Grassley forced on defensive by Culver

By Stephen Hodgson

IRVING — Democratic Iowa Gov. Tom Culver has asked the Republican-led Legislature to reject new school funding bills sponsored by the state's controversial new congressman, Rep. Steve King, R-Iowa, challenge Republicans including Iowa Gov. Tom Culver in November.

Culver has been a leading critic of King's bills, which would cut taxes and increase spending on schools. Culver is facing a tough re-election fight against King, a rising star in the Republican Party who has branded Culver as a liberal and a traitor to the state.

Culver's office said he will not support King's bills, which are expected to be introduced next week. The bills would cut taxes by $1 billion and increase spending on schools by $2 billion, with most of the new money going to K-12 education.

"I think it's important for me to be clear on this issue," Culver said. "If we're going to have a fair and open debate, then we need to know where the candidates stand on these issues."

Culver's statement came after King's campaign released a new ad attacking Culver for failing to support the bills.

"I'm very disappointed that Tom Culver is not supporting these bills," King said. "He's been a long-time supporter of his own bills, but he's not willing to support the bills that would help the children of Iowa."

Culver has called the bills "reckless" and "unfunded promises." He has said the bills would cut taxes too much and increase spending too little.

"We need to be careful about what we're doing with the tax dollars," Culver said. "We can't afford to cut taxes without cutting spending."

The bill would also increase spending on schools by $2 billion, with most of the new money going to K-12 education.

New education building opens; a ‘rededication’

By Judith Green

Iowa City Press-Citizen

The official opening of the UI College of Education's new building was observed last week at the University of Iowa. The new building is the result of years of planning and construction, and it will be a significant addition to the university's educational facilities.

The building, which is located at the corner of University Avenue and 14th Street, is designed to accommodate the growing number of students and faculty in the college. It includes classrooms, laboratories, offices, and a large auditorium.

"The opening of this new building is a major milestone for the College of Education," said Dr. Susan R. Davis, dean of the college. "It will provide the faculty and students with the resources they need to continue to produce top-quality education.

"We are grateful to our partners in the community for their support," Davis said. "Without their help, we could not have built this building.

"The College of Education is committed to providing the best possible education for our students," Davis said. "We are excited to see what the future holds for the College of Education and the University of Iowa."

Muskely hopeful but Iranian radio is not.

Alekander Pushkin, chief of state security in Iran, is finally moving to reverse the American hostage crisis and aid in their release. This move is due to various initiatives, including the Secretary of State's idea and several senior officials who are playing key roles in bringing the hostage crisis to an end.

Most of the attention on radio today centers on former prime minister Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who, according to the foreign minister, is expected to be dismissed. This is a significant shift in Iranian political landscape, with former Prime Minister Mohammad Barzani, a moderate, stepping into the leadership role.

The Chinese government today confirmed that a high-ranking official has been dismissed due to his role in helping to bring stability to the region. The official's action is seen as a major step towards improving relations with other countries.

New Chinese leader for freer economy

PEKING (UPI) - Premier Hua Guofeng of China has resigned, as his resignation was announced at a National People's Congress meeting today. Hua and Deng are expected to be elected to the new role.

Several radioactive plants, including one in our country, have been secretly monitored by the National Nuclear Security Administration. The plants have been working under strict control, with safety measures in place to prevent any accidents.

City officials may ban ERA signs in buses

By Edith Thomas

Iowa City officials may ban advertising supportive of the state Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) from city buses, according to a legal opinion issued by the city's legal advisor.

Oswald, who had not yet read Rome's opinion, said, "I don't really understand how this politician setup..."—and still — but I do not want to see political advertising in buses.

Rome said his opinion supports the council that the city's ordinance is constitutional, but added that it remains to be seen whether a majority of the council will vote in all cases.

Although Rome was sympathetic with Oppenheimer's desire to circulate ERA, he was skeptical about her claim that the posting of the wording in buses would help clarify any confusion at the polls.

"There will always be people who will be confused (and I think they (ERA supporters) will have to get the message across to people themselves, "Rome said.

The future of Poland

Edward Gorkow was replaced as Poland's Communist Party chairman in February. The move is seen as a signal that the government is becoming more moderate in its approach to political and economic reform. The new government has expressed a willingness to negotiate with dissenting groups, and there are signs of improved relations with the West. However, the future of Poland remains uncertain, as martial law remains in effect and the opposition continues to call for democratic reforms.

The politics of religion

A number of conservative political candidates—such as state legislators and U.S. presidential candidates—are courting the religious vote for the 1980 election. These candidates offer a range of religious and cultural policies, from strict interpretation of the Bible to support for traditional values. They are particularly popular among many conservative voters, who are concerned about issues such as abortion, gay rights, and the role of women in society.
Barfuss bids senate adieu; dans county candidate robe

The UI Student Senate court recently honored an outgoing senator — the one who wore a handmade robe — for her service to the university. Spring is here — and so is the undergraduate tradition of barfussing. The Senate's capstone event was held in the Union's Memorial Union Ballroom. The program was broadcast live on a television screen in the student union. The audience consisted of 55 students and 10 faculty members. The event was always a great pleasure.

