati

"It's a good organization," he said. "The Reds don't rush you along like some teams do, moving players from the rookie league to Class AA to the majors in a year or two. You have to pay your dues with the Reds, but if you make the majors you will

Cincinnati has built a solid framework within its farm system. Veteran stars as Johnny Bench, Dave Concepcion, Ken Griffey and Dan Driessen were brought up in the Reds' farm system.

It's a long way from Cedar Rapids' Memorial Stadium to Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium. But Jones is patient. He can wait. His main concerns right now are raising his batting average, hitting home runs and earning a spot with the Reds' Double A team in Waterbury, Conn.

Roemer advances in nationals

Iowa swimmer Tom Roemer qualified Tuesday for the championship finals in the 200-meter backstroke in the Senior AAU Long Distance Nationals in Irving, Calif. Roemer placed sixth in the qualifying heats to advance.

The senior nationals are "supposed to be the substitute Olympics," according to Rich Draper, an Iowa men's sprint coach.

Stanley Sluggers' Jack Broman helps out teammate Terri Boll by fielding a pop fly in Tuesday's coed intramural softball championship game.

Broman's glove was later ruled to be "illegal equipment" by IM officials because it was a

I.T.C.H.S. earns coed softball title

The intramural officials at the coed softball championship Tuesday were called on to test their knowledge of the rules more than they would have liked.

I.T.C.H.S. was declared the summer champion when the dust finally cleared after defeating the Stanley Sluggers,

The I.T.C.H.S. third baseman was injured by a fly ball on one of the first plays and things went downhill from that point

In the fourth inning, Mike Hooly of I.T.C.H.S. hit a pop fly that was called an automatic out under the "infield fly rule" by the home plate umpire, Rick Lubben. I.T.C.H.S., however, argued the ball went foul.

"I had to call something because I couldn't wait until it was caught," said Lubben, an IM official of three years. "It was hit right down the third base line and looked like it was going to be

IN THE SIXTH, it was the Sluggers' turn. Randy Hoth of I.T.C.H.S. hit a fly ball to the Sluggers' centerfielder Jack Broman, who was using a catcher's mitt. The officials gave Hoth a base hit because Broman was using illegal equipment

'It was unfortunate the players were not more aware of the rules on what equipment they can wear and can't wear," Lubben said. Sluggers disagreed with the call.

"When you call something like that (illegal glove), you're getting pretty picky," Slugger coach Claudia Swope said. "If they want to call that kind of ball, they should be in the majors."

ANOTHER CONTROVERSY unraveled a few minutes later when I.T.C.H.S.' Jim Smith popped out to left field. The Sluggers' fielder made a throwing error to third and the officials awarded I.T.C.H.S. baserunners two bases. The Sluggers thought only one base should have been awarded.

"There were not that many more controversial plays than usual," IM supervisor Craig Arendt said. "But it was the championship game and tempers tend to flare a little more then."

The game was even in the first three innings with Ellen Egan hitting a tworun homer in the first inning for the Sluggers. I.T.C.H.S. scored one by Dennis Nastav

In the second, Sluggers' Mark Adrian hit a solo homer while I.T.C.H.S. Hoth batted in Steve Meyer to make the score 3-2, in the Sluggers' favor.

I.T.C.H.S. ERUPTED for five runs in the fourth to start the action rolling. Nastav hit a three-run homer to aid the effort. I.T.C.H.S. added four more in the sixth to seal the win

The Sluggers could not regain momentum despite Melanie Baughman scoring a run in the fourth. Adrian's second solo shot was the Sluggers' only score in the sixth with Cynthia Ocker adding the final run in the seventh.

I.T.C.H.S.' Bart Garvey said "team spirit and the quality of their women players" keyed the victory. I.T.C.H.S., which stands for inter-disciplinary team concept hospital school, consisted of UI hospital school staff and "We played cooperative heads-up ball," Garvey said. He cited shortstop Susie Myers for making key plays in

Men's coaches glowing over recruits

by Dick Peterson

The Iowa men's swimming and baseball teams claim this was their best recruiting year ever. And Iowa men's track Coach Ted Wheeler says recruiting has been as good or possibly better than in the past.

"This year is probably the greatest recruiting class we've had," said George Villa, the head swimming assistant. "Our emphasis this year will be on how we swim our Big Tens and Nationals."

Baseball Coach Duane Banks said: "On paper, this was probably the best year we've had. We're going to be young, but we're going to be good.

Wheeler said: "We would like to have more (in) numbers. I'd say that it's (recruiting) probably better than last year and as good as the year before."

IOWA SIGNED several world-class swimmers, Villa said. An Australian pair in Graham Brewer, a bronze medalist in the 200meter freestyle at the 1980 Moscow Olympics, and Ron McKeon, captain of the Australian Olympic team, will join the Hawks this fall. (Jeff) Belman are potentially superstars - on state titlist in the high jump this year, should tland, Ore., who was a four-time high school All-American. Lorys has been been ranked in the world's top 20 freestylers.

The star-studded list continues with Dan White of Florida, current National Junior Olympic record-holder in the 100 breaststroke, and Bryan Farris, who won Wisconsin state crowns in the 50 and 100

OTHER TOP RECRUITS include British Columbia's Richard Nagy who is a topranked Canadian in the 200 butterfly, Villa said, and Waterloo's David Ross, state titlist in the 100 backstroke.

Iowa City's Tim Freed and Cedar Rapids' Mike Kavach, a high school diving All-American, should bolster the diving squad. The return of Olympic qualifier Randy Abelman will also add strength.

Men's track, however, did not pull in as many recruits as desired, Wheeler said. But he sees much potential in three of the record in the 100 and 200 dashes and ran on the record-setting 400 relay team. He was also an all-state guard on the West Side High School basketball team his junior year.

"He (Duckett) expected to play collegiate basketball at one time," Wheeler said. Every team recruiting Duckett offered him a chance to play basketball, Wheeler said. "We're going to keep our word and offer basketball," he But Wheeler said Duckett will have to choose between track and basketball his sophomore year if he decides to play basketball this fall. Greer, another sprinter from Gary, and Belman, from Fort Madison, Iowa, are expected to take the place of former star and William McCalister, Wheeler said.

Recruit Evan Clarrissimeaux of St. Charles, Ill., will run middle distances, Wheeler said. City High's Paul Marchael,

IN BASEBALL, Banks signed three pitchers, a catcher, an infielder and an outfielder. "We had some holes to fill," he said referring to players lost to the pro draft and graduation.

Pitcher Lenny Turelli of Lake Forest, Ill., is the brother of Iowa catcher Dick. Turelli owned a 5-1 record his senior year.

Jeff Ott, a 6-foot-3 pitcher from Waterloo, and Kris Hokanson, a right-hander from Urbandale, Iowa, should also help the Iowa pitching crew. A pair from Davenport in shortstop Kevin Olinger and catcher Gene Rathje were also signed by Banks. Olinger, an all-state football and basketball player, should replace Dave Hoksema, who opted for pro ball last June.

Banks signed a first baseman in transfer Michael Morsch, who hit 21 home runs and batted in 68 for Muscatine Junior College. Another transfer, Mark Tate, signed with Iowa. Tate, an outfielder from Seward County, Kan., Junior College, stole 103 bases in three years as a prep.

What is Bio Resources?

But what is a plasma center? Plasma, first of all, is the liquid portion of an dividual's blood. Plasma and its products are needed in large quantities by the medical field, especially in the treatment of burn victims and hemophilia and assurithe availability of immunoglobulins and standard testing serums. A plasma center then is a facility for the collection of plasma.
