City takes steps to combat false alarms

By Ray Pridal

Only three of the 44 electronically triggered burglary alarms that went off at the Johnson County Jail's offices in the past few years have been valid. According to county spokesman Tuesday, Capt. Douglas Ermold said the city's 14 alarms received from Oct. 1, 1975 through Sept. 30, 1976, only one of those alarms was found to be legitimate.

The Beeech of false alarms has prompted the city to install a new computerized alarm system utilizing magnetic card readers for ventilation and electronic door locks. The new system has reduced the number of false alarms by 40 percent.

For the first time in a decade, the city's police department is able to expect the money to be saved from the reduction of false alarms.

Fifth OSA resignation accepted; dissatisfaction was not a cause

By Craig Gavrechian

Another member of the UI Office of the Student Activities Committee resigned last week, bringing to four the number of辞职ors from the student-run office since the fall semester began.

Ron Koehler resigned last week as assistant director, buyer of The Daily Iowan, the student newspaper. Koehler said that he left either out of dissatisfaction with the UI or to pursue other interests.

"I feel I have been here long enough to make a difference," Koehler said. "There are still a lot of things I want to do, but I think I need to move on." Koehler said that he plans to pursue a career in business.

Koehler's resignation brings the total number of resignations from the OSA to four since the fall semester began. The other resignations were from Michael Davidson, director of the OSA, and two other assistants. Koehler said that he did not feel that his resignation was related to the other resignations.

Lansman said that she is surprised by the high number of resignations, but said that she is not concerned. "We are continuing to move forward," Lansman said. "We are working hard to make sure that the OSA is running smoothly." Lansman said that she is working with the UI Human Rights Commission to investigate the resignations.

Lansman said that she is concerned about the resignations and is working to find replacements. "We are working hard to make sure that the OSA is running smoothly," Lansman said. Salary tug of war

When the state Board of Regents requests funds from the Iowa Legislature, they will doubtless include a salary request for professors and other state employees. This increase is necessary to make the salaries competitive with those in other institutions.

The tug of war is not a particularly surprising move, for the regents were obviously criticized for their inability to come up with a fair and adequate raise. The state is facing a severe financial crisis due to rising costs.

Parenthetically, I note that the regents, like most others, have not yet seen the 1988 Budget Resolutions from the legislature. What a shock for them when they do see it is a grant-in-aid of $0.00 for any state employee. They will have to come up with the monies themselves.

In Iowa, and in many other states, public schools are facing a similar crisis. The Internal Revenue Service and the U.S. Department of Education have placed them on probation. There is a great deal of gloom and doom on the part of the regents. They have not yet seen the 1988 Budget Resolutions from the legislature. What a shock for them when they do see it is a grant-in-aid of $0.00 for any state employee. They will have to come up with the monies themselves.
154 bridges declared inadequate

By S.S. Anderson

Nearly half of the 154 bridges in Johnson County do not meet safety standards, according to a report issued this week by the State Department of Transportation.

The DOT office of Program Management said it would be very difficult to replace all 154 bridges.

"Our main concern is to get the feds to match the costs of building new bridges," said Gov. David S. Johnson.

"The people call me all the time because they're worried about their bridges," said Greg W. Kucbarzak, transportation director for Johnson County.

Most of the bridges are on rural roads and are classified as "deficient." Bridges are classified as "functionally obsolete" according to DOT standards. 154 bridges on the secondary roads in Johnson County have either "deficient" or "functionally obsolete" ratings.

Bridges are especially important in the rural parts of the county to minimize the problems and traffic congestion.

"The main concern is to get the feds to match the costs of building new bridges," said Gov. David S. Johnson. "I don't see how we're going to get the money from the feds, but we're going to have to make those changes," said W. Kucbarzak.

The DOT will spend more money on bridge replacement this year. "We've been thinking about it for a while," said Gov. David S. Johnson.

"There were 9,000 bridges for the past 10 years," said Gov. David S. Johnson. "It's a lot of work per bridge," said W. Kucbarzak.

W. Kucbarzak said the bridges replace work done with the USDA, Iowa Housing and Urban Development, and the city itself.

"I think we need to get the money together," said W. Kucbarzak.

Workers fingered for harassment

According to a letter written by City Manager David Whetstine, a total of 154 bridges in Iowa City have been declared inadequate and will be shut down for repairs or replacement.

"The city has not received any complaints from the people about the adequacy of these bridges," said Whetstine.

"Our main concern is to get the feds to match the costs of building new bridges," said W. Kucbarzak. "I don't see how we're going to get the money from the feds, but we're going to have to make those changes," said W. Kucbarzak.

Cable TV service is now available for everyone looking in southeast Iowa City, 15 years to the day the city passed a referendum to authorize cable service.

The section of the city to be covered is bordered by Court Street on the north, University Boulevard on the east, First Avenue on the south and Main Street on the west.

Residents who live in the section of Iowa City covered by that portion of the map will soon be able to receive cable television service. Residents in the shaded area may currently receive service.

The Decline in Iowa Autopsies

Dr. John Eckstein, dean of the University of Iowa College of Medicine, recently stated that autopsies as a diagnostic tool are declining in Iowa. This trend is part of a nationwide phenomenon where the number of autopsies conducted has decreased significantly.

Eckstein noted that in 1970, nearly 70% of all deaths in the United States were autopsied. However, by 1990, this number had dropped to less than 40%. The decline is attributed to several factors, including changes in medical practice, increased use of imaging technology, and concerns about privacy and consent.

In Iowa, the number of autopsies performed at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics declined from 1,200 in 1985 to just 400 in 2005. This represents a 66.7% decrease over a 20-year period. According to Eckstein, the decrease in autopsies is a significant concern for medical professionals as it can affect the accuracy of diagnoses and the provision of quality healthcare.

Beyond 'Star Wars' to science fiction comedy

By Cindy Wyman

When 'Star Wars' hit the screens in the summer of 1977, many people thought it would be the last science fiction film ever made. But 'Star Wars' set a new standard for the genre and paved the way for other science fiction films to follow.

'Jedi' is the latest addition to the science fiction genre and is a sequel to 'Star Wars.' The film has been highly anticipated and is expected to be a huge success.

Science fiction has come a long way since the days of 'Star Wars.' Today, the genre is more diverse and offers a wider range of stories and ideas. 'Jedi' is just one example of the many science fiction films that are available today.