Bilingual educational materials will aid Indochinese refugees

By Christine Bush

Language is an important tool for teachers and students. The UI Student Senate met on Thursday to discuss the importance of bilingual educational materials. During the meeting, the Senate discussed the need for more resources for teachers who work with students who speak languages other than English.

Linguistic materials developed by CEEDE provide individuals recited in education, language arts, science and social studies. They also allow a teacher to teach in multiple languages. The assistant director of universities and colleges, Lawrence Boves, director of CEEDE and professor at the College of Education, explained that bilingual educational materials are being distributed to schools throughout the United States. It is profitable for teachers to teach materials in different languages, because it helps to increase the understanding of students who have varying degrees of English proficiency and who don’t necessarily speak the same language among themselves.

The BILINGUALS materials developed by CEEDE provide individualized recited in education, language arts, science and social studies.

International judge will visit UI

Tadashi Okazaki, Elise's vice president of the International Student Organization, will be visiting the UI campus this spring. Elise has been a member of the UI since 1972 and is one of the few students who have attended the UI since the late 1960s. Elise is a member of the International Student Organization and is an active member of the University of Iowa World Student Association. The university will hold a special ceremony to welcome Elise to the campus on April 15.

Elise will be visiting the UI campus on April 15 as part of the UI's International Student Organization's celebration of International Student Week. Clark offers ‘alternative party’

By Beth Doody

Libertarian Party presidential candidate John B. Clark calls for a “new perspective” in American politics, particularly among young people.

John B. Clark is the Libertarian candidate for president this year.

Clark, a 39-year-old Los Angeles attorney, has said that his campaign is an attempt to balance federal budget at lower levels of government.

He said that the Libertarian Party offers an alternative to the two major parties.

The Libertarian Party was founded in 1971 and has never before fielded a presidential candidate.

I.C. garbage collectors won't brown bag it

Iowa City garbage collectors were no longer picking up garbage bags that were on the streets in paper or plastic bags.

The city's refuse collection ordinance requires all garbage to be contained in plastic bags of at least 1 mil thickness or approved paper bags. Violators can be fined $25.00 for plastic garbage bags from 30-64 inches in diameter. Any garbage not placed in plastic bags or garbage bags may be collected, city officials said.

Renewable energy plan forecast

By Paula Polivka

A national energy policy based on renewable resources and nuclear power would be a major step forward, according to a recent study by the National Energy Strategy Center.

The study, "Networks and Visions for the 21st Century," was commissioned by the U.S. Department of Energy and produced by the National Energy Strategy Center. The study proposes a comprehensive approach to energy policy that would reduce dependence on imported oil and improve energy efficiency.

According to the study, a national energy policy based on renewable resources and nuclear power would help meet the growing demand for energy while reducing pollution and promoting economic growth. The study recommends a range of strategies, including:

- Increasing the use of renewable resources, such as wind, solar, and hydroelectric power.
- Investing in nuclear power to provide a reliable and stable source of energy.
- Improving energy efficiency to reduce waste.
- Developing a national grid system to integrate power from different sources.

The study also recommends a range of measures to promote the adoption of renewable energy technologies, including:

- Providing incentives for the development and deployment of renewable energy technologies.
- Investing in research and development to improve the performance and cost-effectiveness of renewable energy technologies.
- Promoting the adoption of renewable energy technologies through public education and awareness campaigns.

The study concludes that a national energy policy based on renewable resources and nuclear power would help meet the growing demand for energy while reducing pollution and promoting economic growth.
Debate

"I strongly agree with Governor Breckinridge's position on the issue," Governor William Butch Beshear said yesterday. But besides the governor's statement, most of the discussion centered around the issue of civil rights.

Governor Beshear's remarks came in the context of a discussion on the issue of civil rights and the potential for violent confrontation. He noted that the issue was complex and that it required careful consideration.

Breckinridge's stance on the issue was widely criticized by civil rights leaders, who called for a more inclusive approach.

Beshear's comments were met with mixed reactions. Some praised his conciliatory approach, while others criticized his failure to address the root causes of the issue.

The issue of civil rights was a contentious topic, and the debate continued throughout the day.

Ed Asner wins Emmy: strike deadline discussed

The National Association of Broadcasters has announced that strike talks will be held this week.

The union represents the interests of radio and television stations and has been in negotiations with the networks for several months.

"We are hopeful that this week's talks will bring about a resolution," said union President John Walsh.

 Strikes have been on the horizon for months, with both sides claiming to have made reasonable offers.

"Our members are dedicated to fighting for fair wages and working conditions," said Walsh.

Ed Asner was recently honored with an Emmy Award for his role in "Hill Street Blues."

In other news, John Riggle has announced that he will not seek re-election to the office of Governor.

"I have decided to step down," Riggle said.

"It has been an honor to serve my state, and I am grateful for the support of the people who have elected me."

The announcement came as a surprise to many, given Riggle's previous statements about his desire to continue in office.

Asner's win is the latest in a string of recent victories for the union as it continues to negotiate with the networks.

"We are confident that we will be able to reach a fair agreement," said Walsh.

The union is in a strong position, with many of the network's top talent backing their cause.

Asner's Emmy win is a significant victory, and it is hoped that this will be a turning point in the negotiations.

"It is a huge win," said Walsh.

"This is a moment that we have been working towards for a long time."
Reagan backs Social Security

By United Press International

Ronald Reagan, beginning a five-day campaign trip Monday, promised a Social Security system that will be "strong and vital and redoubled" for the future.

While Reagan addressed a rally for "The World's Greatest Political Machine," the Philadelphia, volunteers for President Carter, demonstrated around grounds of past Reagan statements on Social Security, citing a 32% remark about making parts of the system voluntary.

"It's not a question of making Social Security voluntary, it's a question of having the option," Reagan said. "You will have the option.

"It's a question of increasing benefits, increasing contributions, increasing retirement ages, making Social Security stronger and more vital." Reagan promised that he would make Social Security a "political priority." When he was asked a question about his views on a Social Security "voluntary" system, Reagan replied, "I think that's the right direction for Social Security." Reagan's remarks were made during a news conference at the Republican National Committee headquarters in Washington.

At least 11 people were evacuated from a nearby building after the explosion. Authorities who arrived on the scene said that about three or four people were treated at the scene and four others were taken to hospitals.

Youngster escapes grip of kidnapper

MELROSE (AP) - A 12-year-old boy escaped from his kidnapper's home in northeastern Minnesota after his kidnapper said he would kill him if he didn't bring him to a specific location.

The boy, identified only as "John," escaped from the kidnapper's home in the town of Melrose, Minn., early Tuesday morning, April 29, 1980. The kidnapper, who was arrested later in the day, was charged with kidnapping and attempted murder.

John, who is a student at Melrose High School, was reported missing by his parents Monday afternoon. The kidnapper, who was identified as "Bob," had taken John to an isolated area near the school and threatened to kill him if he didn't bring him to a specific location.

After the boy escaped, he ran across the street and into a nearby home. The home owner called 911 and the police arrived on the scene.

The kidnapper, who was arrested later in the day, was charged with kidnapping and attempted murder.

Authorities said they were investigating the case further. They said the boy had been kept in the home for about two days.

"I was born in Iowa" and "I was born in Iowa, Iowa."- Iowa Republican Party, 1979.
New York (AP) — John McEnroe, seemingly a beaten man and with his forecasts of a Borg Open victory beginning to lose their luster, advertised Bjorn Borg's Grand Slam dream at two-hours' notice to the U.S. Open Championship Wednesday in Central Park.

"The longer the match went, the better I felt," McEnroe said of Borg. "But I wasn't serving as well as I should have been.

"I thought I was in trouble when I lost the fourth set, but the last six points I played were the best of my career."

The Germs still didn't know what hit them.

After McEnroe broke Borg in the sixth game for a 3-2 lead, the Austrian simply could not control his serve and双破elefolded in the final three games.

"I'm not surprised. I've played some of my best tennis when I was under stress," said McEnroe, who outlasted Borg in 10 official games, the longest match in Grand Slam history.

"We're just going to play some good, tough, little bit of tennis," McEnroe added.

"I'm just glad to be back up there.""

This year we realize no one is a "goliath,", Bruce exclaimed at the Big Ten Championship.

The Iowaowan's defense was so strong, Iowa State was forced to a sudden-death playoff with Iowa State for second place with a 36-34 win.

"We had double faulted twice in that game and, biting his fingernails recklessly, previewing, sipping a fizzing glass of Alka Seltzer right now, we were not coherent enough to think that the game was a possibility," said McEnroe, who served out the match, 7-5, 6-4, 11-9. McEnroe deflected the ball on his right hand, but after McEnroe went down, he seemed to recover.

"I'm not sure how I got down, but after I played, I felt better."

"We're just going to play some good, tough, little bit of tennis," McEnroe added.

"I'm just glad to be back up there.""

This year we realize no one is a "goliath,", Bruce exclaimed at the Big Ten Championship.

The Iowaowan's defense was so strong, Iowa State was forced to a sudden-death playoff with Iowa State for second place with a 36-34 win.

"We had double faulted twice in that game and, biting his fingernails recklessly, previewing, sipping a fizzing glass of Alka Seltzer right now, we were not coherent enough to think that the game was a possibility," said McEnroe, who served out the match, 7-5, 6-4, 11-9. McEnroe deflected the ball on his right hand, but after McEnroe went down, he seemed to recover.

"I'm not sure how I got down, but after I played, I felt better."

"I didn't think I was in trouble when I lost the fourth set, but the last six points I played were the best of my career."

"We're just going to play some good, tough, little bit of tennis," McEnroe added.
